At Rohlwing, Devon

Apartment-business complex approved

Plans for an apartment-commercial development on a 74-acre tract at Rohlwing Road and Devon Avenue were approved by the Elk Grove Village Board Tuesday night.

The board approved a preannexation agreement, an ordinance annexing the property to the village and an ordinance rezoning 41.63 acres for multi-family use and 28.98 acres for commercial use.

Plans submitted by SBL Associates, developers of the property, call for construction of three 2-story apartment buildings, eight 5-story apartment buildings and three 6-story apartment buildings, including one-, two- and three-bedroom units.

Commercial development on the remaining acreage will include a gas station, a drive-in bank, a garden and gift store and other yet unnamed businesses.

AS PART OF ITS agreement with the village, the developer will donate 4.7 acres of the property for public use. Village officials have said they plan to donate two of the 4.7 acres to the Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center if that agency decides to build a mental health clinic on the site.

Officials of the center are in the process of obtaining financing to construct the facility.

The board and the developer Tuesday night agreed to a provision in their agreement in which the developer will donate the two acres to the village anytime it requests the property so it may be turned over to the mental health center.

If the property remains undeveloped, the builder will be required to turn over the public land donation to the village in three years. Otherwise the land donation will take place when construction is completed.

IN ADDITION, the agreement requires the builder to deposit in escrow sufficient funds to guarantee construction and installation of water and sewer utilities to serve the apartment development.

It also stipulates that private drives, access lanes and parking lots be built to the same construction standards as required for public streets.

The village plan commission approved the builder's plans after a March 26 public hearing at which no objectors were present. An earlier meeting of the plan commission to discuss the developer's plans brought out a number of residents who urged the proposal be rejected.

Main points of residents' objections were aimed at the builder's plans for multi-story buildings, the density of the area and heavy traffic which they believed would be generated.

But the plan commission determined from testimony at its hearings that the development would be well below density limits set by ordinances and would conform with planned-out development requirements.

Nerge Road widening a 'high priority' project

by JERRY THOMAS

A $3 million County Highway Dept. project to widen Nerge Road in Elk Grove Village to four lanes has been given "high priority" by Hugo Stark, county superintendent of highways.

Stark told The Herald Tuesday, "The county planned eventually to widen two-lane Nerge Road, but has since reviewed the results of a traffic survey and placed the project on a high priority list."

"I've recommended to the County Board members that we go ahead with the project that could run $2 to $3 million as soon as the village obtains the necessary right-of-way," Stark said.

ELK GROVE Village officials have been urging the widening of Nerge Road for several years and recently approved a resolution recommending the county do the work.

Village officials were unavailable for comment Tuesday, but have repeatedly discussed the importance of the road-widening project in an area of the village that is experiencing burgeoning growth.

The project would be done in two phases, Stark said. The first phase would include widening Nerge to four lanes between Rohlwing and Plum Grove roads, and constructing mountable median strips, curb and gutter.

The second portion of the work would extend the project to Roselle Road.

Stark said 100 feet of right-of-way is needed for the widening. Within Elk Grove Village's boundaries the right-of-way should be easily obtained, he said, largely because Centex Homes Corp. provided the easement between Meacham and Rohlwing roads when it developed the area.

HOWEVER, there are some properties along Nerge Road between Meacham and Roselle roads that are not annexed to the village and whose property lines do not allow for a 100-foot easement.

Stark said the highway department plans to survey the land and existing Nerge Road in the near future and other departments will work on obtaining the necessary right-of-way for the project.

"If the village already has provided for the right-of-way, the work will begin that much sooner. If we have to dicker with individual land owners, it can delay things," Stark said.

Kindergarten signup May 14

Children who are eligible for kindergarten in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 next fall will register for classes May 14.

Children must be 5 on or before Dec. 1 to be eligible for kindergarten in the fall. Parents must present the child's official birth certificate on registration day.

Children will register at their neighborhood schools. Children whose last names begin with A through L should register from 9 to 11:30 a.m. and students whose last names begin with M through Z will register from 1 to 3 p.m.

Parents of kindergarten children who live in the area that will be going to Stevenson school, which opens next fall in Elk Grove Village, should register at Link School, 900 S. W. Glenn Tr., Elk Grove Village.

Alexian Brothers brings meals to shut-in residents

Homebound Elk Grove Village area residents may purchase Meals-on-Wheels service through Alexian Brothers Medical Center.

The program, which includes delivery of one hot meal and one cold meal to shut-ins, is offered by the medical center in cooperation with Elk Grove Village Community Services and Elk Grove Village FISH.

Meals will be delivered before noon Monday through Friday by volunteers. Special hot-food carriers were purchased for the service with funds donated by the Elk Grove Industrial Lions Club.

The Meals-on-Wheels service is intended for Elk Grove residents who are permanently incapacitated and homebound. However, service will be provided on a short-term basis for persons who are convalescing from illness or injury.

The cost of the service is $3.50 per day for the two meals. Those who purchase the service will be billed for a two-week period, or $35 for 10 days.

Requests for the service and inquiries about the program should be made to Jane Broten, Elk Grove Village Community Services, 439-3900.

Sheriff's policeman honored for work

Sgt. Ernest G. Marinelli of the Sheriff's Police recently was presented a letter of recognition from Sheriff Richard J. Elrod for his work in the arrest of a ring of burglars who operated in the Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect area.

Marinelli received a second letter of recognition at the same time for efforts which led to the arrest of five suspects in an Oak Forest armed robbery.

Area lawyers back 2 'rejected' judges

by STEVE FORSYTH

Northwest suburban lawyers are attacking the recent recommendation by the Chicago Bar Assn. that two suburban associate judges be removed from their posts.

John E. Owens, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., Tuesday said that the Chicago Bar's board of associate judges Albert H. LaPlante and Simon S. Porter of the 3rd Municipal District, headquartered in Niles.

Both judges received high ratings in a pool conducted by the Northwest suburban attorneys last February, and the results were submitted to the CBA as part of a review and screening procedure.

Owens said the Chicago Bar Association's own screening committee included the two judges in its recommendations for retention, but the board of managers overturned the decision.

"WE FEEL THAT the attorneys of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its board of governors are in a far better position to judge the qualifications of the associate judges sitting in the 3rd District," Owens said.

He charged that the board of managers "completely disregarded the poll of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its candidate committee and failed to take any independent poll of its own members."

The Chicago Bar recommended rejection of 14 of the 122 associate judges seeking retention in Cook County. Its recommendations were given to the Circuit Court judges, who vote on retention of the associate judges.

Ballots were sent out Friday by the Illinois Courts

Administrative Office, and must be returned within 10 days. An associate judge must receive 60 per cent approval to be retained.

The Northwest suburban association's controversial poll resulted in a recommendation to dismiss two other associate judges, John L. Limperis, 2nd District, and James Maher Jr., 3rd District, but they were approved by the CBA. The suburban balloting was disputed by several local attorneys.

PARK RIDGE Atty. Robert L. Sklodowski, chairman of the Northwest suburban association's judiciary committee, said the 15 attorneys who make up the Chicago Bar's board of managers seldom, if ever, practice in the Northwest suburban criminal courts. "I don't know who the hell they think they are," he said. "They never even bothered to tell us they were going to reject two men, or tell us why. We're the 'country bumpkins,' I guess."

Sklodowski said he talked with Presiding Judge Anton A. Smigiel, 3rd District, and Smigiel also is upset with the recommendations.

The Park Ridge attorney said he was particularly angry because the CBA asked the suburban lawyers to conduct the poll. "Then they disregard it," he said.

He praised Porter, who got the support of more than 90 per cent of the suburban attorneys in the local poll, and said Porter handles cases faster than most of his associates.

Porter said Tuesday that judicial ethics do not allow him to make any comment. LaPlante could not be reached for comment.

WALK, DON'T RUN. It's good advice from traffic guards throughout the suburbs as the children of the neighborhoods journey to and from school in the mild spring weather. Elsewhere, the weather was fierce as sudden spring storms dropped snow in mountain states.

Baseball team ruled out of new stadium

Madison Square Garden Corp. has ruled out seeking a Chicago Major League baseball team as a tenant in the proposed stadium at Arlington Park Race Track, the company president said Tuesday. "I've not talked to any baseball team, or even conceived of it," said Alan Cohen, adding that he has been asked if a baseball club might use the stadium now planned principally for the Chicago Bears. Baseball and football are "two different sports and designing a stadium for both would add tremendously to the cost," he said. Some Arlington Heights village officials are saying privately that they are concerned about the ability to pay for the proposed stadium without a second major tenant such as a professional baseball team.

Company buys fire station

A firm specializing in delinquent-tax purchases got more than it bargained for in picking up a one-acre property in Schaumburg. For a total price of $8,500, the company ended up owning — temporarily, at least — the Village of Schaumburg's new $224,000 fire station, 1024 Meacham Rd. "The buyer took this sight unseen, assuming it was either vacant or commercial (property). His kids love fire trucks, but he's definitely not interested in owning a fire station," said an attorney with Thornton Ltd., a Chicago firm specializing in tax purchases. The property was auctioned off because of an apparent foulup in the County Assessor's office, but the sale is expected to be voided, a spokesman for the office said Tuesday.

'Y' asks $900,000 in bonds

The Northwest Suburban YMCA has asked the Des Plaines City Council to consider selling about $900,000 in industrial-revenue bonds to help finance construction of an addition to the YMCA center, 300 Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines. Charles McClellan, YMCA executive director, estimated the tax-exempt status, which would allow the bonds to be sold at a lower interest rate, could save the Y about $200,000 in interest charges in the next 15 years. The YMCA plans to add a fieldhouse to its building.

45 trees dug up in Buffalo Grove

The state highway department Tuesday was forced to dig up nearly 45 thorn trees it planted in the Dundee Road median last year in violation of a Buffalo Grove ordinance. Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the village prohibits thorn trees for safety reasons. "Thorns have a tendency to fall off, and when you're cutting grass they become missiles," he said. State highway officials were unavailable for comment on the cost of removing the honey locusts and replacing them with a thornless species.

Tornado batters Omaha leaving 2 dead, 50 hurt

by United Press International

At least one deadly tornado and perhaps more tore into metropolitan Omaha Tuesday, leaving a path of death and massive destruction.

In the first hours after the onslaught, authorities reported at least two dead, 50 injured, and 200 homes damaged.

At least 1,000 persons were evacuated from the heart of the stricken area in southwest Omaha after a gas main broke.

Mayor Edward Zorinsky declared a full emergency covering a 2,000-square-block area and gave police authority to arrest persons with no business there. Gov. J. J. Exon, who was in Omaha when the storm hit, ordered out the National Guard.

THERE WERE REPORTS at the city's disaster command post indicating many persons were trapped in devastated buildings in the southwest and northwest parts of the city.

Also Tuesday, the late spring snowstorm dumped up to a foot of snow on Utah, plagued travelers on Colorado mountain passes and raised dangers of flooding and freeze damage to fruit trees in the Rockies.

The storm, which has stalled in the intermountain West since Sunday, dropped 12 inches of snow at Farmington, Utah, and 4 to 8 inches elsewhere along the Wasatch Mountain bench country.

Salt Lake City measured 6.4 inches of snow, the highest May snowfall recorded in 91 years of weather record keeping there. Eight inches of snow fell in one four-hour period at Tooele, Utah, 40 miles west of Salt Lake City.

TORNADO watches were up in parts of South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

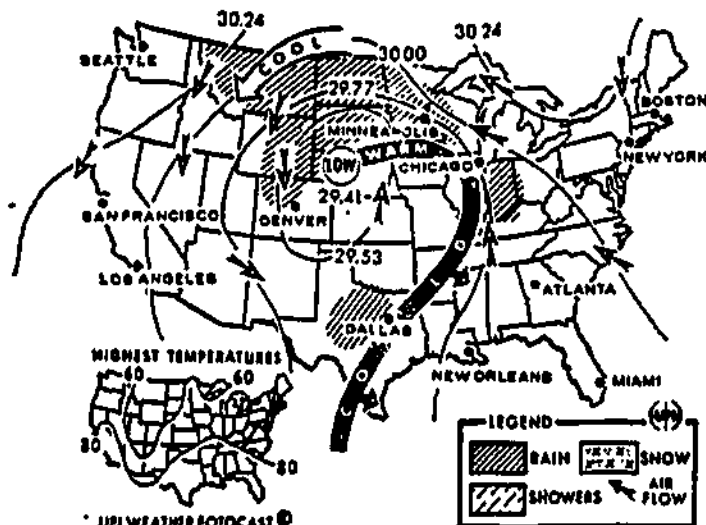

The snowstorm swept eastward and snow fell over much of the area from Montana southward to Colorado. There was 9 inches of snow on the ground at Butte, Mont. Chains or snow tires were required on Vail, Monarch and Wolf Creek passes in the Colorado high country.

Officials in Salt Lake City said the snows swelled an already heavy snowpack in the Wasatch mountains and a sharp temperature rise could trigger serious flooding.

Al Britton, director of emergency services for Salt Lake County, said the National Guard and Red Cross were on standby and the county was ready to call a state of emergency if flooding materializes.

THE NATIONAL Weather Service issued warnings to fruit growers in both Utah and Colorado. The western valleys of Colorado, a major fruit growing area, were warned to expect frost or freezing temperatures Tuesday night.

Walker appoints new director of the budget

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — Gov. Daniel Walker Tuesday appointed Leonard D. Schaeffer of Springfield director of the Bureau of the Budget.

Schaeffer, 29, deputy director of the Dept. of Mental Health, will assume the $37,500-a-year post May 19 when current budget director Harold Hovey resigns to become a private consultant in Washington, D.C.

In announcing the appointment, Walker said Schaeffer, a fiscal manager, was largely responsible for putting together the Dept. of Mental Health's budgets for fiscal 1975 and 1976. The department's fiscal 1976 budget will top $400 million, Walker said.

Schaeffer joined the Dept. of Mental Health in 1973 as a manager of information services and was promoted to manager of finance and evaluation services before being named deputy director.

He was raised in Evanston and graduated from Princeton University. He did graduate work at Wayne State University and Sangamon State University.

Ford opposes probe of U.S. involvement in Viet war

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Tuesday night he opposes any post-mortem investigations into America's involvement in its longest war because the lessons of Vietnam already have been learned — by Presidents, by Congress, by the people.

Ford appealed to Americans to turn away from preoccupation with the past. He said they should welcome — in the tradition of a land of immigrants — the 120,000 who fled South Vietnam and to pay honor to those Americans who served and were wounded and killed in the war. "We should have our focus on the future," Ford said.

"It would be unfortunate to relash who might be to blame," he said. "A congressional inquiry would be divisive and not helpful."

At a news conference, Ford also reported "hard evidence" that a bloodbath was under way in Cambodia with the killing of 80 or 90 former officials and their wives. There was no evidence of similar recriminations in Vietnam, he said.

He said in the aftermath of U.S. withdrawal, some allies question the strength of U.S. commitments. He promised to strengthen ties with Asian allies — naming especially Taiwan and South Korea.

Handling a wide range of questions at a session carried by national radio and television — his first news conference since Vietnam's surrender to the Communists — Ford said:

• He has no intention of changing his position on amnesty for young Americans who evaded service in the military during the war, but "there is always the possibility" he will at some future time drop his insistence amnesty must be given only in return for service to the nation.

• To those who have served, America owes "an unbelievable commitment," adding "All we can say is thank you very much for what they have done for freedom."

• Most Americans, he is convinced, welcome the Vietnamese refugees, although he is "disappointed and very upset" by those who say they should have been abandoned. He said he found it hard to explain the hostile reaction of many Americans — particularly since only 35,000 of the 120,000 evacuees are heads of families and potential jobseekers. Sixty per cent are children, he said.

• Criticism of Graham Martin, who as U.S. ambassador to Saigon was accused of delaying the evacuation of Americans from Vietnam, is unjustified. In any event, Ford said, "I never had much faith in Monday morning quarterbacking or grandstand quarter-backing."

• The country is "at the end of the recession" with an upturn likely to start with the third quarter of this year — the July-through-September period.

Ford promised to do "all we can" for any Americans who may be left in South Vietnam. "I'm sure there are some who are left," he said. There have been reports some American missionaries were left behind when most U.S. citizens were evacuated by helicopter last week.

Ford said the government has no intelligence about whether the long-fearing bloodbath — the slaying of Vietnamese who were government officials or were associated with Americans — has begun. But he seemed convinced it could not be averted.

"I think probably the best evidence of the probability of a bloodbath is that 120,000 plus South Vietnamese fled because they knew that the probability existed that if they stayed their lives would be in jeopardy," Ford said.

And, he said, the United States has "very hard evidence, very factual evidence" that Khmer Rouge insurgents had executed 80 to 90 former Cambodian government officials and their wives.

In the aftermath of a defeat for U.S. foreign policy, Ford said, some allies are questioning the strength of their ties to this country. But, he said, in his judgment, "we can move ahead, even in the Pacific."

"We will not have to reassess, but assess, how we can proceed, but it is my aim to tie more closely together South Korea with the United States, to reaffirm our commitments to Taiwan, to work more closely with Indonesia, with the Philippines and with the other Pacific nations," he added.

Ford said that the atmosphere "is good" for making progress in negotiations for a strategic arms limitation agreement with the Soviet Union.

"There are going to be some hard negotiations," he said. "But I will approach that important meeting with Mr. Leonid Brezhnev aimed at achieving results, and I think his attitude will reflect the same."

"I think you are going to find a greater solidarity in Europe," he continued. He reminded reporters he was going to Europe at the end of the month "to strengthen that solidarity and to work on a more unified position in solving our joint economic problems, in trying to solve the energy problems that are serious to us."

He was asked whether the Rockefeller commission investigating the Central Intelligence Agency was looking into recurring rumors linking the assassination of John F. Kennedy to a CIA-sponsored attempt on the life of Cuban premier Fidel Castro.

Ford said he could not comment on the commission's investigation, but said the Warren Commission on which he served "found no evidence of a conspiracy foreign or domestic" in Kennedy's assassination.

Ford reiterated his intention to run for the presidency in 1976, saying he was mystified by the skepticism expressed by some Republicans' political plans. He pictured himself as a candidate who could draw "strength from the right as well as the left" of his party.

He said he will have strong issues — a rebounding economy and, he hoped, a nuclear limitation agreement with the Russians.

Cardinal Mindszenty

Cardinal Mindszenty dead at 83

VIENNA (UPI) — Cardinal Jozsef Mindszenty, a prince of the "Silent Church" who became a symbol of resistance to Communism at the height of the Cold War, died Tuesday in Vienna in what he called "complete and absolute exile" from his native Hungary. He was 83.

Mindszenty, convicted of treason, espionage and blackmarketeering in an infamous Communist show trial in Budapest in 1949, was released from life imprisonment by Hungarian Freedom fighters during the 1956 Hungarian uprising. But he was forced into a sort of self-imposed imprisonment in the U.S. Embassy in Budapest when Russian troops crushed the revolt.

He remained in the embassy for 15 years until he was freed four years ago under an agreement between the Vatican and the Hungarian government. Under the amnesty, he pledged never to return to Hungary, a promise, he said later, was the "heaviest cross of my life."

The small, stooped prince of the church had opposed the Nazis before the communists and spent nearly a third of his life in prison cells or self-imposed exile for his beliefs. He was forced to retire as Primate of Hungary by Pope Paul VI last year and in the end saw the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church as his greatest enemy.

A spokesman at the palace of Vienna's Archbishop-Cardinal Franz Koenig said that the cardinal died of heart failure in a Vienna hospital at 2:14 p.m. (8:15 a.m. CDT) Tuesday about four hours after undergoing prostate surgery. The spokesman said the doctors at the hospital "saw no reason to be concerned about his health but the strain of the operation apparently was too much."

A Vatican spokesman said Tuesday Pope Paul VI sent two messages of blessing to Mindszenty before his death. "Although not unexpected, the news of the death of Cardinal Mindszenty aroused pain and sorrow in the Vatican," the spokesman said.

Mindszenty spent his last years reading, praying and writing his memoirs, in a home for Hungarian theology students in the Austrian town of Pazmaneum — as close as he could legally live to the Hungarian border — and maintained until his death his authority as spiritual head of the Catholic church in Hungary.

He vehemently opposed the Vatican decision announcing his removal from office on Feb. 5, 1974, declaring: "Cardinal Mindszenty cannot abdicate."

He repeated those words in the final paragraph of his "Memoirs" adding, "There is nothing more to say — and this is what I found waiting to greet me at the end of the road, complete and absolute exile."

In his memoirs, the cardinal said he would have remained in the embassy in Budapest but for a letter from then President Richard Nixon which convinced him he was an unwelcome guest who had become a barrier to détente.

Mindszenty said: "He recommended that I bow to my fate."

Born Jozsef Pehm on March 29, 1892, he trained for the ministry as the only education open to the Magyar poor. He changed his name to Mindszenty — after the village where he was born — and became a parish priest in 1919.

Women may not attend service academies

The House Armed Services Committee rejected Tuesday a proposal to allow women to enter the service academies. The amendment to the proposed $29.8 billion Defense Department weapons authorization bill was offered by Rep. Samuel Stratton, D-N.Y. It specifically would have prohibited any of the academies from denying admission on the basis of sex.

The committee, meantime, voted to cut $3.7 billion from the Defense Department's proposed $29.8 billion weapons budget, but $1.3 billion of the cut was for military aid to South Vietnam.

Solvent rails may get some bankrupt ones

Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. said Tuesday the administration is considering dividing bankrupt northeastern and midwestern railroads among solvent railroads. But Coleman, in testimony to a House Transportation subcommittee, denied that the administration had decided to junk the rail reorganization process now going on under the U.S. Railway Association. "We are exploring all alternatives," Coleman said.

Sen. McGovern tours Cuba

Sen. George McGovern, on an "educational" visit to Cuba, Tuesday toured a mental hospital, school, museum and Havana nightclub but had yet to announce a meeting with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro. The South Dakota Democrat, who arrived in Havana Monday night, immediately called for an end to the U.S. trade boycott against Cuba.

Offer to Israel: peace for land

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — King Hussein of Jordan, saying he was speaking for Egypt and Syria as well as Jordan, offered Israel peace Tuesday in return for Arab land seized in the 1967 war and a recognition of the rights of Palestinians in their homeland.

Speaking at The Citadel, South Carolina's military college, Hussein said Arab states would recognize Israel and its right to exist within recognized borders and would accept a state of non-belligerency.

"All of these we accept on condition that Israel withdraw from all Arab territory and recognize the legitimate rights of the Palestinians in their homeland," he said. "It is as simple as that."

Hussein said that the recent economic emergence of the Arab states on the world scene has resulted in a heightened responsibility for Arab countries.

"With enlightened new leadership in Egypt and Syria we have reassessed our policy," he said. "Realistic and constructive new attitudes and measures have been adopted. As a result, starting with our cautious acceptance of the 1967 UN resolution, today we in Jordan, as well as in Egypt and Syria, are ready, even eager, to make peace."

In a news conference after his address to The Citadel's corps of cadets, Hussein said he favors making Jerusalem an international city.

"I can't see Jerusalem as a city belonging to one side," he said. "It has to be a city of peace."

Hussein said that Israel can no longer rely on captured Arab lands for its security. He said Israel, in a time of modern war, can only have true security when its neighbors are willing to live in peace with it.

"That is what the Arab states are offering her now," he said. Hussein said Israel must quit living in the past.

"She unfortunately appears to have confused fears of the past — in other times and other places — with her security for the future," he said.

In the Middle East, meanwhile, it was announced Israel will present new peace proposals to the United States prior to President Ford's meeting with Egyptian Anwar Sadat at Salzburg, Austria, early next month. "Jerusalem has come to the conclusion that it would be better if the United States would already have these proposals during the Ford-Sadat meeting at the beginning of June," the Israeli newspaper Ma'ariv said, quoting political sources.

"The sources repeated that Israel is not withdrawing from its basic position and still demands an Egyptian commitment for non-belligerency."

Asked about the Ma'ariv report, a government source agreed "it is likely for Israel through diplomatic channels to make known various new ideas even prior to the Ford-Sadat meeting."

Ky predicts executions in S. Vietnam

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (UPI) — Nguyen Cao Ky, the flamboyant former premier of South Vietnam and head of its Air Force, said Tuesday he expected the Communist victors would execute high government officials and military men of the fallen nation.

Ky, now one of 15,000 refugees at Camp Pendleton, told newsmen he thought he victims would include "paratroopers, marines and airmen" while others would "go through hard times."

Ky said that "everything happened so fast" in the last days of South Vietnam that thousands of anti-Communists were left behind unnecessarily.

Ky said he was talking about a coup to take over President Nguyen Van Thieu's government 48 to 72 hours before the final collapse of resistance. He said he had the confidence of the armed forces but realized it was beyond hope.

In Paris meanwhile, diplomats of the new South Vietnamese Communist government hoisted their red and blue, yellow-starred flag in triumph over their legion building and said foreign newsmen would soon be allowed to file again from Saigon.

They hinted privately that permission for correspondents to send out their stories might come during large-scale victory ceremonies planned for later this week.

The Communist military management committee of Saigon, meanwhile, broadcast "order no. 1," dated May 5 and ordering all soldiers and officers, police and former government workers to report and register between May 8 and May 31.

"This order must be strictly carried out," it said. "Those who do not report by 2400 hours (midnight) May 31 but deliberately hide will be severely punished." South Vietnamese Communists have previously used the term "severe punishment" to mean death by execution.

In the Philippines, the last U.S. warship to leave Vietnamese waters docked at Subic Bay with 177 refugees aboard, ending 11 years of American naval presence off the Vietnamese coast.

A Navy spokesman said about 59,000 refugees had passed through Subic Bay since operation "Frequent Wind" was launched last week.

Doctors demand immediate easing of insurance rates

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — More than 500 physicians converged on the state Capitol Tuesday and shouted demands that lawmakers provide immediate relief from skyrocketing malpractice insurance rates.

The doctors' demonstration forced a number of hospitals throughout California to join those in San Francisco in curtailing all but emergency operations.

Prominent lawmakers pledged they would pass a bill this year to solve the crisis, but Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy bluntly told the physicians they would have to pay the high insurance rates for "at least several months" until a long-term solution is found.

"No! We won't practice," shouted some of the physicians, most of them anesthesiologists.

"Lawyers are making a killing robbing doctors," said John Somers, a Sacramento chest surgeon, as the doctors stood in a jam-packed legislative committee room. He was referring to huge attorneys' fees awarded in malpractice cases.

To ease the crisis caused by the discontinuance of all but emergency operations, primarily in San Francisco, the physicians asked lawmakers to pass an emergency bill providing financial help to doctors forced to pay very high insurance rates or quit working. The temporary assistance would be needed until the legislature reforms the malpractice system, they said.

But McCarthy, the most powerful man in the legislature, ruled out the possibility of such assistance.

Betty Ford pushing for woman on Supreme Court

• Betty Ford, claiming credit for the appointment of a woman in President Ford's Cabinet, said Tuesday she also has been pressuring her husband to appoint a woman to the Supreme Court. Although there are no vacancies on the court, Mrs. Ford said "I never give up." The cabinet member is Carla A. Hills, secretary of housing and urban development. In New Jersey, it was revealed that Princeton University's Department of Economics Chairman Dr. Burton Malkiel is under consideration for a position on President Ford's Council of Economic Advisors.

• Allen Green, the Baltimore County engineer who admitted paying $50,000 in kickbacks to former Vice President Spiro Agnew, is free after serving four months of a one-year prison sentence. Green provided federal prosecutors with information that led to the resignation of Agnew on Oct. 10, 1973.

• Bill Macy, 51-year-old co-star of the television series "Maude," and actress Samantha Harper, 29, are honeymooning in Hawaii. They were married Sunday. A spokesman for the actor said the couple met on Broadway while they were appearing in the nude play "Oh! Calcutta." It was the third marriage for Macy, who plays Ben Arthur's television husband in the show, and the first for Macy Harper.

• The Levy quintuplets, two weeks old Tuesday, are all doing fine according to doctors at General Hospital in Cincinnati. The three girls and two boys — the couple's first children — were born April 22 to Mr. and Mrs.

Mark Levy. Doctors said some of the babies and Mrs. Levy may be allowed to go home next week.

• South Africa's third double-heart recipient is doing well and the heart implanted in his chest Sunday is "beating strongly," a spokesman for Groote Schuur hospital said. The patient has not been identified at his own request. The operation was performed by Dr. Jacques Lomman.

• The Senate Armed Services Committee Tuesday approved the nomination of Lt. Gen. Louis H. Wilson Jr. who directed the military evacuation of Saigon, as the new Commandant of the Marine Corps. Wilson won the Congressional Medal of Honor for action in Guam during World War II, and also saw action in Korea.

Taxes up, services down: study

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A congressional survey showed Tuesday that state and local governments are being forced to cut services and raise taxes this year, removing $8 billion from the economy and eliminating about 140,000 jobs.

It showed that most states and localities are being squeezed by falling tax collections and by rising costs and increased demands for their services while prevented from engaging in deficit financing.

Hilt hardest are the 20 states with unemployment rates over the national average. Half these are attempting to increase taxes this year.

Rep. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., chairman of the urban affairs subcommittee of Congress' Joint Economic Committee, made the survey public.

Moorhead and Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, are the chief sponsors of a bill to provide revenue-sharing funds to state and local governments during periods of recession.

When unemployment averages over

8 per cent, as it is now, the measure would provide $4 billion a year in additional aid so state and local governments will be less likely to accelerate the downturn through their own fiscal reactions.

OPPONENTS OF THE bill argue against financing the day-to-day operations of state and local government with funds the federal government must borrow in competition with private borrowers.

"The days of overflowing coffers have vanished for most state and local governments," Moorhead said. "For the next couple years, tax increases and service cutbacks will be the rule, not the exception."

At a hearing conducted by Muskie, economist Robert Nathan of the Brookings Institution said states and localities are cutting expenditures and raising taxes to such a degree as to undercut the economic benefits of the anti-recession federal tax cut and of other federal stimulants.

The survey covered every state except Alaska and Hawaii and 140 local governments, including most big cities. The localities account for 40 per cent of all expenditures by local government.

The survey showed:

- Twenty states have increased or plan to increase taxes this year by a total of $2.1 billion. Four states are cutting taxes by a total of $50 million.

State and local governments plan $3.6 billion in tax increases and cutbacks of $3.3 billion in expenditures for services and $1 billion in construction outlays, removing nearly $8 billion of stimulation from the economy.

- About half the states have cut payrolls through layoffs, hiring freezes, reduced work hours or other means. Forty per cent of surveyed localities also cut back, bringing a total state-local work reduction of about 140,000 jobs.

25-year graduates of Schurz sought

Graduates of the January 1950 class of Carl Schurz High School in Chicago are being sought for a reunion in November.

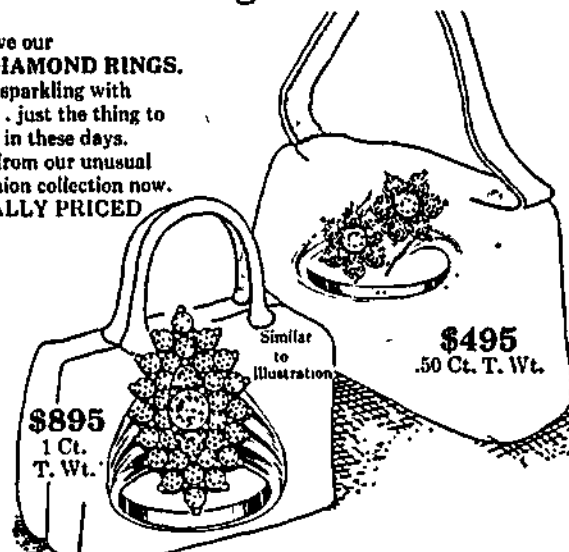

The reunion will be a dinner dance at the O'Hare Inn Penthouse Suite Saturday, Nov. 8. Music will be provided by Dan Belloc who played for the class's senior prom.

If you have any information on former classmates or have not been contacted for the reunion, call 253-4833 or 698-3149.

2 businesses seek annex if they can keep signs

Two businesses in Elk Grove Township are seeking annexation to Elk Grove Village, provided they can keep their oversized billboards.

Both businesses, the Hyatt Chalet Motels Inc., 1920 E. Higgins Rd., and Beef 'n' Barrel, 1932 E. Higgins Rd., are requesting a sign-ordinance variation which will allow them to retain large billboard signs visible from the Northwest Tollway.

The village has strict sign controls that prohibit large signs and has repeatedly turned down businessmen's requests for larger signs.

The area is under the protection of the Elk Grove Rural Fire Protection District and would have to disannex from the district if annexation were approved.

An annexation hearing is scheduled for 8 p.m. May 27 before the Elk Grove Village Board at the municipal building, 901 Wellington Ave.

Scouting news

The Arrow of Light award, the highest award in Cub Scouting, was presented to Webelos Frank Molto at the April meeting of Elk Grove Village Cub Scout Pack 263. Frank also received his three-year pin and was inducted into the Boy Scouts.

John Schumacher, Paul Weathers, Jens Boegehn and John Kapsa were advanced into Webelos and received their colors.

Steve Magsamen, Tom Dell'Aringa and Nick Bonder were advanced to the rank of Wolf. John Schumacher was advanced to Bear.

The following boys received silver arrow points for their respective ranks: Brian Grazer, Tom Rogers, Steve Unglaub, Jerry Bodden and Paul Newman.

Receiving gold arrow points were John Schumacher, Steve Magsamen, Tom Dell'Aringa, Billy Rueschaw and Tim Patenaude.

Activity badges were presented to the following Webelos: Glen Kane, craftsman, showman and traveler; Gary Abt, and Matt Sronkowski, naturalist; Robby Powell, sportsman and traveler; Marty McCoy, Jeff Zommer, and John Balla, naturalist; Joe Jablonski, showman, naturalist and traveler.

Barbara Powell, den leader coach, was presented the den leader coach award and Mrs. Grace Kan was awarded the den leader training award.

Pack 263 will conduct a bicycle inspection and family bicycle hike May 24 at 9 a.m. Scouts participating in the activity will receive a neckerchief slide.

A total of 786 pounds of used books was given to the Rotary Club of Elk Grove Village, the pack's sponsor, for the club's sale. Den 8 received the first-place ribbon for collecting 234 pounds.

Essay winners announced

Winners were announced recently in the third annual creative writing contest sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Public Library.

The top essays, along with winning entries in previous contests, will be on display this month in the library lobby. The essays are added to the library collection each year.

Judges for this spring's contest were Mary Clark, administrative librarian; Janet Steiner, adult services librarian; and Jack Sharkey, local playwright. Winners received books as prizes.

In the senior division, Carol Swanson, Elk Grove High School, placed first; John Cosgriff, St. Mary's College, Winona, Minn., second; Neil Henderson, adult, third; and Kenneth Johnson, Elk Grove High School, fourth.

Junior division winners were Peter Cunningham, Grove Junior High School, first; Barbara Carol Wing, Lively Junior High School, second; Pat McCormick and Dave Milton, Queen of the Rosary Junior High School, third, for a jointly-written essay; and Milton, fourth, for an essay submitted individually.

A special award was given to Bill Hennessy, Grove Junior High School, for a comic strip.

Belly-dancing classes open

Elk Grove Park District will offer belly-dancing classes for beginning and advanced students May 12-June 30.

Both classes will be Monday evenings at Grantwood School. Beginning students will meet from 6 to 7:30 p.m. and advance students will meet from 7:45 to 8:45 p.m.

The classes are for pupils 18 and older. The fee is $10. Registration is at the park district administrative office, 499 Blesterfield Rd.

100 seedlings available

Elk Grove Park District has 100 seedling trees available free to local youngsters.

The trees were purchased with funds donated by individuals and groups for the annual Arbor Day observance last month. The Arbor Day ceremonies were canceled April 27 because of rain, leaving the park district with the seedlings that were to have been given away.

Children may pick up a tree at the park district administration office.

Boys' baseball meeting

The Elk Grove Village Boys' Baseball board of directors will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Elk Grove Village Hall lunchroom.

The purpose of the meeting is to update program information to managers, coaches and the adult membership.

Watershed unit to meet

The Salt Creek Watershed Steering Committee invites village officials, governmental units and interested persons to a 7:30 p.m. meeting Thursday at DuPage County Administration Center, Room 2-800, 421 N. County Farm Rd., Wheaton.

The agenda includes U. S. Soil Conservation Service proposals for flood-control structures and other measures to control flooding and pollution in the Lower Salt Creek Basin.

Tickets available for play

The Elk Grove Arts Guild is sponsoring a trip to see the play "What the Wine Sellers Buy" today at the Shubert Theater. Tickets are still available for the performance. Persons interested should contact Richard Calisch at 439-0447.

Dems to plan strategy today for passing ERA

Democrats in the Illinois Senate will meet in caucus today to discuss strategy for passing the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Senate Pres. Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, Tuesday postponed an attempt to bring the ERA directly to the Senate floor for a vote bypassing committee consideration.

Partee said if an attempt to advance the bill draws serious opposition, he will allow it to go to committee rather than stir up a major floor fight.

The Illinois House last week voted to ratify the ERA by 113 to 62.

East St. Louis to be safe

The new Democratic mayor of East St. Louis took office Tuesday in a city hall where the elevator and air conditioning were not working.

William E. Mason pledged to make the city safe, cut budgets of some city departments and work to bring in more jobs to the city.

Mason, the city's second black mayor, urged neighboring communities to help his financially depressed city. He said, "Crime here will spread to other areas. Unemployment here will spread to other areas. All parts of the area are interdependent and have to work together."

Builders' strike near end

A spokesman for the striking North Central Illinois Laborers District Council Tuesday said the union probably will settle its contract dispute with central Illinois builders in the next day or so.

Camp for blind taking signups for 2 sessions

The Lions Club of Illinois is accepting applications for all blind or visually handicapped boys and girls ages 8 through 18 to attend its special camp this summer.

The first session runs from July 27-Aug. 8, the second session from Aug. 10-22. The camp is on Hastings Lake in Lake Villa.

Two weeks of activities are offered, including swimming in an Olympic-size heated pool, boating, fishing and other outdoor programs.

Each cabin is assigned a counselor and a counselor in training and is composed of five to seven children. The menu is planned by experienced dietitians.

All Illinois children with from 50 per cent vision to blindness are eligible, as are multiple handicapped children. For further information contact the local Lions Club or call the Camp Registrar, 383-9305.

Illinois briefs

The 3,200-member union said the two sides are "only a paragraph and one year apart" on a contract settlement. The laborers went on strike last Friday, stopping work on construction projects in 30 central Illinois counties.

Summer ballots stolen

State police detectives have joined in a search for the persons who stole the ballots from the Summer, Ill. April 15 election.

The ballots cast in two of the town's three wards were stolen from the city clerk's office over the weekend by thieves who apparently did not have to tamper with the lock on the door to the courthouse, Police Chief Gary Burge said.

Incumbent aldermen in the two wards with the missing ballots were defeated. One of them, who lost by only five votes, has filed for a recount.

Kidnapers slash youth

A 17-year-old Chicago boy was kidnapped Monday night and attacked by two youths who took turns slashing at him with a butcher knife before he escaped.

Police said Peter Willis, a student at Dunbar High School, required 33 stitches to close wounds on his face, left shoulder, hands and stomach. The kidnapers were described as two white men in their 20s. Police said they believe robbery was the motive.

The doctor says

by Lawrence I. Lamb, M.D.

Post-surgery pregnancy

I am a 21-year-old woman with two children. A month ago I had cancer in the right breast but no spread to the lymph nodes or anywhere else. I had a radical mastectomy anyway and recovered very fast. So, to be on the safe side the doctor did a simple mastectomy on the other breast, but there was no sign of cancer. Do they call this cured or what? And, what are my chances if I become pregnant? And the child's?

If there were no cancer cells at all in the lymph nodes and you had a radical mastectomy plus removal of the other breast, I would think the chances that you will have any further problems are quite small indeed.

You should ask your doctor about this as he has had the opportunity to study the slides and knows exactly the status of the removed cancer.

Assuming your interpretation is correct, and if there are no complications over the next year, I see no reason why you couldn't have a normal pregnancy without risk to either yourself or the baby.

This might be a different situation in women with more severe problems, or who require a great deal of postoperative therapy. Every case has to be considered individually.

You are quite young to have such a problem, but your case emphasizes the importance of even young women being certain to check themselves regularly and see their doctor at least for an annual evaluation.

Whoever sent in that letter about Hoosiers not ever having to walk to school is WRONG. I walked more than two miles in all kinds of weather to a one-room schoolhouse for the first part of my second grade. This was a few years later than 1912, too. The town was Jacksonville, Ind. and we dearly loved that school.

Thank you for coming to my defense. I have heard from other fellow Hoosiers who tell me that they also walked to a one-room schoolhouse. One reader said the lady must not know anything about southern Indiana. So I guess I am properly vindicated for saying that Adelle Davis had a reason for her diet philosophy because of her farm background in Indiana before World War II. I haven't heard anything more from the lady who thought I was a provincial New Yorker who know nothing about the farm. Of course, she had no way of knowing that I was born and raised on a Kansas farm.

My point remains that the diet advice that was sound and important in the days before World War II is not what we need to do today. Much more of our population was rural in those days, and there was less food and more physical activity. Our softer life means we must change our living habits.

The reduction in fat and cholesterol in the diet, along with other measures seems to be doing something. Dr. Jeremiah Stamler, of Northwestern University, points out that the rate of deaths from heart attacks in men between 35 and 64 has fallen 8.7 per cent between 1963 and 1972. So, I am going to keep pushing for sensible eating for 1970 not 1930.

Water, air can make vitamin C harmful: chemist

NEW YORK (UPI) — Something new you should note about vitamin C: exposed to air and moisture over a long time, the vitamin disintegrates into harmful substances.

This is what a biochemist, Dr. I. J. Wilk of the University of the Pacific, San Francisco, reported at the 169th national meeting of the American Chemical Society.

His report was based on a three-year study of commercial vitamin C tablet exposed to such conditions.

The vitamin's potency is cut in half in one year. In the process, ascorbic acid — vitamin C — breaks down into different chemical compounds suspected of causing diabetes and forming kidney stones.

"There is no question that massive doses of commercial vitamin C tablets could be hazardous," Wilk said.

"Most people keep a big bottle of vitamin C tablets in the bathroom or the kitchen for a year or more. There the levels of humidity and temperature are high and the degradation of the vitamin is rapid."

WILK PURCHASED bottles of vitamin C tablets from a local drug store and during the experiment kept one bottle in the refrigerator, the other at room temperature. A few times during a year he picked out some tablets and analyzed them to determine chemical composition.

After one year, 54 per cent of the tablets in refrigerator remained in pure form. The rest had broken down into different compounds.

Tablets kept on the shelf degraded faster than tablets kept in the refrigerator.

The tablets had a potency of 100 milligrams. Wilk analyzed the commercial vitamin C tablets at the outset and found ascorbic acid makes up one-fourth of the tablet, which weighs 400 mg.

The remaining material is "filler" composed of sugar, lactose, starch, dextrin, talc and magnesium stearate.

"If you buy large quantities of vitamin C, it is advisable to transfer part to a small bottle for daily use and store the rest properly sealed," Wilk said.

Incidentally, the most rapid degradation takes place in liquid. If you pulverize a tablet and sprinkle it into a drink, half the ascorbic acid will break down into these other compounds in as short a time as 30 minutes, Wilk's research showed.

ONCE THE CAN is opened, will these potentially harmful compounds be produced from the ascorbic acid?

"We have no data on that," Wilk said. "But it is something we should look into."

Last question: "Would you drink a canned liquid that has been fortified with vitamin C?"

He replied: "Short of analyzing the liquid, it is difficult to say. We know the sequence — vitamin C in liquid starts degrading immediately. In the natural product, like an orange, there is an inner stabilization — until you cut the orange. When you do, the vitamin C starts to degrade."

Music students host free evening fest

Maine Township High School Dist. 207

The music department of Maine East High School will present its annual solo and ensemble festival today from 6:30 to 9 p.m. at the school, 2601 Dempster St., Park Ridge.

Students in orchestra, band and chorus will be performing continuously throughout the evening in the various rooms in the music department. Some 200 to 300 students will be participating in the evening of free musical entertainment.

The Mothers' Club of Maine East High School will meet today at 7:30 p.m. for the final meeting of the year in the student cafeteria, 2601 W. Dempster St., Park Ridge.

Mothers' Club scholarships will be presented to seniors, and scholar keys will be given to the students who rank in the top five percentile of the 1975 graduating class.

The election and installation of new officers will also take place at this meeting. Refreshments will be served at the end of the meeting.

High School Dist. 214

Two dog-obedience classes will be offered by School Dist. 214 Continuing Education beginning today at Elk Grove High school. Obedience I will begin at 7:45 p.m. in the school's fieldhouse, 500 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village. The first of the 12 sessions is an orientation, so dog owners should not bring their pets.

Obedience II will begin at 9 p.m. for dogs who already have received training. Owners should bring their dogs the first evening. Each course costs $30. Dogs should be at least six months old.

Sixteen High School Dist. 214 students received outstanding and first place awards at the Regional Science Fair which was held at Wheeling High School recently. These students are now eligible to compete at the State Science Fair which will be held at the University of Illinois Friday and Saturday.

First-place awards to Patricia Hollowed, David Bohac, Alan Kehe, David Burge, Matt Fuller and Bill Collis.

Other award winners were: Arlington High School, Gregg Terrell, first place; Prospect High School, first place awards to Mary Jachec and Ann Wierce; and Wheeling High School, an outstanding award to Kathy Stephens and first place to Kevin Lucas.

High School Dist. 211

The Schaumburg High School Booster Club is sponsoring Siegi's Midway, an outdoor carnival today, through Sunday.

Rides will include a ferris wheel, merry-go-round, loop-a-plane, tilt-a-whirl, dark ride, house of mirrors, parashute ride, round up and two kiddie rides.

Game booths supported by student groups, a pizza booth and beer garden selling bratwurst and root beer are some of midway's attractions, all in the school's parking lot, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg.

Hours are: today and Thursday from 6:30 to 10:30 p.m.; Friday from 6 to 11:30 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from noon to midnight.

Fremd High School music students earned 235 points to take second place at the state solo and ensemble contest held recently at Forest View High School.

Those receiving first place superior ratings were: Instrumental solos: Steve Henricks, Ed Jacob, Claire Harrison, Linda Jones, Andy Schuelke, Lisa Zakrajsek, Barbara Nutt, Allison West, Kathy Brasky, Mary Gross and Don Wilson.

String solos were Joyce Hanson, Emily Mulligano, Mary Jo Lonze and Tom Thornton. Vocal solos: Ed Jacob and Bob Giesener. Piano solos: Cheryl Friedman.

Superior ratings also went to 11 ensembles: two flute duets, Claire Harrison and Lisa Zakrajsek; Claudia Crase and Sue Pethley; flute trio: Debbie Davis, Karen Boward, Claudia Crase; clarinet quartet: Frank McNellis, Kathy Graft, Jeff Matnanga and Ken Kolb.

Clarinet choir: Kathy Graft, Frank McNellis, Jeff Matnanga, Ken Kolb, Dave Prankits, Cathy Dowd, Chris Sorenson, Kim Jensen, Britta Gross, Laura Berkley, Denise Nellson, Linda Fink, Jim Bayer, Eric Johnson and Mary Gross.

Brass choir: Greg Priest, Ed Jacob, John Eilandt, Greg Fudala, Andy Schuelke, Ingrid Janssen, Brian Jacob, Jeff Sveinsson, Steve Henricks and Ken Keadle.

String choir: Kim Davis, Dan Cotsakis, Emily Mulligano, Joyce Hanson, Mary Jo Lonze, Laurie Marchiori, Leslie Froehlich, Barbara Allen, Jean Mayer, Amy Hayer and Tom Thornton.

An excellent rating was given to 24 solos, two brass choirs, woodwind choir, clarinet choir, Madrigals, swing choir, mixed octet, girls trio and vocal duet.

Conant High School symphonic band received a superior rating in the Illinois State Ensemble Contest held recently. Conant hosted the event this year with bands from the suburban area competing.

Boss, about my pay, I'd like a two-year advance!

Herald opinion

Legislators: no advance pay

Illinois taxpayers are being victimized by a self-serving procedure which permits all state legislators to be paid their salaries in advance. It's costing all of us money, and the procedure should be abolished as soon as possible.

Consider the case of Esther Saperstein as the best argument against payment-in-advance. Mrs. Saperstein had served in the General Assembly for 18 years before being elected this spring to the Chicago City Council. She's giving up her legislative job, but she's unwilling to refund all of her paid-in-advance Springfield salary.

Mrs. Saperstein's reluctance is going to cost the state slightly less than the full $20,000 salary. That's a pittance in our billion dollar state budget, but the overriding moral issue is that Mrs. Saperstein is being paid for services she won't provide to the state in 1975.

More to the point, however, is that all representatives and senators may receive their $20,000 annual salary — or $40,000 for two years, if they prefer — in advance. The result is that the state can lose several million dollars which could be invested to provide additional revenue for state programs.

The most appalling feature of this plan is that it violates the traditional business practice that salary follows performance. There might be some cause for payment-in-advance if any of our legislators were poverty-stricken, but $20,000 a year is not exactly a subsistence wage.

Payment-in-advance should be abolished, to avoid the tactics of such persons as Mrs. Saperstein. However, if the legislature is unwilling to abolish it, we offer another solution.

All legislators should be required to pay interest comparable to the amount of money Illinois would gain by investing the salaries over a year. To prevent a recurrence of the Saperstein episode, legislators also should be required to sign a promissory note; in this way, they'd be required to refund, on a prorated basis, their salary if they leave Springfield before the end of a term. In this way we'd curb the kinds of abuses which Mrs. Saperstein's case so aptly illustrates.

by DAVID E. ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Proponents of a universal and unconditional amnesty for Vietnam War resisters viewed the last stages of American involvement in the Indochina war from a bittersweet perspective.

On the one hand, they saw the end of American involvement as a final vindication of their position and perhaps the final victory of the antiwar movement.

At the same time, however, they expressed the fear that the end of the war might also mean the end of what impetus there is toward expanding the limited and conditional clemency President Ford offered war resisters and deserters last Sept. 16.

"When Saigon finally falls and Vietnam is forgotten, the resisters will be forgotten, too," said one amnesty worker as he sat through the end of three days of hearings on the subject by a House Judiciary subcommittee.

The subcommittee has before it several bills to either continue and modify the Ford program or move toward granting a universal and unconditional amnesty.

While nearly everyone associated with the amnesty movement feels that Ford's program was less than a spectacular success — it drew less than a quarter of its potential applicants before the

GEORGE DANIELSON

March 31 deadline — no one is optimistic that there is enough congressional support to even continue that program, much less expand it.

A prime example of congressional uncertainty on the subject is Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis.

Nelson, a supporter of universal and unconditional amnesty, is also a co-sponsor, with Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., of a bill that would modify the Ford program and reopen the application period to that program.

"I think someday we have to get around to a general amnesty," Nelson told the subcommittee. "I wish we could do that this year . . . but I don't think we can."

If the pro-amnesty advocates had any grounds for hope in the hearings, they were with Rep. George E. Danielson, D-Calif., who early in the hearings described himself as "a half of loaf" man.

In an exchange with Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich., sponsor of a bill that would grant a more universal and unconditional amnesty, Danielson indicated that because of those without "principled opposition" to the war he "hung onto the belief that we ought to do it (consider amnesty) serial number by serial number."

Hart replied he believed a case-by-case procedure was "an unworkable administrative task."

Danielson then raised the question of the alternate service requirement of the Ford program, one of the most severely criticized portions of the plan. Under the Ford program, resisters and deserters could be required to perform as much as 24 months of alternate service at low-paying public interest jobs.

Danielson suggested that "the idea of alternate service is not workable . . . it's going to exacerbate rather than help the program."

As the hearings drew to a close, Danielson summed up his own pondering of the subject:

"The word amnesty means to forget and if we keep this up long enough, we will forget . . . I favor a case-by-case basis but I'm not sure it's workable . . ."

"We may have to come up with a form of general amnesty." (United Press International)

Park district program defended

Dear Mr. Konny:

In response to your letter dated April 23, be advised that the Hockey Awards Night was held in conjunction with the annual meeting of the Palatine Amateur Hockey Assn. on Monday, April 7 from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Fremd High School. Every boy who is registered in the hockey program and coaches, if they do not have a boy in the program, is mailed a P.A.H.A. newsletter each month. Notification of the affair was published in the March newsletter. I have enclosed a copy of this newsletter for your review. Additionally, an article appeared in The Palatine Herald on Thursday, April 3, announcing the time, place and date of the affair. Approximately 650 children and adults attended. The awards included participation patches for all registrants, first place patches and a plaque for the sponsor of the winning team in each division, patches for the tournament champions in each division, and "Hat Trick" and "Shut Out" patches for boys who earned them.

The banquet to which you refer numerous times in your letter was discontinued after the 1972-73 season after an overwhelming number of persons responding to a questionnaire preferred only an awards night. The banquet had become unwieldy in terms of expense and time consumption as a result of the growth of the hockey program.

Hockey registrants are informed of their playing schedules, team standings, fund raising events and other matters by means of the newsletter, season schedules, and by their coaches. The coach of your son's team, although he did not attend the awards night, acknowledged prior notification of the event. Also, other members of the team were in attendance. The officers of the P.A.H.A. and park district staff can categorically state that every reasonable effort was made to inform every boy in the program of the event.

With respect to your questions about the disbursement of funds collected for the hockey program, I have enclosed a copy of the budget with this letter. Meaningful information and interpretation of the budget may be obtained in conference with me. I will make myself available at your convenience for such a conference.

In your letter to us your closing statement reads "Your attention to this matter will be greatly appreciated." This contradicts with a phrase in your letter which appeared in the "Fence Post" column of The Herald on April 28 which stated "... I do not anticipate receiving any reply" from the park district. The collection of information to be used to respond to your April 23 letter began on April 25 — the day your letter was delivered.

A long-standing policy of the Palatine Park District is to respond to all reactions to our programs, be they accolades or criticisms. Perhaps the fact that you are not a resident of the Palatine Park District (contrary to your statement in The Herald), would suggest that your concerns would not be received, considered and answered. Such is not the case.

We have reason to be proud of the hockey program in our community. The Palatine Amateur Hockey Association — not the Palatine Park District — is primarily responsible for the program's growth and for the fine instructional, competitive and character-building opportunities provided in the program. It is the P.A.H.A., through thousands of hours volunteered by its board of directors, coaches and Mothers' Auxiliary, who have made the hockey program possible. On their behalf, as well as that of the board of commissioners and staff of the Palatine Park District I encourage you and others to come forward to offer constructive criticism and positive suggestions to continue to improve not only the hockey program, but all park district services.

Fence post letters to the editor

He cheers 2,000 marchers

On Sunday, April 27, over 2,000 young people walked in the Northwest Suburban and Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg walkathons for the March of Dimes. I am writing to publicly thank those walkers who turned out despite the miserable weather conditions. Certainly their determination to keep a commitment made to the March of Dimes is worthy of high tribute and is indicative of their community spirit and their dedication to the March of Dimes in its work to prevent birth defects.

Some people have asked why we did not cancel the walkathon in view of the weather conditions. The planning for a March of Dimes walkathon is complex and requires several months of preparation. In order to insure the safest route for young people, it is necessary to obtain the guidance and permission from city officials, police and school administrators. Our foremost goal is always the safety of the walkers. To help insure this safety, arrangements must be made with civil defense groups and local clubs who are willing to dispatch members to help with crowd control. In addition, plans must be made for refreshments for all the young people who participate.

In the past, we had a rain clause published on all materials. The clause stated that if it rained on the day of the walkathon, it would automatically be postponed to the following week. This clause worked until we had our first rainstorm. To our dismay, nearly half the walkers showed up to walk despite the rain and could not be turned away. After that experience, we eliminated the rain clause from our walkathon materials.

It is almost impossible to cancel a walkathon because of weather. How do you know when the weather is too severe? On Sunday at 7 a.m., when it was not raining, the forecast predicted "clear skies by 11 a.m." After the walkers started out, it would have been very difficult to stop them since they were spread over several miles.

All of the young people who walked on Sunday reached the first checkpoint and almost all reached the second checkpoint. We feel that anyone who walked five or seven miles in the cold rain expended as much effort and a greater sacrifice than if they had walked 17 miles on a sunny day. Since the effort was at least as great, we hope that the generous sponsors who helped to support this walkathon with pledges, will consider the conditions under which these young people attempted to fulfill their commitment to the March of Dimes.

In fact, our experience has been that under similar circumstances those who have made pledges are generally very understanding and very generous when the walkers come to collect their pledges.

Once again, we would like to thank all of the young people, their parents and the villages of the Northwest suburban area for what was a well supported walkathon and what would have been an even more enjoyable day for the participants if the sun had shined.

The almanac

Today is Wednesday, May 7, the 127th day of 1975 with 238 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

English poet Robert Browning was born May 7, 1812. This is actress Anne Baxter's 52nd birthday.

On this day in history:

• In 1915, 1,186 passengers, 124 of them Americans, were lost when a German U-boat sank the British liner "Lusitania" off the coast of Ireland.

• In 1945, Nazi Germany surrendered on the 2,075th day of World War II.

• In 1968, Alabama Gov. Lurleen Wallace died of cancer at the age of 41.

• In 1973, the White House denied that President Nixon knew beforehand of the Watergate break-in or offered clemency to anyone involved.

A thought for the day: Poet Robert Browning wrote, "Ignorance is not innocence but sin."

The lighter side

Never overrate Congress' speed

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — The bill providing funds for evacuation and humanitarian aid in South Vietnam didn't quite make it through Congress. And for good reason.

By the 19th day, when the measure reached the point of final passage, the evacuation program already had been completed.

President Ford originally asked Congress to pass the legislation in nine days. Which prompted comedian Mark Russell to assert that the only thing Congress could do in nine days was make minute rice.

I'm not so sure Russell wasn't being overly optimistic.

I've been reading the directions on a minute rice package and I have serious doubts Congress could get that done in nine days either.

One potential hang-up emerges from the fact that there are two ways of making minute rice — the five-minute way and the eight-minute way.

The eight-minute way, which requires an extra tablespoon of water per serving, produces rice that is softer than five-minute minute rice. I've seen Congress tied up for weeks over issues less controversial than that.

Additionally, the directions call for a half-teaspoon of butter per serving "if desired."

That parenthetical option is just the sort of thing that often leads to filibusters in the Senate.

So it is my guess that congressional minute rice would be made somewhat as follows:

First day — The House Cuisine Committee announces it will hold five days of hearings on rice-making with testimony from prominent dietitians, nutritionists and chefs.

"When we get down to the nitty-gritty of choosing between hard and soft minute rice, we're going to need all the professional help we can get," Chairman Fergus Crashbore avers.

Compromise state redistricting plan introduced

A compromise plan for redrawing of Illinois Congressional districts, which ostensibly would remove most objections by supporters of U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, to redistricting, was introduced in the Illinois Senate Tuesday.

State Sen. Richard Newhouse, D-Chicago, said the amendments he submitted to an earlier bill proposed by Senate Pres. Cecil Pardee, D-Chicago, would add Democratic strength to Mikva and would also increase Republican strength in the district of U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th.

Newhouse said Tuesday that his map would not place Mikva and U.S. Rep. Sidney Yates, D-8th, in the same district, as would the map proposed by Pardee, which is widely believed to be the design of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Newhouse was unable to supply exact details of his map, but said the basic change in the Chicago suburbs would be to remove Highland Park and Deerfield in Lake County from Crane's district and add it to Mikva's district. Whatever territory was needed to make up the loss of population in Crane's district would presumably be taken from Maine Township.

The map proposed by Pardee would combine Mikva's home township of Evanston with Yates' Chicago district, while severing the suburban townships of Niles, New Trier, Northfield and Maine.

Newhouse said the chief purpose of his proposal is to strengthen black and Spanish representation in three districts on the South and West sides of Chicago. Downstate districts would remain virtually untouched under his proposal.

Bill would lift fund limit

A bill sponsored by State Sen. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, would remove the $10,000 limit on funds which may be allocated by townships for senior citizens' services, facilities, activities and counseling.

Regner said most townships in Illinois already spend near the $10,000 limit for such services and called the ceiling "artificial."

Regner also is sponsor of a bill which would change the name of "town auditors" to "town trustees."

"Town auditors," Regner said, "really don't audit anything."

'Business stifled'

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, told Chicago area businessmen last weekend that the federal government must eliminate regulations which "stifle competition and reward inefficiency."

Crane told a conference of suburban businessmen from his district that excessive government regulation "hurt the economy of the United States and add directly to consumer costs."

He said there are more than 100,000 persons employed by the federal government for the purpose of writing, reviewing and enforcing regulations on business, which require 45,000 pages of small print for publication in the Federal Register.

Crane cited White House estimates which say that enforcement of these regulations cost the average U.S. family $2,000 per year.

63 bills pass house panel

On the same day that the Illinois House approved the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, 63 bills sponsored by Rep. Eugenia S. Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, which she said are aimed at removing sex discrimination from the law, were approved by a House committee.

The bills were part of a package of 80 legislative proposals which resulted from a study by the Commission on the Status of Women, headed by Rep. Susan Catania, R-Chicago.

While some were tabled for further study, only three were voted down by the committee. They were:

- A bill to prohibit discrimination against women in the National Guard and State Guard, both of which already recruit women.
- A bill extending to men a prohibition against soliciting of drinks by female employees in public places.
- A bill defining prostitutes as either male or female, rather than only female as in existing law; and equalizing penalties for prostitutes and patrons.

System also helps mute

Police 'talk' to deaf on new phone

by JOE SWICKARD
Police in the Northwest suburbs now can answer the silent cries for help.

With the installation last week of a special teletype-telephone hookup, police are able to "talk" with deaf and mute residents in emergency situations.

The system went into service at the Northwest Central Dispatch System headquarters in Arlington Heights. It enables the deaf to call police and fire emergency services themselves, instead of relying upon a neighbor.

The hookup uses regular telephone lines to carry messages to Central Dispatch headquarters, where they are received by a special telephone and teletype machine. Central Dispatch is a cooperative police communications system set up by Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village and Buffalo Grove.

DISPATCH MANAGER Phil Herman said when the phone rings, an operator places the receiver into the coupler and types out "Police GA," shorthand for "go ahead."

The caller types out his name, address and the problem. The operator acknowledges the call and types back what action is being taken.

"Although this is a police line, it is also an emergency line. We can send out an ambulance, a fire truck or what ever is needed. It is the same service we give over our regular lines," Herman said.

There are about 50 families in the area that are part of the telephone-teletype system, many of them without a member who is able to speak or hear, Herman said.

THE COST to the families is about $250 for the reconditioned teletype machine and their monthly telephone bill, he said. Arlington Heights absorbed the $2,000 cost for the special line, Herman said.

The service is not limited to the four communities in the dispatch system. For example, Herman said, if there is a family in Rolling Meadows or Palatine that needs the service, the system will act as the go-between to the proper agency.

The police also can contact the deaf residents over the new system. The residents' telephone "rings" with a flashing light and they go through the same procedure as the police in answering the calls.

With the installation, Arlington Heights became the third police department in Illinois to offer the service to the deaf. The other police forces are Chicago and Cook County Sheriff's police.

TELEPHONE LINES for the deaf can send teletype messages to the police. This is only the third police communications system in the state to offer emergency call hookups for the deaf. Telephone lines for the deaf have been installed in the Northwest Central Dispatch System police radio network. The special phone rings, operators place the receiver in the terminal and the

Obituaries

James E. Finn

A Memorial Mass for James E. Finn is today at 7 p.m. in St. James Catholic Church, 841 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Mr. Finn, 46, a resident of Arlington Heights for 8½ years, apparently drowned Saturday morning after falling out of a boat while fishing at the base of the Trempealeau Dam on the Mississippi River, near LaCrosse, Wis. He was employed as a textile representative for Spence Knits, South Carolina and Shonmake, New York. He was a member of St. James Catholic Church, Arlington Heights; Fathers' Club at St. Viator High School, Arlington Heights, and Oak Park Elks Club. He was born in Oak Park, March 17, 1929.

Surviving are his widow, Barbara Neo Sullivan; three daughters, Mrs. Mary Ellis (David) Harris of Mount Prospect, Maureen and Joanne, both at home; four sons, James G., Robert, John and Michael, all at home; two grandchildren, David and Julie Harris; parents, James E. Sr. and Catherine Finn of Spring Hill, Fla.; a brother, Robert F. (Barbara) Finn of Canon City, Colo., and grandfather, James Finn of Forest Park, Ill. He was the son-in-law of the late Bernard and Helen Sullivan.

Arrangements were made by Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights.

Hazel Willis

Mrs. Hazel Willis, 73, nee Utpadel, a lifetime resident of Wheeling was pronounced dead on arrival Monday night at Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, after an apparent heart attack. Born in Wheeling, Jan. 20, 1902, she was a member of the Des Plaines Order of the Eastern Star Chapter No. 763, and the Ladies Aid Society at the Community Presbyterian Church, Wheeling.

Visitation is today from 2 to 9:30 p.m. in Kolsak of Wheeling Funeral Home, 189 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

The body will lie in state Thursday in Community Presbyterian Church, 106 E. Highland Ave., Wheeling, from 12:30 p.m. until time of funeral service at 1:30 p.m. Officiating will be the Rev. Thomas R. Nelson. Burial will be in the Wheeling Cemetery, Wheeling.

Preceded in death by her parents, Albert and Alvina, nee Albrecht, Utpadel, and seven brothers, Fred, William, Otto, Albert Jr., Frank, Charles and Robert Utpadel, she is survived by her husband Merle; four sisters-in-law, Mrs. Lucille (the late Frank) Utpadel of Denver, Colo., Mrs. Nelda (the late Charles) Utpadel of Des Plaines, Mrs. Mildred (the late Robert) Utpadel of Wheeling and Mrs. Fern (Winston) Hickman of Joliet; two brothers-in-law, Ralph (Elnora) Willis of Continental, Ohio, and Frank Willis of Milford, Ill.; many nieces and nephews.

Family requests in lieu of flowers, memorial donations to the Community Presbyterian Church, Wheeling, would be appreciated.

Anna M. Koziol

Mrs. Anna Marie Koziol, 68, nee Wojnicki, a resident of Palatine for over 30 years, was pronounced dead on arrival Monday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. She was born Sept. 4, 1906, in Poland.

Visitation is today and Thursday from 3 to 5 and 7 to 9:30 p.m. in Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Prayers will be said at 9:30 a.m. Friday in the funeral home, then to St. Theresa Catholic Church, 465 N. Benton St., Palatine, where a funeral Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. Burial will be in Randall Park Cemetery, Palatine.

She is survived by two sons, Robert and Frank, both of Palatine; a daughter, Mrs. Dorothy (Norm) Hansen of Barrington; nine grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren. She was preceded in death by a brother, John Wonecke.

Agnes R. Pingel

Mrs. Agnes Rose Pingel, 73, nee Or-lowski, of Wheeling, died Tuesday morning in Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge. She was born in Chicago, Aug. 8, 1901.

Preceded in death by her husband, Arthur, and a daughter, Mrs. Shirley (Walter) Fantuzzi, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Hazel (William) Lazarski, of Wheeling; 10 grandchildren; three great-grandchildren, and a son-in-law Walter Fantuzzi.

Visitation is Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m. in Kolsak of Wheeling Funeral Home, 189 S. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling.

A funeral Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10 a.m. Friday in St. Joseph the Worker Catholic Church, 181 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling. Burial will be in Maryhill Cemetery, Niles.

Family requests Masses preferred.

Joseph Cordulack

Joseph A. Cordulack, 69, of Arlington Heights, died Sunday in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. Employed as a real estate salesman, he had resided in Arlington Heights for 15 years. He was born March 15, 1906, in Russia.

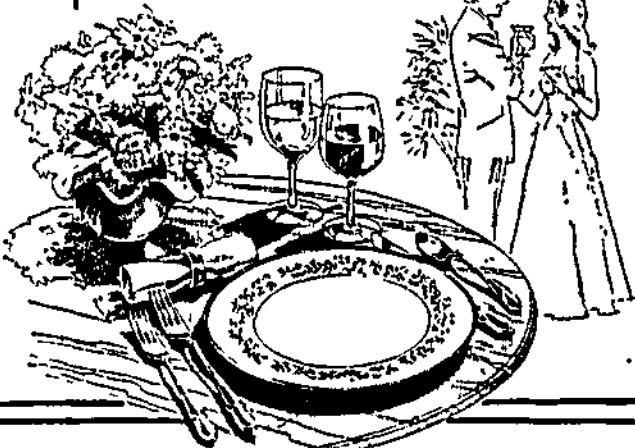

Visitation is Thursday in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, from 6:30 p.m. until time of funeral service at 8:30 p.m. Officiating will be the Rev. Marvin Raymond.

Surviving are his widow, Mildred, nee Haas; a son, Calvin (Louise) of Connecticut; a daughter, Mrs. Karen (John) Austin of Wheeling; four grandchildren, and two brothers, Martin (Ruby) of Oak Park and Paul (Genevieve) Cordulack of Western Springs, Ill.

Family requests contributions to the American Heart Assn., would be appreciated.

Win at bridge

Correct play needs analysis

The "C" in ARCH stands for Count your winners and losers. Sometimes the total doesn't come to 13. Thus you can count 11 winners after the spade opening. Two in spades and three in each other suit. The three in clubs come from the "R" for Review the bidding which marks East with the queen of that suit as part of his opening bid.

When you count losers you are looking at two aces and three spades for a total of five losers. This makes a total of 18 tricks. A further study shows that if you win the first trick with your ace of spades over East's king you will knock out one of East's aces. He will lead back a spade. West will let you win that trick. Then when you knock out the other ace, the three spade tricks will be taken against you before you can score your own tricks.

Now you come to the "H" or How can I make this hand?

The answer is you can make it by changing your count of both winners and losers. Obviously, when you analyze the lead you assume that West has led fourth best of a five-card suit headed by the king or queen. Your Review of the bidding marks East with both aces. Thus, you let East hold the first spade and West the second one. Now the defense has two spade tricks, but can't get a third. You have time to knock out both aces and make your contract.

'AM America' to drop Edwards as host: source

NEW YORK — Stephanie Edwards, TV's Little Miss Lollipop, is being dropped as the hostess of "AM America," ABC's new morning show, well-informed broadcasting sources say.

In other news, sources said ABC's "The Reasoner Report," with Harry Reasoner, will be canceled and replaced by either a new show or a Saturday network news program. When asked to confirm the cancellation, a spokesman for ABC News had "no comment."

In Washington, ABC declined to pick up new contracts for correspondents Bill Gill and Virginia Sherwood. In New York, sources said Steve Skinner, of KGO-San Francisco, will take up the daily duties of running ABC's evening news.

And in the ever-changing world of next year's TV schedules, sources said NBC again will juggle its fall lineup — the second time within a week. A source at ABC said his network also might make some changes in its schedule, tentatively announced Friday. CBS said the network was "standing pat."

MISS EDWARDS, a well-placed source close to ABC said, will be married soon and will move to Los Angeles where she will take up duties with "AM America" on the West Coast.

Another source said ABC probably will say Miss Edwards did not like Television in review by Frank S. Swertlow

New York and simply has decided to return to California. However, the source said, Miss Edwards was being dropped with the hopes of improving the ratings.

THE REMOVAL OF Miss Edwards comes as no surprise. "AM America," after more trumpeting than Cleopatra entering Rome, stumbled onto the reveille ratings race last January to vie with NBC's "Today" and the "CBS Morning News."

Despite the hosannas, "AM" hasn't clicked — it is third — and a series of behind-the-scenes changes were made to strengthen the falling show. Miss Edwards is the first major on-the-air personality to be moved, and it seems she is being made the scapegoat for the poor showing.

In many respects, Miss Edwards' departure is not totally her fault. Although she was not a reporter, she was handed the job of being an interviewer, a position in which she seemed uncomfortable. And she was competing against "Today's" Barbara Walters, an established news personality.

Gas is harmless to people

Halon 1301—proven fire-stopper

IT'S A GAS . . . Halon 1301 is used through a $10,000 fire-extinguisher system in the computer room at Chemplex, Rolling Meadows. The gas puts out surface flames but does not damage equipment or harm employees.

by NANCY COWGER
The Chemplex Co., Rolling Meadows, has just spent $10,000 for a fire-extinguishing system in a 30-by-30-foot computer room, and it does not know what makes the extinguisher work.

The manufacturers, E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., don't know either. Nobody really does, said Elmer Franklyn, engineering administrator and project engineer for Chemplex. But they do know Halon 1301 is the best product Chemplex has found.

Halon 1301 is a colorless gas. Released in an enclosed area where there is a surface fire, it extinguishes the blaze in minutes, does not deprive any occupants of the area of precious oxygen.

THE GAS DOES not poison the occupant, as a chemical foam might; it doesn't get him wet, as a sprinkler would; it doesn't pose any threat to anything except the fire. And unless the fire is deep-seated, behind a wall, inside couch cushions, or smoldering in stacks of paper, it puts the fire out. No fuss, no muss and minimal damage, said Franklyn.

Chemplex demonstrated its new system recently for company executives, insurance carriers and the persons who will work in that fairly small room — the ones who will breathe the gas if a fire ever prompts its use.

A computer operator works in the room full time. Programmers are in and out all day long. The computer center houses a complexity of highly sophisticated equipment. Two vaults holding irreplaceable computer tapes are stored in the room.

A fire there could be tragic. Even if no lives were lost, the expense to the company in loss of records, damage to equipment and loss of time cannot be underestimated, said Don Fullerton, Chemplex's cost accounting supervisor and head of the company emergency squad.

OTHER extinguishing systems are not appropriate for computer centers, with their sensitive machinery and high voltage electrical gear. Sprinklers, foams and powders can destroy computers; carbon dioxide kills people.

Halon 1301 is more expensive by far than any of the other systems, said

Franklyn. Beyond the installation cost, every time it is used it will cost Chemplex $1,200 to recharge the spherical canisters of gas. Once the system is activated, it cannot be turned off.

Halon 1301 also has proven effective in Air Force planes and on racing cars. Some telephone company installations use it, Franklyn said.

Halon 1301 is not enough protection on its own, Franklyn said. As long as the gas pervades a room, the fire will be out. If the concentration falls below 5 per cent, perhaps as doors are opened to rescue occupants, the fire could rekindle, depending on its cause.

THE SYSTEM is tied into a larger one with backup on backup to guard against mechanical or human failure.

Smoke detectors scattered around the room set off the system. When one detector is activated, an alarm is sounded and a light mounted on the wall outside the room goes on. Air conditioning to the room is turned off and personnel in the room are to dial a telephone number summoning the company emergency squad.

The gas is not discharged until a second smoke detector is activated. In that event, a horn flashes on a switchboard fire alarm panel, the building fire alarm rings and calls the Rolling Meadows Fire Dept. The switchboard operator instructs personnel on evacuation over the public address system. All electrical power to the computer room is turned off, and the Halon 1301 is discharged through nozzles in the computer room and under the floor.

The firm supplies engineering and technical services to industrial and government clients. .

Savings, loan gets charter for branch

A federal charter has been approved for a branch of North West Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Chicago near the New Wilke Road-Algonquin Road intersection.

Edward Eckert, supervising agent for the Federal Home Loan Bank, said his agency's Chicago office has been told of the approval, and written notice could be received by the end of this week.

A site for the branch has not been chosen. It could be on the north side of Algonquin Road in Arlington Heights or on the south side in Rolling Meadows, said Robert Kaponek, North West marketing vice president.

The association has not decided whether it will begin operations from a temporary location, while construction is under way, or wait to open its doors until a permanent structure is ready for occupancy, said Kaponek. It is "leaning toward a temporary" facility, he said.

Officials of Isenstein-Parker Development Co. said last fall a portion of its property south of Algonquin on both sides of New Wilke was being considered, by the Savings and Loan.

Buying an air conditioner?

There's one number you should know besides the price.

Before you choose an air conditioner, ask the dealer for its energy efficiency ratio. This number tells you the efficiency of a unit. An air conditioner with an EER number of 8 or above will be thrifty for you electrically.

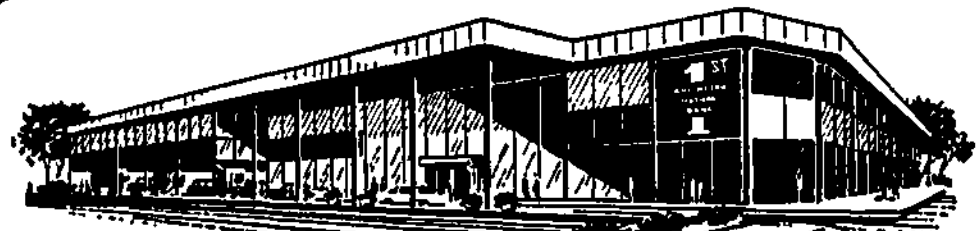

The EER number is computed by dividing the BTUs by the watts. A 12,000-BTU unit that uses 1500 watts will rate an 8. If the EER doesn't appear on the tag or metal nameplate, use this simple formula yourself. It's a worthwhile exercise that can pay off in electric dollar savings over the long run. Don't buy too much capacity. Surprisingly, an air conditioner that's too big usually won't keep you as comfortable as a smaller unit.

So measure the space to be cooled before you go to the dealer. Also note any doors that might let cool air escape, or windows that might let direct sunlight in. The dealer will have charts to translate your notes into the right air conditioner selection.

It makes a lot of sense to buy an air conditioner that starts efficient and stays efficient. And saving energy always makes sense.

Virg... paint brush in hand, what else?

It hasn't been one year since Virg Carter became the new Darling of Chicago Sports. All the dice were coming up sevens or eights for Carter, top-salaried quarterback of the Fire, one logical alternative.

On the side, there was a men's fashion modeling stint and even more lucrative, a spot on WLS-TV's crazy comedy evening news.

All that is gone.

"This is the first off-season I can't be involved in much of anything and it's more legal than by desire," said Carter who has virtually disappeared from public view. "I've been painting the house."

Twenty-nine-year-old Virg Carter, the computer analyst who once programmed some unkind words for then Bears head coach Jim Dooley in 1969, is currently unemployed.

Carter hasn't drawn a paycheck since December. When Virg Carter shaves, those are unemployed whiskers which get chopped off. Whiskers without a job. It's all so scary in these troubled times.

But the problem is not one of Carter's choosing. The whole confusing saga pertains to what Carter terms the "Origer situation."

That, of course, would mean Tom Origer who always wanted to own a professional football team... until he finally got the chance.

The Fire. They/It were Origer's dream last summer. They/It would be the model world Football League franchise. Gary Davidson, founder-owner-commissioner-ripoff artist, said Chicago would epitomize the WFL.

"We needed just one strong, aggressive, intelligent owner to lead the way, to show the rest of the owners how to get things done," Davidson was quoted. "From the beginning, I knew Tom Origer would be that kind of man."

But Origer would also discuss whether defensive coordinator Jim Crossland should be axed during a party at which the press or most anyone else could listen. That's hardly a fair shake.

And Origer was the man who ran away at season's end. He didn't even play the final game because, what-the-hell, it didn't mean beans. The Fire had proven it could lose on any field... why keep drilling the point home?

So down went Origer... and with that, Carter's problems really began.

Carter has a three-year "personal services" contract with Origer. He's not linked to the World Football League or any of its teams. He's bound to Origer. How tightly, a court will probably determine.

VIRG CARTER

Mike Klein
Staff Sportswriter

"He can assign me as a football player to his team," Carter explained. "The contract (fashioned by Chicago lawyer Arthur Morse) clearly defines I don't work for him (Origer) as a construction worker or condominium salesman. It's only related to his team, playing and promotion."

But wait, Tom Origer, who's made his money in housing, doesn't have a football team.

"That's an interesting question," said Carter. "It's our position that it was his choice not to continue (with the Fire), irrelevant to the fact that he has a contract with me and the rights therein provide for payment."

So what Carter wants is about $200,000 which would pay off the last two-thirds of a three-year pact.

John Lizzo, a Morse associate, won't even say if there's a court date with Origer. "There have been things done but that's about as far as I'd be willing to go," said Lizzo.

"It jeopardizes the chance for progress when people use the newspapers as a forum."

Origer's office said he's out of town this week.

Carter can look down three avenues but hasn't the power to make a choice. The options are: A) Another try somewhere in the WFL; B) A return to the National Football League where San Diego owns his rights; and C) Quitting the game entirely.

After breaking his hand last summer, a point at which the Fire began going downhill, Carter moved in with the WLS-TV sports team. He'd pursue a television career, except for that "personal services" contract with Origer.

"It got the point where those activities may have jeopardized my contract with Tom, so I couldn't pursue them," Carter explained.

Virg admits, "I haven't talked to Tom since the first of this year."

There's also been no dickerings with Gene Pullano, the Park Ridge investor who says he'll assume new WFL reins in Chicago if Joe Namath comes along.

Asked whether WFL officials have been in touch, Carter responded, "Let me just say yes, without elaborating." As the Fire's player representative, Carter's attended some WFL meetings and read the so-called "Hemmeter Plan" for survival.

"I guess I'm impressed with the prospect they'll be successful. It'll be a crawl-before-they-run approach, which should have happened last year," Carter said.

"These guys are businessmen, not hustlers and promoters. They've carefully evaluated their position. It (the old WFL) was a classical example in sport that the players should have insured themselves against the owners."

The NFL San Diego Chargers stumbled to a 5-9 record last fall behind two quarterbacks named Dan Fouts and Jesse Freitas. "We've had conversations," Carter said. "Let's just say they're being bogged down by legal problems."

Then there's the option every player faces one day: Carter could quit the game.

"It's something Judy (his wife) and I have wrestled with for five or six months," Virg said. "We've done several about-faces. I'm not proposing what direction I'll eventually choose, but I've got to make a decision before too much longer."

Even if television doesn't pan out, Judy's father (George Green), and Virg are majority stockholders in a Los Angeles-based company which manufactures aluminum sliding doors and windows.

The Carters could move West, be it for football in San Diego or aluminum doors in Los Angeles.

But one point is very clear: Virg Carter is going no place and won't be drawing any paychecks until his little matter of "personal services" with Origer is wiped clean.

Until then, Virg is stuck with his paint brush in one hand and Tom Origer in the other. Or is it vice-versa?

Arlington collects eighth win; Conant stumbles in South, 2-0

A Herald Staff Report

Arlington continues to fly high in the North, but there's company for Conant now at the top of the red-hot South scramble. In Mid-Suburban League baseball.

In a full slate of league action Tuesday Arlington won for the eighth time to maintain its two-game advantage over Buffalo Grove, also a winner.

Conant suffered a 2-0 loss to Fremd and fell into a tie for the South Lead with Rolling Meadows. The leaders each stand at 5-3.

CARDS RALLY FOR WIN

A big-seven-run outburst in the seventh inning pulled Arlington out of the hole and they went on to trip Prospect 10-8 on a clutch single by John Vukovich in the eighth inning.

It was victory number eight in ten loop outings for the North Division-leading Cardinals and veteran Card Twirler Dar Townsend went the route to gain the decision. His chances of winning were anything but bright after the hosting Knights, behind the pitching of George Savage, had forged a 6-1 lead through the first six innings of play.

But Prospect was forced into a game of catch-up after the Cards stung four Knight hurlers for seven tallies in the seventh. Vukovich triggered that rally too when he was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded.

Late on Matt Spitt and Mike May-erick chipped in with two-run singles to knot the game at 6-6 and May-erick's hit was overthrown back from the outfield, allowing the go-ahead run to cross home. A final run also came home on an error.

Prospect had initially jumped in front 2-0. Laddie Janda and Dave Landes contributing RBI singles to a third-stanza rally. In the fifth Chuck Weego singled and raced home on Paul Baranowski's double to make it 4-0 and after the guests had taken one run back Prospect added two more to their cause in the sixth on Mike Lap-covich's base rap.

The Knights also scored two in the seventh to send the game into overtime. Scott Hotherington drilling a two-run single with the bases loaded. Then Townsend doubled to open the top of the eighth off fifth Knight pitcher Mike Quade and a subsequent single and stolen base by Brett Frase brought Vukovich to the plate to produce the game-winning hit.

FREM TOPS CONANT

Fremd combined pitching, defense and timely hitting to defeat hosting Conant, 2-0.

Viking pitcher Jim Recher helped himself by doubling against the fence in the second. He scored on a single by Jeff Schroeder. An insurance run came across in the sixth after catcher's interference — Jim Van Meter scoring. It was Fremd's fifth win in nine MSL tries.

Recher bested Conant hurler Bill Anderson, two-hitting the Cougars. The Vikings provided some superb defensive plays behind him. In the seventh, catcher Kerry Field picked off a Cougar at second base. Then Shortstop Jeff Schroeder and second baseman Mike Mertes teamed up for a double play with Mertes' throw just nipping the runner at first.

Earlier in the game, third baseman Carl DePaolis dove to knock down a liner and threw out the runner.

Conant, now 5-3 in the South Division, threatened in the first, fourth and fifth innings. Each time, however, Recher and his teammates escaped trouble.

The Cougars also had a pair of fine defensive plays — a diving catch by left fielder Don Sibrava and a strong throw by shortstop Joe Calomino from behind second base.

BISON CLIP FALCONS

Buffalo Grove parlayed three infield hits and four errors by Forest View for a four-run eighth inning and an 8-4 victory over the host Falcons. The win gives the Bison a 6-4 record in the MSL North.

Pat Fiddler led off the eighth with an infield single off Falcon starter Keith Mallian. After John Arnold reached safety on an error, Mallian was replaced on the mound by Jim Gihlin. A perfect bunt single by winning pitcher Rick Brismade loaded the bases before Mike Ledna bounced a base hit off the shortstop's glove for the go-ahead run.

Brismade gained the win with four innings of relief work, permitting just one hit and a single unearned run.

The Falcons (4-5) had battled from a 4-1 deficit to tie the game in the fifth inning when three Bison hurlers walked five consecutive batters. Buffalo Grove starter Tim Tatge, who allowed just one hit through the first four frames, ran into control trouble in the fifth and before Brismade put the fire out, Forest View had tied the score. Chris Hanson walked with the bags loaded, Keith Kellar drove in another run of the inning came home on third run of the inning came home on an error.

Forest View's run in the fourth scored on Neil Schmidt's infield single, a walk, an error, and another bases-loaded walk to Dave Fulton. Buffalo Grove's hitting heroes were Mark Dentler, who had three hits, two doubles and an RBI, Tony Spinnelle, who rapped a first-inning single to drive in a run, and Ledna, whose two hits included a double plus two runs scored.

MUSTANGS BUCK HUSKIES

Bob Schmidt and Bob Foringer combined pitching talents to throttle Hershey on just three singles as Rolling Meadows romped to a 10-0 walk.

Schmidt worked the first five innings in near flawless fashion yielding hits to Hershey's Tom Barnard and Gary Hart. The big righthander walked only one and fanned three.

Foringer took over and completed the shutout as Dave Carey's single in the sixth was the only blemish over the final two frames. Foringer walked a batter and struck out four.

The Mustangs backed the superb pitching with a bolsterous eight-hit attack including at least one in every inning off Huskie starter Bob Huber and reliever Dan Stoltz who mopped up in the final inning.

Tom Baugh doubled home a pair in a four-run first inning for Rolling Meadows and Dave Bell singled in two more in the second stanza as the Mustangs jumped on top, 6-0.

Schmidt got into the RBI act in the third with a sacrifice fly, the Mustangs worked a double steal in the fourth for another run and Scott Green's second straight two-base hit drove home the ninth run in the fifth. Meadows capped the scoring on Schmidt's run-producing single in the sixth.

HOFFMAN WINS, 4-0

Ray Gawron spread out six hits and did not issue a walk in posting his fourth victory and his second shutout of the season at the expense of hosting Wheeling, leading Hoffman Estates to a 4-0 triumph.

The Hawks tallied once in the second inning and added a couple of insurance runs in the third off Wildcat hurler Keith Pecka and moved back up over the 500 mark to 5-4 while losing the Wildcats their fourth setback in eight tries.

Pecka, who was also shooting for his fourth winning verdict, allowed the decisive run to come across himself when he slipped on the turf in the second frame as Hoffman Estates went with a suicide squeeze. Earl Hausl had walked to lead off the inning and Gawron's single coupled with a miscue set the stage for the score.

Then Tom Schmaltz bunted up toward the mound and Hausl came across when Pecka was unable to make the play.

Four singles broke the game open for the visitors in the second Rick Lindow, Joe Gajewski, Joe Parille and Randy Brown all drilled out hits to produce two more runs. The Hawks later added a fourth tally in the fifth on a walk to Brown and a single by Wayne Jackson that was bobbled in center, allowing Brown to score from first.

Gawron fanned seven in upping his record to 4-1. Pecka now sports a 3-1 slate.

HUGHES STRONG-ARMS GRENS

Palatine's Rob Hughes sprinkled nine Elk Grove hits through seven innings and helped out with a three run homer to lead the Pirates to a 7-1 MSL win over the Grens Tuesday.

Hughes worked fast through the quick game that lasted just over an hour, fanning seven although Elk Grove collected hits in all but one inning.

The Grens' only run in the second inning, giving them a short-lived 1-0 lead, when centerfielder George Kengott poked a home run over the right field fence Kengott finished up a perfect day with singles in his next two at bats.

Palatine got to Elk Grove starter Bob Ray for runs in the second, fourth and sixth innings. Mike Pircher and Garth Chase drove in a pair in the second and Hughes' homer keyed the three-run fourth.

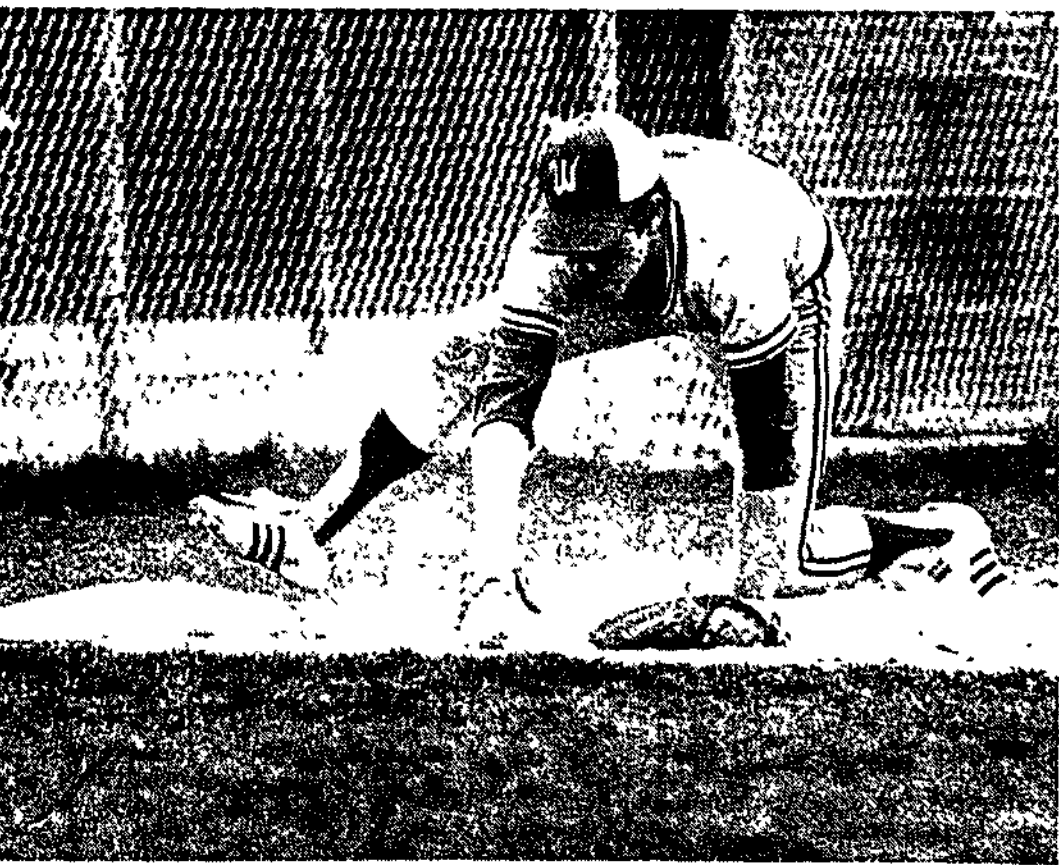

In the two-run sixth Jeff Williams led off the inning by jacking a long homer onto the roof of the swimming pool shower house.

The win moved Palatine ahead of the game at 5-4 while Elk Grove slipped deeper into the South Division cellar at 2-8.

Three league teams record net victories

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Tennis Editor

Rolling Meadows, Buffalo Grove and Wheeling posted Mid-Suburban League dual meet tennis victories Tuesday while Hersey went outside the league to handle Woodstock.

The Rolling Meadows Mustangs took both doubles matches as well as two of three singles matches to hand Elk Grove a 4-1 defeat.

Elk Grove's Ken Algozin took the Grenadiers' only point at third singles with a 7-6, 6-1 win over Jeff Jay. Bill Siebold, at first singles, took Chuck Fischer into three sets before falling 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

Buffalo Grove lost the first singles match but recovered to decision Conant 3-2. Orson Faynor picked up the Cougars first point when he thumped Jack Swackl at first singles by a 6-0, 6-2 score.

Tim Kane and Bill Christensen won singles matches for Buffalo Grove. Ed Buettner and Bob Bousman won Conant's other point at first doubles by a 3-6, 7-6, 6-2 score.

Kent Karr of Hoffman Estates won the first singles match from Sean Folkes for one of the Hawks points in a 3-2 loss to Wheeling.

Wheeling coach Bruce Swanson, coming off a loss to Buffalo Grove, shuffled his lineup and broke up the combinations he had been using most of the season. The experiment worked, especially at the doubles matches where Wheeling picked up two points.

Hersey got singles points from Keith Hayner and Paul Juranek to record a 4-1 nonconference win over Woodstock.

Rayner won 6-0, 6-1 at first singles and Juranek 6-3, 6-2 at third singles.

In a nonconference match played earlier Rolling Meadows took a 5-2 loss from Glenbrook South. Meadows got their points from Brad Weber at second singles and Jeff Jay at third singles.

Lile's bat helps Harper sweep

Rigg Lile went 6-for-7 at the plate, including a key run scoring single, as Harper swept a pair of Skyway Conference baseball games from Lake County.

In the opener, starting pitcher Dave Patterson was on the losing end of a 4-3 duel when Lile came to the plate in the bottom of the seventh inning.

He rapped out a single to drive in Dave Zarc with the run that sent the contest into overtime.

Three innings later, with Patterson still on the mound holding Lake County off the board, the Hawks loaded the bases on walks and won the game 5-1 when Dave Mills singled to cap a 2-for-3 game.

Tim Domek was the story in the second game as he pitched his best game of the year. The Conant graduate allowed one run in the first inning then set Lake County down from there for a 6-1 win that pushed Harper's season record to 13-7.

Domek's four hit gem included four strikeouts and a walk.

Lile continued his fine hitting in the second game, going 2-for-2. Patterson, playing as a designated hitter, went 2-for-4. Mills was 3-for-7 for the whole day as was Greg Flak.

Western winner budding star

Tom Watson of Kansas City, who will defend his Western Open golf championship June 26-29 at Butler National Golf Club, is consistently indicating he deserves ranking as one of golf's top stars of the future. In his first year on the tour he won $31,081. Then, in 1973, he picked up $74,973. In 1974 the little, but long-hitting star, won $133,474 to rank 10th on the money list and in the current season, through the Masters, he had some $30,000 in his golf prize account.

MANAGEMENT
EXECUTIVE RECRUITER ENTRY LEVEL
We aren't going to tell you a lot of different stories about how easy the job is or that you can make $25,000 in your first year. What we are going to say is — If you want a job that offers hard work, a job with a challenge, a job where you can earn from $12-$15,000 the first year, then a discussion of your future and our business would be worthwhile. We promise nothing but hard work, long hours, and self-achieved monetary rewards. If you have a sincere desire to succeed and the aggressiveness to achieve results then you're the type of person we would like to talk to. Please call Mr. Stanton at 392-2525

Juvenile diabetes

It's everyone's baby

by ELEANOR RIVES

Parents fighting for the lives of their children are a powerful force.

Such parents are combing the northwest suburbs during May disseminating facts about juvenile diabetes and soliciting funds for important research that may be the key to saving their kids from the devastating complications of the disease.

When you're approached, don't look the other way. Juvenile diabetes is everybody's baby.

There are at least 10 million diabetics in the United States today. Those with adult onset diabetes usually control their condition with pills, diet or a combination of the two. Those with juvenile diabetes, the severest form, must have daily insulin injections.

BECAUSE OF the hereditary character of this disease, probably one-fourth of the population — some 50 million people — though not diabetics themselves, are carriers of diabetes.

Parents of juvenile diabetics know only too well that insulin injections prolong a diabetic's life, but do not save him from complications. They know that diabetes progressively destroys blood vessels and leads to kidney failure. They know that diabetes is the leading cause of new blindness in the United States today. They know that one-half of all heart attacks, three-fourths of all strokes and five of every six amputations that occur, occur to diabetics.

That's pretty strong motivation to get out and do something! Especially when promising research lies just over the horizon, impeded only by lack of sufficient funding.

THE JUVENILE Diabetes Foundation (JDF) is currently conducting an extensive public education and fund-raising program throughout the United States. In Illinois, Gov. Daniel Walker has proclaimed May 1975 as Juvenile Diabetes month, urging all citizens to assist in combating disease.

Each northwest suburb is designating its own JDF day, the day when canister-carrying diabetics, parents of diabetics, even school chums of diabetics, will take up posts at stores and shopping centers and canvass door-to-door.

"This is the big push," said Clarence Weardahl of Mount Prospect, area chairman of the JDF drive and president-elect of Northwest Chapter of JDF, which is endorsed by the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

"THE GOAL OF our chapter is to raise $50,000 for the fiscal year ending July 1. We have already raised half of that. And we will raise the other half — we must!"

The JDF is just emerging from its formative years. Founded in 1970 in Philadelphia by the mother of a diabetic child, its focus has consistently been on research — finding a cure, not just a control. Today its members number tens of thousands in 50 chapters from coast to coast.

The Chicago JDF Chapter was first formed in Mount Prospect in 1973 with a nucleus of about 20 parents. Since then its growth has been staggering. It has divided into two chapters, Northwest and Southwest, with a total of about 350 families.

EQUALLY staggering is the vehemence and drive of its members. In its first year of operation, 1973-74, chapter members raised $35,000, of which only 4.6 per cent went for operating expenses. Local chapters are completely volunteer, with donated office space and unpaid staff.

To meet this year's goal of $50,000 Northwest Chapter has had a giant houseware sale, a square dance, a baseball game, has participated in community fairs and has gratefully accepted contributions from the Mount Prospect Lions, Northwest Suburban Chi Omega Alumni, Junior Women's Clubs of Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Elk Grove Village, various businessmen and others.

Members also constantly pursue individual projects on behalf of JDF — such as garage sales, coffees, sewing and selling doll clothes and stuffed animals — in addition to paying their $10 annual dues.

THE JDF IS NOT affiliated with any other diabetes organization. Its fund-raising drive last May was the first nationwide diabetes fund drive ever conducted in this country. In 1973-74, the national JDF awarded $409,000 to diabetes research, a full 83 per cent of all monies collected. An additional percentage went to education for both diabetics and the public.

Federal funding for diabetes is the smallest amount of any allocated to the major diseases. A branch of the National Institute of Health recently announced that research allocations for diabetes would probably be cut drastically at least until 1978.

MRS. EDWIN DUCAT, national president of JDF, echoed the rage, frustration and disappointment of thousands of persons vitally concerned with the progress of such research. She wrote, in part:

"... Can you tell me how to break this news to the eighteen-year-old on a kidney machine who probably won't be here for the 1978 allocation? ... Explain the allocation to the mother of a two-year-old with diabetes who finds herself in an ambulance on an average of once a month with a convulsive child in insulin shock.

"Tell me how to explain the allocation problem to my own son who takes two needles a day, has taken 10,000 injections in his short lifetime, takes my hand and says, 'Mom, I sure do hope you get a break in research soon; there's not a spot left on my body not sore from injections.'"

AREA RESIDENTS needn't wait until diabetes touches them to be touched by the plight of the diabetic. They can help in many ways:

- Contribute money for research;
- Interest the club or organization to which they belong in supporting JDF;
- Give time and energy helping in the May drive;
- Schedule JDF speakers to address groups;
- Write to congressmen urging them to support more federal funding for diabetes research.

Clarence Weardahl may be reached at 296-6235. She'll gladly channel the help of any and all.

"CANNING" for funds for the year-old diabetics. Mrs. Henry Juvenile Diabetes Foundation is serious business for Patsy Parlow and Mark Katzenberger, both 13-14.

Name change a simple procedure

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Dear Attorney Martoccio,

Any information you can give me will be appreciated. My question is: am I legally married to my husband of 34 years? As a youngster I never liked my first name so decided to change it on my first job.

When I married 34 years ago, I used my "new name" on my application for a marriage license. Years later my mother mailed my birth certificate to me and on it I discovered my last name was misspelled. So now I feel that I am not even legally married with not only my own change of first name but also a misspelled last name.

My husband tells me an affidavit would be all I'll need to state that I am the same person. But for pension and Social Security benefits soon to come, I fear an affidavit won't prove I am the same person. Will it? Thank you for your answer. — M.K.

Dear M. K.,

Please let me assure you. You are worrying needlessly. You were, are and will always be legally married "till death" or divorce severs the bonds of matrimony. Marriage is between persons, not between "names."

Names are technicalities and not conditions necessary to make a binding marriage contract.

The law looks so favorably upon the marriage state that it does everything in its power to keep the knot securely tied. For example, in a case where a woman wanted an annulment because her husband said he was a millionaire and he was not, in another where the bride said she was "pure as the driven snow and undefiled" and she was not, where even, (in some states) the couple had somehow escaped the V.D. tests, the courts held that the marriages were indeed still valid!

"It is not wise," the court said, "to defeat social order for the orderliness in method." Therefore you did not invalidate your marriage simply because you chose (without any intention of representing another or creating a means of defrauding another) a name you preferred over your own.

You also have the right in other situations to use any name you wish without having to go through any legal steps to acquire it. The law is so liberal on this point that it permits a person the use of any number of names. Suppose, for example, you are a writer, musician, poet, actor. You may use four different names, one for each talent you wish to express. In other words, whatever name (or names) you use (with good intentions) is your name.

Unless the misspelling is so radically different from your own name and bears no resemblance to it whatsoever, you should have no problem. Mere misspelling does not alter the fact that it is legally your own name. You shouldn't have any problem at your Social Security office either.

However, for your own peace of mind why don't you call or visit the Bureau of Vital Statistics, 130 N. Wells St., Chicago, 443-7780? They will tell you how you can go about correcting the information with them.

If you should ever decide to change your name legally, however, the procedure is quite simple. A petition is filed in the Circuit Court. (You are eligible in Illinois if you have been a resident for six months.) It may include your spouse and unmarried adults in your family with their consent, also minor children where it appears to the court that the same is for their interest. Your name before and after must appear in the petition and the notice of application placed in some newspaper (where you live) for three consecutive weeks.

To determine whether the petitioner is seeking to change her name for the purpose of defrauding others (such as dodging creditors) the judge may ask her why she wishes to adopt the new name. Under these circumstances you may find yourself in a position similar to that of another petitioner who appeared before a judge and said, "Your honor, I want to change my name. My name is Joe Perterpatione."

"Well, I certainly don't blame you," the judge said. "And what would you like it changed to?"

"John Perterpatione, your honor. I'm getting tired of everyone saying, 'Hello, Joe, what do you know?'"

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martoccio's column is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

CARNATION corsages created by Nancy Gattorna, Marilyn Wojcik, Judy Melind and other members of Elk Grove Village Jayceettes will be sold Saturday at Park 'N Shop, Turner Plaza, Devon Market and Hennings Decorating Center in Elk Grove. The Jayceettes will also sell plants. Buffalo Grove Garden Club will be selling corsages Saturday at Ranch Mart Shopping Center and Buffalo Grove Mall, and Twin Acres Chapter of ORT will be selling plants Thursday and Friday in the Ranch Mart. Women of Trinity Lutheran Church, Rolling Meadows, are taking orders for corsages and plants which can be picked up at the church Saturday morning. Orders may be phoned to 253-3259 or 392-8879.

Free maps

by KAY MARSH

Someone has defined middle age as remembering when service stations used to give away glasses and dishes and sponsor games and contests to encourage you to buy your gas from them. The stations also used to give away endless numbers of free road maps, but of late supplies are apt to be sparse and often incomplete.

If you're planning vacation travel this summer, one small but important detail you can take care of now is obtaining the maps you need for your trip. Good maps can help you get wherever you're going safer and faster, and on considerably less gas. Moreover, maps of cities or vacation areas can contribute greatly to your knowledge and enjoyment of your travels.

Where can you get good free maps?

STATE HIGHWAY departments are one source of up-to-date maps for individual states. Each state also has a department of tourism or development that will send you not only maps but also literature on tourist attractions and accommodations. Another good source of free material is state or city chambers of commerce. Airlines, too, often offer maps and guides for major cities.

However, one of the best sources of free maps and travel information is the oil companies' touring information centers. While most of the major oil companies offer a similar service, I happen to be familiar with (and can recommend) two: the Texaco Travel Service and the Exxon Touring Service.

The Texaco Travel Service is at 135 E. 42nd St., New York, N.Y. 10017. There's also an office in Chicago, at 312 S. Michigan Ave. The address to write for information from Exxon is Exxon Touring Service, P. O. Box 2180, Houston, Tex. 77001. You can simply write requesting marked maps, or you can pick up route request cards at your local service station.

THESE TRAVEL services will plan your route for you, sending you marked maps in a handy plastic map wallet to help you keep your maps and other travel information together.

You can, if you like, ask for a scenic route. Otherwise, your trip will be planned using the most direct, energy-saving route.

The travel services can often help with other travel problems, too. Exxon offers a 40-page "Touring Tips" booklet "with handy mileage charts, an expense log and pages of helpful information for your motor trip." The last kit I received from Texaco (for a trip to Florida) included several motel directories as well as an official directory from the Florida Hotel & Motel Association.

While it's not free, you might also want to check your retailer for a Texaco Road Atlas. This Rand McNally publication includes a wealth of information on points of interest and other travel subjects as well as 70 pages of current maps, all in a handy-for-travel 8½ by 11-inch page size.

If your vacation plans include a trip by boat, you may also be interested in knowing that Texaco offers cruising charts, too, through its Waterways Service. Charts are available for U. S. coastal waters, as well as for New York State Waterways and Barge Canal, and the Great Lakes, Mississippi River and the Ohio River.

A TYPICAL "Cruising Kit" will include not only the charts you request, but also such helpful items as a Deviation Card and instructions for compass adjusting plus a form for your Navigator's Cruise Plan. All this material, too, comes in a plastic kit, attractively imprinted with star maps.

While the oil company travel services pride themselves on prompt service, it does take a reasonable amount of time to get maps and information back from them, or from chambers of commerce, highway departments and other sources.

Whenever and wherever you write, you'll find that good maps and travel information can play an important part in helping you and yours enjoy this year's vacation.

They can also save you time, gas and money.

Newlyweds met at work

Mr. and Mrs. Robin Netzel

A romance that started when Rebecca McIntyre and Robin J. Netzel were on the staff of the former Lost and Found Coffee House in Arlington Heights culminated in their marriage April 12 in Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church.

Rebecca is the daughter of the Gerald McIntyres of Mount Prospect and is a graduate of Prospect High. Robin's parents are the Richard Mahoney of Rolling Meadows, and he graduated from Forest View High.

After attending Olivet Nazarene College, Kankakee, Rebecca now works for Multigraphics, Mount Prospect, and her husband is with Mohawk Data Sciences, Oak Brook.

THEIR DOUBLE ring, candlelight ceremony was performed at 4:30 p.m. with a music group, Living Hope, providing the music. A buffet supper followed in the church hall.

For her wedding the bride chose a white silk gown appliqued in Alencon lace that was embroidered with seed pearls. A Camelot lace cap held her lace-edged veil, and she carried a cascade of white roses, stephanotis and ivy.

Her four attendants were gowned alike in Jade green peau de sole trimmed in white lace and carried yellow pompons and white daisies.

LYNN LEXBY, Arlington Heights, was maid of honor, and Sharon Schutt, the bride's cousin from Clearwater, Fla., and Sue McClurg and Mary Lynn Robin, both of Mount Prospect, were bridesmaids.

The groom was attended by Robert Nash, Mount Prospect, as best man and ushers Dan Bambuck, Hoffman Estates; Mike Muehlfeldt, Rolling Meadows; Richard Rutelski, Arlington Heights; Gordon Moore, Wheaton; and the couple's brothers, Mike and Rick Netzel and Craig McIntyre.

After the wedding festivities the newlyweds left for a week in Jamaica and are living in Mount Prospect.

Prettyman-Smart rite a family affair

Eight brothers and sisters of an Elk Grove Village pair stood at the altar with them for their April 12 wedding. The bride was Gloria J. Prettyman, daughter of the Robert Prettymans, and the groom, Richard L. Smart, son of the Richard D. Smarts.

The groom's sister Pamela, who played matchmaker in getting the couple to meet, was maid of honor and the bride's sisters, Judy and Marianne, were bridesmaids, along with Donna Vom Brack, Hoffman Estates.

Standing with the groom as best man was his brother Michael, while his younger brother Steven served as an usher along with the bride's brothers, Robert and Gary. Ring bearer was the bride's 9-year-old brother David.

THE CEREMONY took place at 4 p.m. in Queen of the Rosary Church, Elk Grove, with music provided by the church choir. A dinner reception followed at Nordic Hills Country Club for 157 guests.

Gloria's wedding gown was of white nylon chiffon trimmed with Alencon lace studded with pearls and rhinestones. Her veil, edged with matching lace and held by a lace headpiece, flowed the length of the gown's cathedral train. Her bouquet was colonial style of mixed blooms.

THE BRIDAL attendants' gowns had a yellow voile halter top and green, yellow and white plaid skirt and jacket. The maid of honor carried a bouquet in the three colors; the bridesmaids carried yellow bouquets.

After a two-week honeymoon on the west coast, the couple is living in Hoffman Estates. Both work in Elk Grove, Gloria for Commercial Machine Works and her husband for Dalmac Co. She is an Elk Grove High School graduate of '73. He served six years in the Marine Corps.

Valerie Zachwieja, groom plan '76 trip to Poland

Valerie Zachwieja and her bridegroom, Stan Burkat, honeymooned at the Play Boy Club in Lake Geneva, but in the summer of '76 they plan to visit with the groom's mother in Poland.

Valerie is the daughter of Mrs. Jeannette Zachwieja, Arlington Heights, and the late Walter Zachwieja, and Stan is the son of Mrs. Helen Burkat, Warsaw, and the late Walter Burkat. The bridegroom's parents formerly resided in Chicago retiring to Poland, and the couple's marriage, originally set for Feb. 4, was postponed until April 11 after Stan was called to Poland on the death of his father.

The wedding was held in St. James Church, Arlington Heights, with Valerie's brother, Greg of DeKalb, giving her in marriage. Her cousin, Mary Ann Kuffel, Chicago, was maid of honor, and her sister, Joan Saldivar, Arlington Heights, and Louwanna Ciesewski, Elk Grove Village, and Diane Erd, Chicago, were bridesmaids.

MARY ANN was in a mauve pink crepe gown with cream colored lace and the maids in burgundy. All carried red roses and white carnations. Valerie wore an eggshell crepe gown made by the maid of honor, who also made her lace veil. Her flowers were red and pink roses with white carnations, baby's breath and gladiolus.

Best man was Joe Nicolosi, Chicago, and ushers were Stan's brother-in-law, Lou Galambos, Minocqua, Wis., and Stan Peppers and Brian Clare, Chicago.

A dinner reception for 125 was held in the Casa Royale, Des Plaines.

A graduate of Arlington High School, Valerie also studied at John and Lewis Beauty School in Arlington Heights, receiving beautician and teacher's licenses. Until her marriage she was employed at Carson's loop beauty shop. Stan, a graduate of Lane Tech High, is with U.S. Graphics, Chicago, where the newlyweds are residing.

Showhouse tour for Mom's Day

For families looking for something to do on Mother's Day the board of the Park Ridge School for Girls suggests an outing to view its annual Designers' Showhouse in Lake Forest.

The 23-room home, decorated by members of the American Society of Interior Designers, is situated on four acres overlooking Lake Michigan, is open from noon to 4 p.m. Sunday; other days from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., plus Friday evenings, 7 to 9 through May 25.

Tickets are $3.50 at the door and all proceeds help support the privately-funded center, a home and school for dependent teenage Illinois girls.

To reach the Lake Forest estate, take Sheridan Road north of Deerpath Road in Lake Forest. Turn right onto Woodland, then left onto Lake Road.

Sesame seeds, mustard sauce season chicken

Dear Dorothy: I like to buy economically, and with chicken still the best buy, we have it at least once a week. Now, however, my husband and I are counting calories and I'm looking for simple chicken recipes that are easy on the figure.

—Nancy Raymond

Believe it or not, this one comes from our son who is (A) to wit as a cook when he can be lured to it and (B) is on a diet more often than he's off. He makes a sauce of one-half stick of margarine, the juice of half a lemon, a teaspoon parsley and one teaspoon of Dijon-style mustard.

Over the split halves of chicken, he sprinkles a teaspoon of sesame seeds and one sliced shallot and then pours the sauce over all of this. The chicken then goes into a 400-degree oven to bake for about 30 minutes, or until tender, with occasional basting. Then it is put under the broiler for a few minutes to get the skin crispy. When I tried it, there were no sesame seeds around, and it was still delicious — and I usually pull off the skin with all its calories.

Dear Dorothy: Your column abounds with old wives' tales and I'm curious that no reader has recommended the use of copper bracelets to help arthritis sufferers.

by Dorothy Ritz

—Malone Kremer

The copper-bracelet bit can't be called an old wives' tale. Most of the old "cures" have some basis. The copper bracelet idea was proved absurd long ago. The only treatments arthritis sufferers should employ should come from the doctors.

Dear Dorothy: All of us sigh over the unfinished bottles of sparkling soda and usually pour them out. Not me. I use them right away, wringing a cloth out of the soda and going over all my stainless-steel appliances. You should see them shine!

—Martha Winfield

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

A Paddock review

Theatre Guild's 'Prisoner' well done

by PAT ADAM

Of recent years each community theater season brings its share of Neil Simon comedies, and this one has proved no exception. We started out with "Last of the Red Hot Lovers" and now "The Prisoner of Second Avenue" is making the rounds.

Latest staging of "The Prisoner of Second Avenue" is by Des Plaines Theatre Guild, and while this is not the funniest in a long string of Simon hits, DPTG's production is well done.

The plot concerns a New York couple who live in a 14th street apartment for which they pay far more than it's worth. They are plagued with faulty air conditioning, a leaky toilet, too thin apartment walls, foul air and noisy traffic. To make matters worse, Mel Edison, the husband, loses his job and then their apartment is robbed.

MEL FEELS HE'S coming apart and for a short time, he does. Edna, his sympathetic yet sensible wife, takes a job to tide them over and finds herself a victim, too. They're prisoners in their own apartment.

Ted Weiss and Betty Kandlerbinder, in the lead roles of Mel and Edna, are excellent. Weiss is a master of gesture, able to convey frustration, hopelessness, anger with his head, his hands, his whole body without seeming obvious. I liked him especially in his angry exchanges with the upstairs neighbors and in his explanation to Edna of "the plot" he says is the crux of all their woes.

BETTY KANDLERBINDER does a good job of interpreting Edna, a loving wife but with an identity of her own. One of her strongest scenes is when Edna returns to find their apartment robbed and then must explain to Mel what happened. She manages to convey disbelief without overdoing it.

Ed Sauer, Jean Kay, Kaye Peet and Paula Unell play Mel's brothers and sisters who are ready to help their baby brother when he suffers a nervous breakdown, provided it doesn't cost them too dearly. Of the four Jean Kay's performance is strongest. Sauer seemed a bit ill at ease opening night as their scene in the Edison apartment began, but he warmed up to the part as it progressed.

AS USUAL, DPTG has come up with a good set, though from where I sat I could see where the kitchen wall ended at the top. Background music seemed particularly appropriate.

"Prisoner of Second Avenue" will be at the Guild Playhouse this weekend and again May 16-17 and May 23-24. Tickets, 296-1211 noon until 8 p.m.

Stay at school or go home

East Maine lunch plan has options

A proposed lunch program for next year that would permit elementary schools the choice between a modified closed campus in which students would stay for lunch and a plan in which the majority would go home for lunch was presented to the East Maine Dist. 63 Board of Education Tuesday night.

The plan for students to stay for lunch would include a 35-minute lunch period with a 15-minute recess in the morning and afternoon. Classes would begin at 8:45 p.m. and end at 2:50 p.m. Students who could travel home for lunch within the 35-minute period would be allowed to do so.

The other option presented would include a one-hour lunch period and one 15-minute recess during the day. All children would go home for lunch except those students who live beyond 7/10th of a mile or present a medical excuse.

FROM JANUARY through March the program outlined in the first option would be in effect. The lunchrooms would be supervised and attendance taken. If children scheduled to be at school for lunch were absent, parents would be notified.

Each school would determine which option to take by the results of a vote of the families in the district. Each family would receive one vote and the option receiving the most votes would be effective next fall.

Board members Penny Larson and Larry Reiss wanted a third option available. Reiss suggested that a school whose current policy has been working effectively should be allowed to retain that policy. Mrs. Larson wanted children to be allowed to stay at school one day each week if desired under the second option. She suggested that this day be assigned according to the number of students who stay for lunch.

The proposals were made by the lunchroom committee headed by board member Barbara Klipnis.

Late Tuesday, the board had taken no action on the proposals.

IN OTHER action, the board authorized Supt. G. Allan Gogo to hold an election to determine the bargaining agent for custodial maintenance workers in the district. The East Maine Custodial Maintenance Assn., affiliated with the Illinois Education Assn., requested that its unit be recognized for negotiations. Thirty-seven of the 44 custodial workers have pledged support of the group.

The organization that receives the most votes will be recognized as the bargaining unit.

Downspout-sewer linkups caused flooding: city report

More than 800 downspouts illegally connected to Des Plaines sanitary sewers were cited as a major cause for flooding during the April 18 rainstorm.

In a lengthy report, City Engineer Robert Bowen and Public Works Comr. Joseph Schwab said the illegal connections caused a storm-water discharge equal to what is normally generated by an additional 30,000 persons, which is about one-half the city's population.

The report was submitted to the city council in the aftermath of the storm which dumped an estimated four inches of rain on the area in less than an hour.

THE REPORT indicates that in most areas, storm water receded within about two hours after the storm.

The report said new sewer lines and a series of backup valves installed in the past two years relieved problems in areas flooded during the last major storm in 1972.

The report recommends the installation of a pumping station in the Cumberland Terrace area, which was flooded in the April storm.

A GROUP OF more than 180 resi-

Flood-control panel asked by Ald. Meyer

A flood-control commission was proposed by Ald. Gerald Meyer, 7th, as a review group to study flooding problems in the city.

"We always seem to react to problems after they occur and I think that if we had a commission we might be able to keep a constant watch on the flooding problems," Meyer said.

He noted the city had received a petition from more than 180 residents in the Cumberland Terrace area near the intersection of Wolf and Golf roads, complaining of problems during the April 18 rainstorm which dumped about four inches of rain in the city in less than an hour.

The city engineering department is currently reviewing several possible remedies to the problems in that area.

Meyer suggested the proposed commission might be composed of residents who live in areas that are prone to flooding. The proposal was taken under review by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

The threat of May showers doesn't deter these young climbers.

Schools OK $10.35 million budget

The Des Plaines Dist. 62 Board of Education has approved a "conservative" $10.35 million 1975-76 tentative budget, a 5.6 increase from this year.

Harold Brieschke, district business manager, told board members Monday night that he "played it conservative" in figuring the tentative budget because important budgeting factors, such as the district's assessed valuation, the state tax multiplier and teacher salary increases, are yet to be decided.

Brieschke said if assessed valuation increases only 2 per cent there will be a slight increase in property taxes. He said the district has been able to reduce its tax rate every year for four years, and to predict a tax increase at this time "is really premature."

THE BUDGET includes a $7.9 million education fund, an increase of 2.3 per cent from this year's $7.7 million.

The education fund allots $6,025,432 for teacher salaries — a figure that does not include any salary increases other than the automatic annual raise for work experience.

Brieschke said anticipated revenue to the district from property taxes, state aid and other sources is estimated at $9,753,185 — $329,601 short of projected expenditures. The district will not have to go into deficit spending, however, because of surplus funds left over from 1974-75 school year.

"The financial future does not look too good," Brieschke said. "Down the road about four years we may be looking at deficit spending. I say that on the basis that there will be no big changes in our assessed valuation or in the equalizer."

Brieschke said state aid to the district is dropping every year because of declining enrollment. Brieschke said the district received $1,240,907 in state aid last year but received more than it was entitled to. "We will have to pay some of that money back," he said.

IN THE 1975-76 school year the district anticipates receiving only $340,845 in aid.

Because of rising unemployment and inflation, Brieschke said, not as many persons are paying their property taxes and less money is coming into the district. "Property tax collections are running 2 per cent behind last year," he said. "If the economy gets back to normal and we can get back to a 91 or 92 per cent collection rate we will be better off."

The budget will be available to the public in the Dist. 62 administration center, 777 Algonquin Rd., for 30 days. A hearing will be held on the budget June 16.

Area lawyers back 2 'rejected' judges

by STEVE FORSYTH

Northwest suburban lawyers are attacking the recent recommendation by the Chicago Bar Assn. that two suburban associate judges be removed from their posts.

John E. Owens, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., Tuesday said that the Chicago Bar's board of managers was not qualified to recommend dismissal of associate judges Albert H. LaPlante and Simon S. Porter of the 3rd Municipal District, headquartered in Niles.

Both judges received high ratings in a pool conducted by the Northwest suburban attorneys last February, and the results were submitted to the CBA as part of a review and screening procedure.

Owens said the Chicago Bar Association's own screening committee included the two judges in its recommendations for retention, but the board of managers overturned the decision.

"WE FEEL THAT the attorneys of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its board of governors are in a far better position to judge the qualifications of the associate judges sitting in the 3rd District," Owens said.

He charged that the board of managers "completely disregarded the poll of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its candidate committee and failed to take any independent poll of its own members."

The Chicago Bar recommended rejection of 14 of the 122 associate judges seeking retention in Cook County. Its recommendations were given to the Circuit Court judges, who vote on retention of the associate judges.

Ballots were sent out Friday by the Illinois Courts

Administrative Office, and must be returned within 10 days. An associate judge must receive 60 per cent approval to be retained.

The Northwest suburban association's controversial poll resulted in a recommendation to dismiss two other associate judges, John L. Limperis, 2nd District, and James Maher Jr., 3rd District, but they were approved by the CBA. The suburban balloting was disputed by several local attorneys.

PARK RIDGE Atty. Robert L. Sklodowski, chairman of the Northwest suburban association's judiciary committee, said the 15 attorneys who make up the Chicago Bar's board of managers seldom, if ever, practice in the Northwest suburban criminal courts. "I don't know who the hell they think they are," he said. "They never even bothered to tell us they were going to reject two men, or tell us why. We're the 'country bumpkins,' I guess."

Sklodowski said he talked with Presiding Judge Anton A. Smigiel, 3rd District, and Smigiel also is upset with the recommendations.

The Park Ridge attorney said he was particularly angry because the CBA asked the suburban lawyers to conduct the poll. "Then they disregard it," he said.

He praised Porter, who got the support of more than 90 per cent of the suburban attorneys in the local poll, and said Porter handles cases faster than most of his associates.

Porter said Tuesday that judicial ethics do not allow him to make any comment. LaPlante could not be reached for comment.

Koplos' ouster from panel seen as slap on wrist

by STEVE BROWN

Ald Thomas Koplos, 1st, has been dropped from the city council building, grounds, and parking lots committee in what some city hall observers see as a slap on the wrist for Koplos by Mayor Herbert H. Behrel.

Koplos called last week for the resignation of Building Comr. William Baldaccini, charging Baldaccini plays tennis on city time. Behrel's decision to drop him from the committee is viewed as a response to the criticism by Koplos.

THE ALLEGATION against Baldaccini will be discussed Thursday by the full city council in a closed-door executive session.

Both Behrel and Koplos attempted Tuesday to downplay the slap-on-the-wrist theory, but the mayor did little to conceal his displeasure with Koplos' action. Behrel was vacationing in Arizona last week, when Koplos told The Herald about his plans to oust Baldaccini.

"I have no reason to slap Koplos on the wrist. You really can't do anything about an alderman who wants to run the city. You can't do anything about someone who runs to the newspapers and calls for someone's resignation. He should have talked to me first," Behrel said.

Koplos will remain chairman of the water-and-sewer committee and also will serve on the license-and-inspection committee. The library and historical society post is generally seen as a less prestigious assignment.

KOPLOS SAID he expected to be moved off the building, grounds and parking lots committee, but he did not expect to be put on the library panel.

Koplos said he did not view the move as punishment. He said it was his understanding that the committee assignments were determined before Behrel left on vacation and that the incident played no role in the matter.

However, the mayor apparently did not reach a final decision on the assignments until Monday afternoon.

OTHER COMMITTEE assignments include: Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, chairman of the municipal development committee, and Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, chairman of the finance committee.

Behrel said he had to persuade Bolek to give up the chairmanship of the license and inspection committee to take over the finance post.

The only other assignment that drew some attention was that of Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, to both the finance and municipal development committees Behrel said Ward had asked to be placed on the finance panel. The mayor said he appointed Ward because he could take the time to do in-depth research.

Thomas Koplos

Marine mollusks lecture

Ralph Manns will speak on "Cephalopods" to the members of the Illinois Lithophiles Ltd. Wednesday, May 14, in the community room of the Des Plaines Funeral Home, 1717 Rand Rd., Des Plaines. The meeting is at 7:30 p.m.

Cephalopods were highly developed marine mollusks. Their fossils have been traced as far back as the middle Cambrian Period, about 530 million years ago, after which time they quickly became widespread.

FINAL EXAMS ARE just two weeks away at Harper College in Palatine, but that doesn't stop students from taking advantage of the sunshine when they pursue their studies. Spring on the campus inevitably brings out the students.

200 at River Trails Junior High

Parents, students hit program cuts

Nearly 200 parents, teachers and students jammed the River Trails Junior High School library Tuesday night to voice their objections to proposed staff and program cuts in River Trails Dist. 26.

Most members of the audience were on hand to press for the continuation of the district's junior high French program. The 10-year-old program enrolls 360 students who gain one year's high school credit when they enter the French program at Hersey High School.

But because of decreased revenues for the coming year, district administrators have been forced to suggest staff and program cutbacks.

Supt. John Fridlund and Eugene Kukla, River Trails Junior High principal, outlined a plan that would cut one full-time and one part-time French teacher, leaving one teacher to handle the entire district French program.

"We aren't unaware of the sentiment for French," Fridlund said. "But at many other schools, foreign language is an elective or backed up to another class." In other words, students may take foreign language instead of another class.

AT RIVER TRAILS Junior High students take French — if selected for the program — or reading, a remedial program. Next year only 30 top seventh-graders would be invited to take French.

Ninety lower average seventh-graders would take reading and those of middle ability would be assigned to the media center.

Under this system, one full-time French teacher and a part-time French teacher could handle the total 240 students expected in French next year. Beginning in 1976, only one teacher would be needed to teach the 180 students enrolled in French.

Late Tuesday night the board had not taken action on either the French program or other suggested staff and program cuts.

YMCA urges city sell bonds for expansion

A proposal to sell tax-exempt bonds to help finance new development in Des Plaines has drawn another interested party — the Northwest Suburban YMCA.

The Y officially asked the Des Plaines City Council to consider selling about $900,000 in industrial revenue bonds to help finance construction of an addition to the YMCA center at 300 Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

The request was forwarded to the city council's finance committee for review. The council is currently reviewing an ordinance which would allow the city to sell the revenue bonds for commercial and industrial developments and for not-for-profit groups.

CHARLES MCCLELLAN, YMCA executive director, Tuesday said the Y is hopeful of city approval for the bonds. He estimated the tax-exempt status, which would allow the bonds to be sold at a lower interest rate, could save the Y about $200,000 in interest charges in the next 15 years.

MCClellan indicated the $900,000 request was based on scaled-down plans for the building expansion program.

The Y had announced plans about a year ago for a $125 million expansion program, which included the construction of a new fieldhouse, club rooms, kitchen area and increased parking. However, the project was stalled by increasing construction costs and a difficulty in obtaining financing.

MCClellan said the revised plan calls for only the fieldhouse to be constructed. He said the increased parking space will be available because the fieldhouse will be built on pillars.

THE CITY HAS also been asked to sell about $1.1 million in revenue bonds to finance the construction of an addition to the Dry Storage Co. in Des Plaines.

The bond sales would not cause an increase in the taxes. The projects constructed with the funds derived from the sale of the bonds would serve as collateral for the bondholders. No referendum is needed to sell the bonds.

Several aldermen have indicated they might be opposed to selling bonds for the Y expansion program. Ald. John Seltz, 7th, noted the industrial revenue bond program was designed to stimulate business and increase employment. Construction of a facility for a not-for-profit group does not necessarily fulfill those purposes, he indicated.

State officials have advised the city that under its home-rule power it can sell the bonds for commercial and not-for-profit projects.

BESIDES THE Y and Dry Storage Co. proposals, some city officials also have indicated they might want to study the possibility of using the bonds to finance a portion of the proposed downtown redevelopment package.

The city has been working with local businessmen for a number of years to develop a $14 million office and retail complex in the downtown area.

Only a portion of the project could be financed through the revenue bonds, however, because state law limits the maximum amount that can be sold for any one project to $5 million.

City Council wrapup

Plan to recycle motor oil hits snag

Plans for Des Plaines to become one of three pilot centers in the Chicago area for a motor oil recycling program have hit a snag. City officials have balked at allowing the installation of a 275-gallon above-ground storage tank for the waste oil.

The program is being encouraged by state environmental officials in hopes of stimulating a move to recycle more motor oil in light of the energy crisis.

Ald. Irene Birchfield, 5th, said the recycling center is using a 30-gallon tank, but it filled quickly during the first weekend of use.

Fire Chief Donald Corey said the 275-gallon tank would violate city codes and he noted that service station operators would probably make a similar request.

Corey suggested the city install an underground tank, which would comply with the code. The council took no action and asked that the Environmental Control Commission study the matter.

Teacher heads program

Daniel T. Carlson, a science teacher at Maine West High School, was hired to serve as coordinator of the city's summer youth program.

In other appointments, Mayor Herbert H. Behrel named Albert Gundelach, 976 Margaret Ave., to serve as chairman of the zoning board. He will succeed Fred K. Howe who retired from the board after 28 years.

Behrel also appointed Jerome Zanca, 81 Roxbury Ln., to fill the vacancy on the board. Zanca is an industrial engineer. His wife, Judith, is president of the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education.

Consider aide to Behrel

The council's city code and judiciary committee Monday will renew its study of hiring an administrative assistant for Behrel.

Behrel made the request in January and funds have been tentatively budgeted for the position.

Some city officials have seen the request as a prelude to the city government having a full-time city manager in 1977 when Behrel leaves office. A number of aldermen have indicated they would oppose such a move, preferring to retain a full-time mayor.

dents submitted a petition to the city council last week calling for the city to take some action to relieve the flooding problems there.

In singling out the illegal downspout connections, Bowen and Schwab said notices have been sent to 952 homeowners ordering them to eliminate the connections, but so far only 90 have complied. They indicated the connections should be eliminated by the end of the summer.

The report also calls for the cleaning and widening of the Higgins-Wilow Creek, construction of a Metropolitan Sanitary District tunnel and reservoir system, a local sewage treatment plant and cleaning and widening of the Des Plaines River.

City officials have spent a major portion of the $800,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds received during the past three years on sewer improvement and a flood-control program.

The city plans to spend a major portion of the 1975-76 allotment for additional storm sewers in the area.

Junior Girl Scout fun fair today

Junior Girl Scout Troop 733 will sponsor its fourth annual fun fair today from 4 to 6:30 p.m. at First Congregational Church, 768 Graceland Ave., Des Plaines.

Admission at 5 cents entitles every visitor to a chance at one of the door prizes to be awarded every half hour. More than 4,000 prizes will be given out at the games, including 10 gerbils and more than 200 fish.

A handcraft gift table will offer items ranging from string art pictures, to macrame plant hangers, patchwork pillows, and stuffed animals made by Bunny Ropke.

The fair also will feature a white elephant corner, live plants at the plant stand and a bakery nook with homemade pastries.

Disannex too expensive: Fabish

Officials drop plan to hold vote for fire department

Buffalo Grove officials said Tuesday they have scrapped plans for a referendum as a means to create a single fire department for the village.

The vote would have sought authorization to disconnect the Lake County portion of the village from the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District and add it to the Wheeling Township Fire Protection District.

In announcing the decision, Village Pres. Edward Fabish also instructed Village Atty. Richard Raysa to stop legal proceedings on the matter. The village was in the process of seeking court authorization to conduct the referendum.

FABISH SAID the disannexation plan was "unworkable." "It's costing us money, it's costing Long Grove money and it's possible the referendum wouldn't even pass."

Fabish said officials will now try to work out an agreement with the Long Grove district when Buffalo Grove is ready to start its own municipal fire department, possibly in another four to five years.

He said he met with Long Grove fire officials this week. They indicated they would voluntarily give up the Lake County section of the village for a municipal fire department but would continue to oppose disannexation to another fire district, said Fabish.

A VILLAGE department probably will be formed after the adoption of home-rule powers when the village reaches 25,000 population, Fabish said. The village can then levy a fire tax to support the department.

During public discussion of the issue last year, many residents said they favored the transfer because the Wheeling fire protection district offered paramedic service while Long Grove had none.

In December, however, Long Grove began its own paramedic program which then cast doubt on the referendum's success, village officials said.

Also, a disagreement surfaced earlier this year between Buffalo Grove and Wheeling fire district officials over financing the election. Buffalo Grove administrators felt the $3,000 to $4,000 cost should be shared by the two agencies but Wheeling fire officials indicated they were unwilling to help finance it.

HONEY LOCUST trees that once lined Dundee Road are gone. State highway officials removed the trees Tuesday on orders from Buffalo Grove, which has an ordinance prohibiting the planting of thorn trees in the public right-of-way. The trees will be replaced with a thornless variety.

Village grants 40-cent hike in trash rates

Garbage collection rates in Buffalo Grove will go up 40 cents a month with a new increase approved by the village board.

The increase, which will raise bimonthly garbage collection bills from $9 to $9.80, will be retroactive to May 1. Officials wanted more time to study the increase, but enacted the increase Monday to avoid bookkeeping difficulties.

Finance Director Richard Glueckert said Tuesday the new rates will be reflected in mid-May billings to Lake County residents. Cook County residents will be billed $10.20 in June for June and July garbage collection plus the 40 cent increase for May.

THE RATE INCREASE was requested by James Raupp, president of the Buffalo Grove Disposal Co., which provides local scavenger service. Raupp appeared before the board and told officials the new rates are necessary to offset rising labor costs. Union wages for garbage men have gone up $1.25 per hour in the last several months, he said.

He told officials that 35 cents of that amount would cover labor while the other five cents would cover rising expenses of hauling trash to landfill sites.

While granting the new scavenger rate, the board, however, decided to wait until a later date to decide on two other firm requests for a long-term exclusive contract and elimination of holiday garbage pickups.

THE FIRM could cut operating costs and repay equipment loans sooner, possibly avoiding further rate increases with an exclusive long-term pact, Raupp said. The proposed contract would include new commercial and industrial scavenger accounts.

The only other garbage service in the village is provided by the Wheeling Disposal Inc., which serves a small area including Sandpiper apartments.

State removes thorn trees from Dundee Road median

by JOHN MAES

The state highway department Tuesday was forced to dig up nearly 45 thorn trees it planted in the Dundee Road median last year in violation of a Buffalo Grove ordinance.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the village prohibits thorn trees for safety reasons. "Thorns have a tendency to fall off, and when you're cutting grass, they become missiles," he said.

The village is responsible for maintaining the median of the state highway, and Larson said thorns from the honey locust trees planted by the state could get caught in lawn mowers.

Illinois Dept. of Transportation officials were unavailable for comment Tuesday on the cost of removing the honey locusts and replacing them with a thornless species to be planted next week.

The situation came to light about six months ago, Larson said, when Richard Glauner, a village appearance-control commissioner, noticed the thorn trees. State officials decided, however, to wait until the ground was dry enough for the trees to be dug up and replaced with little trouble.

State-financed sodding will follow the replanting later this month. The sodding is estimated to cost $10,000.

Landscaped medians caused a controversy in Buffalo Grove last year, pitting village officials against local chamber of commerce members over having mountable or the planted, barrier-trees along Dundee Road.

The two sides eventually agreed on alternating sections of landscaped and asphalt medians.

The threat of May showers doesn't deter these young climbers.

by STEVE FORSYTH

Northwest suburban lawyers are attacking the recent recommendation by the Chicago Bar Assn. that two suburban associate judges be removed from their posts. John E. Owens, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., Tuesday said that the Chicago Bar's board of managers was not qualified to recommend dismissal of associate judges Albert H. LaPlante and Simon S. Porter of the 3rd Municipal District, headquartered in Niles.

Both judges received high ratings in a pool conducted by the Northwest suburban attorneys last February, and the results were submitted to the CBA as part of a review and screening procedure.

Owens said the Chicago Bar Association's own screening committee included the two judges in its recommendations for retention, but the board of managers overturned the decision.

"WE FEEL THAT the attorneys of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its board of governors are in a far better position to judge the qualifications of the associate judges sitting in the 3rd District," Owens said.

He charged that the board of managers "completely disregarded the poll of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its candidate committee and failed to take any independent poll of its own members."

The Chicago Bar recommended rejection of 14 of the 122 associate judges seeking retention in Cook County. Its recommendations were given to the Circuit Court judges, who vote on retention of the associate judges.

Ballots were sent out Friday by the Illinois Courts

Administrative Office, and must be returned within 10 days. An associate judge must receive 60 per cent approval to be retained.

The Northwest suburban association's controversial poll resulted in a recommendation to dismiss two other associate judges, John L. Limperis, 2nd District, and James Maher Jr., 3rd District, but they were approved by the CBA. The suburban balloting was disputed by several local attorneys.

PARK RIDGE Atty. Robert L. Sklodowski, chairman of the Northwest suburban association's judiciary committee, said the 15 attorneys who make up the Chicago Bar's board of managers seldom, if ever, practice in the Northwest suburban criminal courts. "I don't know who the hell they think they are," he said. "They never even bothered to tell us they were going to reject two men, or tell us why. We're the 'country bumpkins,' I guess."

Sklodowski said he talked with Presiding Judge Anton A. Smigiel, 3rd District, and Smigiel also is upset with the recommendations.

The Park Ridge attorney said he was particularly angry because the CBA asked the suburban lawyers to conduct the poll. "Then they disregard it," he said.

He praised Porter, who got the support of more than 90 per cent of the suburban attorneys in the local poll, and said Porter handles cases faster than most of his associates.

Porter said Tuesday that judicial ethics do not allow him to make any comment. LaPlante could not be reached for comment.

A real problem— Bicentennial unit has cash, no plan

The Buffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission has plenty of ideas for raising funds but not many ideas for spending it, its members said Tuesday night.

"A lot of people are not aware of the fund-raising activities," Comr. Barbara Sheldon said. "Given half a chance these people could come up with ideas where the money could be spent."

The issue came up when commission finance chairman Nicholas Rubino told members he was weary of committing the Bicentennial commission to activities without knowing where the money will go.

All members said they lack ideas of how the money can be spent. "I can't believe that Buffalo Grove is so affluent that we don't need anything," Jack sharp said.

Clarice Rech, a village trustee, suggested the possibility of leasing a meeting place. "The greatest need in our community is a meeting place," she said. "It can be something to serve the whole community."

Among the first Bicentennial plans detailed Tuesday night were:

A pizza sale May 10-14. Twenty members of the Buffalo Grove High School band will attempt to sell 1,000 12-inch pizzas. The cost is $2.25, which includes tax and delivery. The band members will deliver the pizzas May 17.

A four-day carnival May 29 through June 1 at Buffalo Grove High School. There will be 10 rides and a variety of booths. The commission needs volunteers for the carnival.

Fitzgerald new panel chairman

Thomas V. Fitzgerald, commander of the Buffalo Grove Amvets post, stepped in Tuesday night as chairman of the village's Bicentennial commission.

He succeeds Public Works Director Charles McCoy, chairman of the commission since its inception last year. Fitzgerald was co-chairman.

Village Pres. Edward E. Fabish said he appointed Fitzgerald because of the need to get Bicentennial matters planned.

The appointment was made in light of McCoy's increasing workload as public works director, Fabish said. Fitzgerald said Tuesday he will step down as commander of the Amvets post this week and will be able to spend more time on Bicentennial activities.

A bicycle path through the village. A path has been mapped connecting 11 park sites in the area. The path joins others in neighboring Arlington Heights and Long Grove.

A vehicle sticker contest for Buffalo Grove students. Entries have been submitted and final judging will be Tuesday.

Commission members also are considering a history of Buffalo Grove to be written and published. Volumes would be distributed to school libraries as a Bicentennial activity.

Scouting news

Cub Scout Pack 418 of Washington Irving School, Buffalo Grove, will conduct its second annual paper drive May 24.

Persons interested in donating papers may bring them to a truck at the school lot, 1250 Radcliffe, all day Saturday.

Proceeds from the drive will help finance next year's scouting activities.

Miss Buffalo Grove entries accepted

Entries are being accepted for the Miss Buffalo Grove pageant Aug. 16 at Buffalo Grove High School, 1100 W. Dundee Rd. The deadline for entering is June 15.

The contest is open to residents of Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prairie View, Aptakisic, Long Grove or Arlington Heights north of Palatine Road.

Contestants must be 17 to 28 years old, a high school graduate and never married.

Further information may be obtained by calling 459-0812 or 541-3637.

'Quit smoking' clinic slated May 26-29

The Buffalo Grove Community Services Commission and Northwest suburban branch of the American Cancer Society will sponsor a "quit smoking" clinic May 26-29 at Willow Grove School, 777 Checker Dr.

The clinic is offered free to the public with the sessions running from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Registration can be made by calling 537-0812.

'Arlington Heights Cubs' doubtful

Plan for stadium excludes baseball

by KURT BAER

Madison Square Garden Corp. is not seeking a Chicago Major League baseball team as a tenant in the proposed stadium at Arlington Park Race Track, the company president said Tuesday.

"I've not talked to any baseball team, or even conceived of it," said Alan Cohen, adding, however, that he has been asked whether a baseball club might use the stadium now planned principally for the Chicago Bears.

Baseball and football are "two different sports and designing a stadium for both would add tremendously to the cost," he said.

Some Arlington Heights village officials are saying privately that they are concerned about the ability to pay for the proposed stadium without a second major tenant such as a professional baseball team.

AND A CHICAGO bond attorney said Tuesday that a commitment from a baseball team to play in the proposed stadium almost certainly would bolster the sale of revenue bonds needed to build the facility.

"Each additional user increases the net income which is used to pay off the bonds," the attorney said. "It's the whole answer."

Recently, Village Pres. James T. Ryan said a commitment from a baseball team similar to the one announced by Bears' owner George Halas would add weight to the stadium idea in his mind. However, Ryan said he had no reason to believe either baseball club (Chicago White Sox or Chicago Cubs) was a prospect for the stadium.

Halas said he would sign a long-term lease to use the new stadium. The lease probably would be for the life of the bond issue.

Cohen declined comment Tuesday on the current status of the feasibility report Madison Square Garden is preparing on the stadium except to say that he still expects to make a presentation to the village board by the end of June.

Firm 'buys' Schaumburg station for $6,500 taxes

by PAT GERLACH

A firm specializing in delinquent-tax purchases got more than it bargained for in picking up a one-acre property in Schaumburg.

For a total price of $6,500, the company ended up owning, temporarily at least, the village of Schaumburg's new $224,000 fire station, 1024 Meacham Rd.

"The buyer took this sight unseen, assuming it was either vacant or commercial (property). His kids love fire trucks, but he's definitely not interested in owning a fire station," said Stanford Marks, an attorney with Thornton Td., a Chicago firm specializing in tax purchases.

THE PROPERTY was auctioned off because of an apparent foul up in the County Assessor's office and was bought by Thornton, which had no idea it was a municipally-owned building.

Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessel can't understand how it happened. "I can't understand why the exemption wasn't properly and immediately filed after we took title to the property," Kessel said. Kessel served as chairman of the police and fire committee and supervised construction of the fire house.

The site was donated to the village in late 1971 by developer J. Emil Anderson and Sons.

Dennis Dunne, a spokesman for County Assessor Thomas Tully, said the village has two years to redeem the property and said the sale of the fire station is expected to be declared an error and voided.

Palatine girl attacked by rape suspect

An 18-year-old Palatine girl was attacked outside her apartment early Saturday by a man who police believe raped a Palatine Township woman in January.

The girl's assailant fit the description given by the Palatine Township woman, Palatine police detectives said Tuesday.

The Palatine girl was getting into her car in front of the Countryside Apartments, Baldwin Road and Countryside Drive, where she lives when the man asked for directions. He then struck her in the face, knocking her to the ground, police said.

The man fled in a car when the woman's screams drew the attention of neighbors. The woman suffered a black eye and two chipped teeth, police said.

The suspect is black, about 160 pounds, 5 feet 10 inches tall and in his 20s, police said.

A man fitting that description followed a Palatine Township woman from a grocery store to her English Valley subdivision home in January where he beat and raped her.

Sheriff's police said the same man is being sought in connection with similar rapes in Wheeling and Mundelein.

Village board wrapup

Fuel tax funds OK'd for street repairs

The Buffalo Grove Village Board this week appropriated almost $77,000 in the village's share of state motor fuel tax funds for 1975 street resurfacing.

More than 30 local roadways are to be improved as part of the village's ongoing street maintenance program. The work is expected to begin in July or August.

Open floor before meetings

Local residents next week will have the opportunity to air their views to village officials before board meetings rather than at the end, as was previously the case.

The board has decided to allow about a 15-minute period at the beginning of each meeting to field questions and complaints. The change in procedure will also allow for additional time at the close of each meeting for more discussion if necessary.

Previously, residents had to wait until the end of the meeting to question village officials.

Park trailer on sewer site?

The village will be contacting Farrington Drive residents by mail soon to ask if homeowners object to the Buffalo Grove Jaycees parking a storage trailer on the village's old sewage treatment plant site.

The Jaycees asked board permission Monday to store the trailer at that location but officials decided to hold off on the request until the residents could be queried.

The Jaycees store supplies and equipment used in activities and fund-raising projects in the trailer.

Police pension members

Village Pres. Edward Fabish reappointed Robert W. Back and G. William Phillips to the police department pension board. Back, 942 Twisted Oak Ln., was appointed to serve a one-year term while Phillips, 1129 Alden Ln., will serve two years.

Des Plaines Y urges city to sell bonds for expansion

A proposal to sell tax-exempt bonds to help finance new development in Des Plaines has drawn another interested party — the Northwest Suburban YMCA.

The Y officially asked the Des Plaines City Council to consider selling about $900,000 in industrial revenue bonds to help finance construction of an addition to the YMCA center at 300 Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

The request was forwarded to the city council's finance committee for review. The council is currently reviewing an ordinance which would allow the city to sell the revenue bonds for commercial and industrial developments and for not-for-profit groups.

CHARLES McCLELLAN, YMCA executive director, Tuesday said the Y is hopeful of city approval for the bonds. He estimated the tax-exempt status, which would allow the bonds to be sold at a lower interest rate, could save the Y about $200,000 in interest charges in the next 15 years.

McClellan indicated the $900,000 request was based on scaled-down plans for the building expansion program.

The Y had announced plans about a year ago for a $1.25 million expansion program, which included the construction of a new fieldhouse, club rooms, kitchen area and increased parking. However, the project was stalled by increasing construction costs and a difficulty in obtaining financing.

McClellan said the revised plan calls for only the fieldhouse to be constructed. He said the increased parking space will be available because the fieldhouse will be built on pillars. Non.

THE CITY HAS also been asked to sell about $3.1 million in revenue bonds to finance the construction of an addition for the Dry Storage Co. in Des Plaines.

The bond sales would not cause an increase in the taxes. The projects constructed with the funds derived from the sale of the bonds would serve as collateral for the bondholders. No referendum is needed to sell the bonds.

Several aldermen have indicated they might be opposed to selling bonds for the Y expansion program. Ald. John Seitz, 7th, noted the industrial revenue-bond program was designed to stimulate business and increase employment. Construction of a facility for a not-for-profit group does not necessarily fulfill those purposes, he indicated.

State officials have advised the city that under its home-rule power it can sell the bonds for commercial and not-for-profit projects.

BESIDES THE Y and Dry Storage Co. proposals, some city officials also have indicated they might want to study the possibility of using the bonds to finance a portion of the proposed downtown redevelopment package.

The city has been working with local businessmen for a number of years to develop a $14 million office and retail complex in the downtown area.

Only a portion of the project could be financed through the revenue bonds, however, because state law limits the maximum amount that can be sold for any one project to $5 million.

Violation of law?

Officials question Bruhn's appointment to fire panel

Ronald Bruhn

by LUISA GINETTI

Several Wheeling trustees have questioned the legality of the appointment last week of former Trustee Ronald Bruhn to the board of fire and police commissioners.

Trustee Otis Hedlund, chairman of the judiciary and purchasing committee, said state statutes prohibit sitting aldermen or trustees from appointment to boards or commissions.

Hedlund said since Bruhn was appointed before the end of his term April 30, his appointment is contrary to state law and he should not be allowed to assume the commission seat.

BRUHN WAS appointed by the board April 28 while he was still a trustee. Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said although Bruhn was appointed before the expiration of his term, the term for the commissioner's post did not officially begin until May 1, when Bruhn was no longer a trustee.

Trustee Donald Jackson, who voted against Bruhn's appointment, said an attorney with whom he had spoken said as he interpreted the law the appointment should be considered void because Bruhn was appointed while still a trustee.

"The law is quite clear and I think we should move to make the office vacant and declare an opening," Jackson said.

TRUSTEE GILBERT Monoson also challenged the appointment and said Bruhn's seat should be declared vacant. "The law is the law," he said.

Trustee John C. Cole took issue with Scanlon's explanation that because the appointment became effective May 1 it is legal.

Cole said at the time the appointment was made Scanlon said the law required the position be filled by April 30. The appointment was thus made while Bruhn was still a trustee, Cole said.

HEDLUND ASKED Village Atty. Paul Hamer for an opinion on the issue and Hamer said he would have to study the law before issuing an opinion. Hamer was directed to file a written opinion with the board.

Hedlund said Tuesday he also has asked the Illinois Attorney General's office for an opinion on the law. "It's something we need more than one opinion on and if the consensus is in his (Bruhn's) favor, we will be bound to go along with it," Hedlund said.

Bruhn was appointed after the board voted not to rename Michael Moran to a three-year term on the commission. Bruhn served on the commission before he won election to the village board four years ago.

2 motocyclists sought after boy, 6, injured

Sheriff's police are searching for two youths who were riding a motorcycle that struck and injured a Prospect Heights boy Monday afternoon on Wheeling Road, Prospect Heights.

Police said the motorcycle, a blue and white Honda, went off the road and struck the boy, Shawn Haas, 6, of 802 E. McDonald Rd., as he was walking south. The two motorcycle riders proceeded north on Wheeling Road without stopping, police said.

Shawn was taken to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, by the Prospect Heights Fire Dept. and was released after treatment. The accident occurred at 5:11 p.m.

Police said the youths on the motorcycle were both male and both had long brown hair. The driver wore a checked shirt and the passenger wore a blue-green jacket with a yellow and red, cylindrical patch on the back, police said.

Persons with information on the accident should call police at 443-6110.

HONEY LOCUST trees that once lined Dundee Road are gone. State highway officials removed the trees Tuesday on orders from Buffalo Grove, which has an ordinance prohibiting the planting of thorn trees in the public right-of-way. The trees will be replaced with a thornless variety.

by STEVE FORSYTH

Northwest suburban lawyers are attacking the recent recommendation by the Chicago Bar Assn. that two suburban associate judges be removed from their posts.

John E. Owens, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., Tuesday said that the Chicago Bar's board of managers was not qualified to recommend dismissal of associate judges Albert H. LaPlante and Simon S. Porter of the 3rd Municipal District, headquartered in Niles.

Both judges received high ratings in a pool conducted by the Northwest suburban attorneys last February, and the results were submitted to the CBA as part of a review and screening procedure.

Owens said the Chicago Bar Association's own screening committee included the two judges in its recommendations for retention, but the board of managers overturned the decision.

"WE FEEL THAT the attorneys of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its board of governors are in a far better position to judge the qualifications of the associate judges sitting in the 3rd District," Owens said.

He charged that the board of managers "completely disregarded the poll of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its candidate committee and failed to take any independent poll of its own members."

The Chicago Bar recommended rejection of 14 of the 122 associate judges seeking retention in Cook County. Its recommendations were given to the Circuit Court judges, who vote on retention of the associate judges.

Ballots were sent out Friday by the Illinois Courts

Administrative Office, and must be returned within 10 days. An associate judge must receive 60 per cent approval to be retained.

The Northwest suburban association's controversial poll resulted in a recommendation to dismiss two other associate judges, John L. Limperis, 2nd District, and James Maher Jr., 3rd District, but they were approved by the CBA. The suburban balloting was disputed by several local attorneys.

PARK RIDGE Atty. Robert L. Sklodowski, chairman of the Northwest suburban association's judiciary committee, said the 15 attorneys who make up the Chicago Bar's board of managers seldom, if ever, practice in the Northwest suburban criminal courts. "I don't know who the hell they think they are," he said. "They never even bothered to tell us they were going to reject two men, or tell us why. We're the 'country tumpkins,' I guess."

Sklodowski said he talked with Presiding Judge Anton A. Smigiel, 3rd District, and Smigiel also is upset with the recommendations.

The Park Ridge attorney said he was particularly angry because the CBA asked the suburban lawyers to conduct the poll. "Then they disregard it," he said.

He praised Porter, who got the support of more than 90 per cent of the suburban attorneys in the local poll, and said Porter handles cases faster than most of his associates.

Porter said Tuesday that judicial ethics do not allow him to make any comment. LaPlante could not be reached for comment.

Building head expected to be named in few weeks

The announcement of a new building director for Wheeling is expected to be made public within the next few weeks after the village board discussed the matter in closed session Monday night.

Officials declined to discuss Village Mgr. George Passolt's choice for the post but said the session was called to discuss the matter.

Walter Repholz, a planner for the Village of Northbrook who has been mentioned as a serious contender for the job, said Tuesday he has not received word from the village if he has the job.

"I don't know anything more than I did several weeks ago and I'm just waiting to hear from the village if they've made a choice," Repholz said.

OFFICIALS SAID they were not at liberty to reveal what took place at the closed session because the person proposed for the job has not been contacted. Several officials said, however, an announcement of an appointment should be forthcoming.

Passolt also declined to reveal the name of his choice.

The village has been conducting a search for a building director since February 1974 when William Bieber resigned after pleading guilty to federal charges of extortion, conspiracy to commit extortion, perjury and filing a false income-tax return.

The charges stemmed from a zoning scandal involving the shakedown of Wheeling developers.

Robert Kaminski, village electrical engineer, has been serving as the village's acting building director. He will assume his former duties when his replacement is named.

Officials from the Federal Aviation Administration will be present at the meeting to discuss noise control measures which have been implemented at Palwaukee Airport.

Des Plaines Y urges city to sell bonds for expansion

A proposal to sell tax-exempt bonds to help finance new development in Des Plaines has drawn another interested party — the Northwest Suburban YMCA.

The Y officially asked the Des Plaines City Council to consider selling about $900,000 in industrial revenue bonds to help finance construction of an addition to the YMCA center at 300 Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

The request was forwarded to the city council's finance committee for review. The council is currently reviewing an ordinance which would allow the city to sell the revenue bonds for commercial and industrial developments and for not-for-profit groups.

CHARLES MCCLELLAN, YMCA executive director, Tuesday said the Y is hopeful of city approval for the bonds. He estimated the tax-exempt status, which would allow the bonds to be sold at a lower interest rate, could save the Y about $200,000 in interest charges in the next 15 years.

MCCLELLAN indicated the $900,000 request was based on scaled-down plans for the building expansion program.

The Y had announced plans about a year ago for a $1.25 million expansion program, which included the construction of a new fieldhouse, club rooms, kitchen area and increased parking. However, the project was stalled by increasing construction costs and a difficulty in obtaining financing.

MCCLELLAN said the revised plan calls for only the fieldhouse to be constructed. He said the increased parking space will be available because the fieldhouse will be built on pillars.

THE CITY HAS also been asked to sell about $3.1 million in revenue bonds to finance the construction of an addition for the Dry Storage Co. in Des Plaines.

McHenry Rd. zone extension delayed

The Wheeling Village Board Monday delayed action on a move to extend apartment zoning for a site at 628 McHenry Rd.

The board voted two weeks ago to grant an eight-month extension of the zoning from R-1 to R-4 but newly elected trustees, who were not seated on the board at the time of the vote, said they wanted more time to study the matter.

The land is owned by Charles Petrunaro, who purchased the property in 1973 from Nicholas Phillips, cousin of convicted Wheeling political boss James Stavros.

Phillips, a planner for the County Zoning Board, is facing federal charges of extorting $50,000 from Wickes Corp. in exchange for zoning in Wheeling.

Stavros, former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman, is serving a four-year term at the federal prison in Sandstone, Minn., following his conviction on charges of extortion, conspiracy and income tax evasion stemming from shakedowns of Wheeling developers.

Petrunaro and Phillips won rezoning of the property in 1973 but the rezoning expires in July. He petitioned the board for an extension of the zoning during which time he said he hopes to begin construction.

Petrunaro plans a two-story, 80-unit apartment structure on the site.

Trustee Otis Hedlund said he questioned the extension because the development is partially in a flood plain area.

Trustee Gilbert Monoson said the project should be reevaluated before zoning is extended. "It's an unhealthy practice to extend zoning without examining current problems," Monoson said.

Monoson added that he would like the project to be reviewed by either the plan commission or the environmental advisory commission before zoning is extended.

The matter was tabled when Trustee Charles M. Kerr asked for more time to review the proposal.

Parking lot bids studied

Bids were opened for paving of the new municipal parking lot east of the village hall.

Four bids were received for the project. The bids included Skotke Valley Asphalt, Des Plaines, $23,257; Hardin Paving Co., Northbrook, $27,536; Pave Way Construction Inc., Glenview, $28,276; Rock Road Construction, Des Plaines, $28,069.

The bids were referred to Public Works Director Lawrence Oppenheimer for review.

The 100-car parking lot was built to accommodate Circuit Court traffic and was a requirement in order for the village to obtain a branch of the court in Wheeling.

Posts open on village panels

Hedlund, chairman of the judiciary and purchasing committee, said he would like to conduct interviews with applicants for commission posts this month so appointments can be made in June.

Several vacancies exist on village commissions, including the plan commission and the zoning board, and Hedlund said he would like the positions filled as soon as possible.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon said he will give Hedlund a list of persons who have applied for commission posts so the trustee can schedule interviews.

Buffalo Grove drops plans for vote or 're department

Buffalo Grove officials said Tuesday they have scrapped plans for a referendum as a means to create a single fire department for the village.

The vote would have sought authorization to disconnect the Lake County portion of the village from the Long Grove Rural Fire Protection District and add it to the Wheeling Township Fire Protection District.

In announcing the decision, Village Pres. Edward Fabish also instructed Village Atty. Richard Rayso to stop legal proceedings on the matter. The village was in the process of seeking court authorization to conduct the referendum.

FABISH SAID the disannexation plan was "unworkable." "It's costing us money, it's costing Long Grove money and it's possible the referendum wouldn't even pass."

Fabish said officials will now try to work out an agreement with the Long Grove district when Buffalo Grove is ready to start its own municipal fire department, possibly in another four to five years.

He said he met with Long Grove fire officials this week. They indicated they would voluntarily give up the Lake County section of the village for a municipal fire department but would continue to oppose disannexation to another fire district, said Fabish.

A VILLAGE department probably will be formed after the adoption of home-rule powers when the village reaches 25,000 population, Fabish said. The village can then levy a fire tax to support the department.

During public discussion of the issue last year, many residents said they favored the transfer because the Wheeling fire protection district offered paramedic service while Long Grove had none.

In December, however, Long Grove began its own paramedic program which then cast doubt on the referendum's success, village officials said.

Also, a disagreement surfaced earlier this year between Buffalo Grove and Wheeling fire district officials over financing the election. Buffalo Grove administrators felt the $3,000 to $4,000 cost should be shared by the two agencies but Wheeling fire officials indicated they were unwilling to help finance it.

Prospect Heights meeting Thursday

The annual Prospect Heights town meeting will be from 7:30 to 10:30 p.m. Thursday at Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas Ave., Arlington Heights.

New officers of the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn. will be elected and status reports on numerous community projects will be presented.

The nominated officers of the PHIA are Richard Wolf for president; Edward Bryant, vice president; Chris Carlson, secretary; William Maslosko, treasurer; and Kenneth Borg, financial secretary.

Stated as area representatives are John Cornille, John Fedyski, Joseph Klop, Lynn Klotz, Nancy Lambert, Nick Opels, Robert Poltzer, Paul Richartz, Mary Thomas and George Wilson.

Wheeling Township road work OK'd

Three Wheeling Township road improvement projects have been awarded to Rock Road Construction Co., Des Plaines.

The $218,482 project includes resurfacing and shoulder improvements to Hinz Road from the Wheeling Drainage Ditch to Milwaukee Avenue; Schoenbeck Road from Rand to Dundee roads; and Wheeling Road from Palatine to Hinz roads.

The Wheeling Road work includes renovation of the bridge deck over the Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

The contract was awarded this week by the County Board.

Fire sale!

Firm 'buys' $224,000 fire station for $6,500 in taxes

by PAT GERLACH

A firm specializing in delinquent-tax purchases got more than it bargained for in picking up a one-acre property in Schaumburg.

For a total price of $8,500, the company ended up owning, temporarily at least, the village of Schaumburg's new $224,000 fire station, 1021 Meacham Rd.

"The buyer took this sight unseen, assuming it was either vacant or commercial (property). His kids love fire trucks, but he's definitely not interested in owning a fire station," said Stanford Marks, an attorney with Thornton Td., a Chicago firm specializing in tax purchases.

THE PROPERTY was auctioned off because of an apparent foul up in the County Assessor's office and was bought by Thornton, which had no idea it was a municipally-owned building.

Schaumburg Village Pres. Raymond Kessell can't understand how it happened. "I can't understand why the exemption wasn't properly and immediately filed after we took title to the property," Kessell said. Kessell served as chairman of the police and fire committee and supervised construction of the fire house.

The site was donated to the village in late 1971 by developer J. Emil Anderson and Sons.

Dennis Dunne, a spokesman for County Assessor Thomas Tully, said the village has two years to redeem the property and said the sale of the fire station is expected to be declared an error and voided.

SOLD: Good, clean 4-bay fire station. Slightly used.

Mental health center is trying

by JILL BETTNER

There are some people who always seem to be on the outside looking in. Incapable or unsure of how to deal with feelings about themselves or perhaps their families, they live among, but apart from, others.

Watchers, not participants, these men and women are members of a lonely group described in clinical terms as the "emotionally disturbed."

The Elk Grove-Schaumburg Townships Mental Health Center is starting a new program in hopes of drawing emotionally disturbed adults into a different kind of group. Program director Doris Lefley calls this one a "therapeutic community."

The idea, Mrs. Lefley said, is to form a group of about 20 patients and five therapists who would meet five days a week in a farmhouse she is arranging to rent in the Elk Grove Village area.

THERE WILL be formal group therapy sessions, she said, but a large part of the treatment program will be aimed at building the patients' self-respect and sense of belonging through cooperative projects.

As a "therapeutic community," the plan is for everyone to work together to decorate the farmhouse, fix lunch each day and possibly even care for a small vegetable garden.

Hopefully, learning to function in the group will help patients improve their other relationships and avoid hospitalization, Mrs. Lefley said.

"Hospitalization is something many people experience as a failure and in some ways, they become very dependent and find it harder to get back into their family and community because they've been taken out so completely," she said.

THE PROGRAM, however, also is intended to help those leaving hospitals with the transition to home. Others involved in weekly therapy sessions may be included in the more intensive day-treatment program on a short-term basis, Mrs. Lefley said, to help them cope with a particularly difficult time in their lives.

An initial grant of $12,000 from the Illinois Dept. of Mental Health plus funds from the two townships will be used to support the day-treatment program. The center already has received $3,000 from Elk Grove Township and expects a matching amount from Schaumburg Township.

IN ADDITION to Mrs. Lefley, a psychiatric nurse, the program's staff will include a full-time vocational rehabilitation specialist and activity therapist, a part-time counselor and a consulting psychiatrist.

Patients, who must be residents of either Elk Grove or Schaumburg townships, will be screened to determine if the program would meet their particular needs by members of both the program and mental health center staffs.

No patient costs have been determined, but Mrs. Lefley said fees will be established on a sliding scale according to each person's ability to pay. She said she also is investigating various insurance companies to determine if the program meets requirements for medical coverage.

VILLAGE PRES. John Gallo presided over a different village board meeting in Hoffman Estates Monday. Gallo was among 44 high school students involved in Youth in Government Day activities sponsored by the village Youth Commission. The annual event permits students to observe and take part in local government activities. A mock village board meeting was included in the day's planned activities.

by STEVE FOISYTH

Northwest suburban lawyers are attacking the recent recommendation by the Chicago Bar Assn. that two suburban associate judges be removed from their posts.

John E. Owens, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., Tuesday said that the Chicago Bar's board of managers was not qualified to recommend dismissal of associate judges Albert H. LaPlante and Simon S. Porter of the 3rd Municipal District, headquartered in Niles.

Both judges received high ratings in a pool conducted by the Northwest suburban attorneys last February, and the results were submitted to the CBA as part of a review and screening procedure.

Owens said the Chicago Bar Association's own screening committee included the two judges in its recommendations for retention, but the board of managers overturned the decision.

"WE FEEL THAT the attorneys of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its board of governors are in a far better position to judge the qualifications of the associate judges sitting in the 3rd District," Owens said.

He charged that the board of managers "completely disregarded the poll of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its candidate committee and failed to take any independent poll of its own members."

The Chicago Bar recommended rejection of 14 of the 122 associate judges seeking retention in Cook County. Its recommendations were given to the Circuit Court judges, who vote on retention of the associate judges.

Ballots were sent out Friday by the Illinois Courts

Administrative Office, and must be returned within 10 days. An associate judge must receive 60 per cent approval to be retained.

The Northwest suburban association's controversial poll resulted in a recommendation to dismiss two other associate judges, John L. Limperis, 2nd District, and James Maher Jr., 3rd District, but they were approved by the CBA. The suburban balloting was disputed by several local attorneys.

PARK RIDGE Atty. Robert L. Sklodowski, chairman of the Northwest suburban association's judiciary committee, said the 15 attorneys who make up the Chicago Bar's board of managers seldom, if ever, practice in the Northwest suburban criminal courts. "I don't know who the hell they think they are," he said. "They never even bothered to tell us they were going to reject two men, or tell us why. We're the 'country bumpkins,' I guess."

Sklodowski said he talked with Presiding Judge Anton A. Smigiel, 3rd District, and Smigiel also is upset with the recommendations.

The Park Ridge attorney said he was particularly angry because the CBA asked the suburban lawyers to conduct the poll. "Then they disregard it," he said.

He praised Porter, who got the support of more than 90 per cent of the suburban attorneys in the local poll, and said Porter handles cases faster than most of his associates.

Porter said Tuesday that judicial ethics do not allow him to make any comment. LaPlante could not be reached for comment.

Nerge Road widening a 'high priority' project

by JERRY THOMAS

A $3 million County Highway Dept. project to widen Nerge Road in Elk Grove Village to four lanes has been given "high priority" by Hugo Stark, county superintendent of highways.

Stark told The Herald Tuesday, "The county planned eventually to widen two-lane Nerge Road, but has since reviewed the results of a traffic survey and placed the project on a high priority list.

"I've recommended to the County Board members that we go ahead with the project that could run $2 to $3 million as soon as the village obtains the necessary right-of-way," Stark said.

ELK GROVE Village officials have been urging the widening of Nerge Road for several years and recently approved a resolution recommending the county do the work.

Village officials were unavailable for comment Tuesday, but have repeatedly discussed the importance of the road-widening project in an area of the village that is experiencing burgeoning growth.

The project would be done in two phases, Stark said. The first phase would include widening Nerge to four lanes between Rohlfing and Plum Grove roads, and constructing mountable median strips, curb and gutter.

The second portion of the work would extend the project to Roselle Road.

Stark said 100 feet of right-of-way is needed for the widening. Within Elk Grove Village's boundaries the right-of-way should be easily obtained, he said, largely because Centex Homes Corp. provided the easement between Meacham and Rohlfing roads when it developed the area.

HOWEVER, there are some properties along Nerge Road between Meacham and Roselle roads that are not annexed to the village and whose property lines do not allow for a 100-foot easement.

Stark said the highway department plans to survey the land and existing Nerge Road in the near future and other departments will work on obtaining the necessary right-of-way for the project.

"If the village already has provided for the right-of-way, the work will begin that much sooner. If we have to dicker with individual land owners, it can delay things," Stark said.

Village board wraps up $68,146 tax installment from NI Gas Northern Illinois Gas Co. has sent $68,146 to Hoffman Estates as the company's first utility tax installment for the year.

The sum was sent last week, Trustee William Cowin reported to the village board Monday. The utility tax payment is the second the village has received, the first, $43,000, coming two weeks ago from Commonwealth Edison Co.

Cowin, finance committee chairman, also reported the village has issued 14,733 vehicle licenses to date, 80 more than were issued in all of 1974.

Electrical panel job open

The village is seeking persons with a knowledge of electricity to serve on its electrical commission. The five-member commission is short a member, with Fire Lt. Donald Selke serving until a fifth member is appointed.

$9,500 for paramedics

The board approved an appropriation not to exceed $9,500 for paramedic equipment for a new ambulance.

Funds for the purchase are expected to come from a $250,000 donation from the Meridian Developers, builders of the Westbury project north of the Northwest Tollway near the Winston Knolls subdivision. The money was donated toward the building and supplying of a fire station for the Westbury area.

Meeting change proposed

The village board is considering reducing the number of its monthly meetings from four to two. The meetings would be held on the first and third Mondays of each month, according to the proposal.

Meetings are held the first four Mondays of each month.

The proposal will be considered by the board next week.

Part of Bode Road closed starting today

Westbound traffic on Bode Road from Western Street to Roselle Road will be closed today through June 6. The westbound road is being closed by the county highway department while improvement work is done.

Hoffman Estates Police Chief John O'Connell said only eastbound traffic will be permitted on Bode during the construction period, scheduled to end June 6.

As an alternate westbound route, Hoffman Estates police will post "no parking" signs on both sides of Flagstaff Lane to accommodate the westbound traffic. Flagstaff Lane, which parallels Bode Road, is the first street south of Bode Road.

Bode Road is being widened and improved from Springinguth Road west to Roselle Road. The work is being done in a joint effort by the county and the village.

2 men indicted in drug store theft

A County Grand Jury indicted two Chicago men Tuesday in connection with a burglary Dec. 29, 1974, at Snyder's Drugs, 1445 W. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg. Charged with burglary were Albert Walker, 24, and Steven Epley, 22. They were arrested inside the drug store in the Schaumburg Plaza, police said. About $700 in cash had been taken from a cabinet, and the pharmaceutical section of the store had been ransacked, authorities said.

No court date has been set.

Question # 3.
How do I justify what I've lost in case of a fire in my home or apartment?

Answer # 3.
At the time of a fire loss, the insurance company will ask you to reconstruct what was lost. They will check your list for reasonableness. A list of what is lost is very difficult to make up after a fire loss. To make this easier for you, you can record your household inventory before the loss happens. You can fill out household inventory sheets, which we would be glad to supply you with. Easier yet would be to take snapshots of all of your rooms. Keep these on file in a safety deposit box or with your insurance agent, to protect them safely.

A legal technicality

Unauthorized pay costing thousands

by TONI GINETTI

Thousands of dollars in technically unauthorized salaries to city employees apparently were paid out by the City of Rolling Meadows in the past two years.

The unauthorized salaries which Mayor Roland J. Meyer said could total as much as $30,000 to $60,000 were apparently paid because employee job grades, set by ordinance, were raised to higher grades during budget preparations but were never changed legally through ordinance revisions.

The situation came to light in response to questions raised by Ald. Fredrick Jacobson, 3th, involving discrepancies in the city budget for 1975-76.

CITY MGR. JAMES Watson, city budget officer, admitted the error Tuesday night during a finance committee meeting under questioning by city aldermen and Meyer.

Jacobson said salaries are being allocated in the city's current budget that have never been authorized by council ordinance, which is required in employee-job-classification changes.

"When you look at the amount of dollars that are authorized from unauthorized grades, it comes to more than $35,000 in the current budget," Jacobson said.

Meyer said the error, which has apparently gone unnoticed for two years, means the city may have paid as much as $60,000 more in salaries during the past two years than was required by ordinance.

THE SITUATION apparently arose when the finance committee and Watson discussed elevating job classifications two years ago during budget preparations.

The job-grade classifications, established by ordinance, set pay levels. The city manager's grade for example by ordinance is set at 25, which denotes a salary from $18,714 to $23,873 in the current budget. However, Watson is listed at a grade 26, which carries a maximum $25,067 salary.

The police and fire chiefs' salary grades are set by ordinance at 23, which allows for salaries from $16,961 to $21,634, but both have been listed for the past two years at grade 24F, which carries a maximum $22,736 in the current budget.

WHEN GRADES for employees are elevated, an automatic 5 per cent salary increment results, and that unauthorized increase has apparently meant the payment of the higher, unauthorized salaries.

Ald. James Huddleston, 4th, said the grade levels apparently were thought to be changed when the city council had adopted its budgets, but because the budgets are adopted by resolutions rather than the law-setting ordinances, the grade changes have never legally been established.

Meyer chided Watson on the error, saying, "You never change an ordinance by a resolution; you know that, Jim."

"It goes back to how did we start jumping them from one grade to another without ordinances," he said heatedly.

MEYER ALSO pointed to the situation in criticizing the failure of committees to bring matters before the city council. He said matters are discussed in committee but never discussed before the entire council because the committee forget to raise the matters.

He added the council will likely have to correct the employee job classification ordinances to match their salaries. "We certainly can't cut salaries," Meyer said.

In citing budget discrepancies, Jacobson said the difference between current budgeted figures and authorized salaries was evident in several departments, including an $18,898 variance in the police department and a $10,960 variance in the fire department.

Baseball not in plans for stadium at race track

by KURT BAER

Madison Square Garden Corp. is not seeking a Chicago Major League baseball team as a tenant in the proposed stadium at Arlington Park Race Track, the company president said Tuesday.

"I've not talked to any baseball team, or even conceived of it," said Alan Cohen, adding, however, that he has been asked whether a baseball club might use the stadium now planned principally for the Chicago Bears.

Baseball and football are "two different sports and designing a stadium for both would add tremendously to the cost," he said.

Some Arlington Heights village officials are saying privately that they are concerned about the ability to pay for the proposed stadium without a second major tenant such as a professional baseball team.

AND A CHICAGO bond attorney said Tuesday that a commitment from a baseball team to play in the proposed stadium almost certainly would bolster the sale of revenue bonds needed to build the facility.

"Each additional user increases the net income which is used to pay off the bonds," the attorney said. "It's the whole answer."

The threat of May showers doesn't deter these young climbers.

City no older than students

by MARILYN McDONALD

Local history can be fun — especially when the city you're studying is barely older than you are.

That's what sixth-grade students at Kimball Hill School, 2905 Meadow Dr., have discovered through their yearlong study of Rolling Meadows during its 20th anniversary year. Taught by Janis Bennett, the city study has combined career education, map study and human relations in a course that students are visibly enthusiastic about.

"Most things we learn through books, but for this we could just look around," student Rita Metzger said. STUDENTS PIECED together the city's history through personal research, old city calendars and classroom visits by local officials. By assembling reports and notebooks, students are able to reel off facts and figures on everything from police to public works.

"We have 40 miles of sewer pipes in the city, and our first police station was in a house on Meadow Drive," Bruce Frytz said.

Trips to the police and fire stations, Gould Center, public library, park district sports complex and several local businesses have expanded the students' knowledge of their community. And the people they've met on their field trips have provided informal career education lectures about the jobs they do.

The three sixth-grade classes involved in the program have made sure their knowledge is passed along. A scrapbook, bulletin board and videotapes of visits by local officials have been made during the course of the year.

"OUR STUDY HAS been interesting because we can tell the kids that are going to be studying the city later on what we've learned," said Cathy May.

As the students' knowledge of the city grew, so did their civic pride. The sixth-grade Ecology Club helped the city's recycling, ecology and beautification committee in several clean-up days, and received ecology certificates signed by President Gerald R. Ford for their efforts.

And the students have become teachers themselves. "My parents thought our study of the city was interesting," said Joann Becker, "because they did not know so much had happened to Rolling Meadows."

Area lawyers back 2 'rejected' judges

by STEVE FORSYTH

Northwest suburban lawyers are attacking the recent recommendation by the Chicago Bar Assn. that two suburban associate judges be removed from their posts.

John E. Owens, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., Tuesday said that the Chicago Bar's board of managers was not qualified to recommend dismissal of associate judges Albert H. LaPlante and Simon S. Porter of the 3rd Municipal District, headquartered in Niles.

Both judges received high ratings in a pool conducted by the Northwest suburban attorneys last February, and the results were submitted to the CBA as part of a review and screening procedure.

Owens said the Chicago Bar Association's own screening committee included the two judges in its recommendations for retention, but the board of managers overturned the decision.

"WE FEEL THAT the attorneys of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its board of governors are in a far better position to judge the qualifications of the associate judges sitting in the 3rd District," Owens said.

He charged that the board of managers "completely disregarded the poll of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its candidate committee and failed to take any independent poll of its own members."

The Chicago Bar recommended rejection of 14 of the 122 associate judges seeking retention in Cook County. Its recommendations were given to the Circuit Court judges, who vote on retention of the associate judges.

Ballots were sent out Friday by the Illinois Courts

Administrative Office, and must be returned within 10 days. An associate judge must receive 60 per cent approval to be retained.

The Northwest suburban association's controversial poll resulted in a recommendation to dismiss two other associate judges, John L. Limperis, 2nd District, and James Maher Jr., 3rd District, but they were approved by the CBA. The suburban balloting was disputed by several local attorneys.

PARK RIDGE Atty. Robert L. Sklodowski, chairman of the Northwest suburban association's judiciary committee, said the 15 attorneys who make up the Chicago Bar's board of managers seldom, if ever, practice in the Northwest suburban criminal courts. "I don't know who the hell they think they are," he said. "They never even bothered to tell us they were going to reject two men, or tell us why. We're the 'country bumpkins,' I guess."

Sklodowski said he talked with Presiding Judge Anton A. Smigiel, 3rd District, and Smigiel also is upset with the recommendations.

The Park Ridge attorney said he was particularly angry because the CBA asked the suburban lawyers to conduct the poll. "Then they disregard it," he said.

He praised Porter, who got the support of more than 90 per cent of the suburban attorneys in the local poll, and said Porter handles cases faster than most of his associates.

Porter said Tuesday that judicial ethics do not allow him to make any comment. LaPlante could not be reached for comment.

Project set for Palatine

Plum Grove Hills gets first OK from planners

by STIRLING MORITA
Plans for the 365-acre Plum Grove Hills development again drew criticism from residents Tuesday night after the Palatine Plan Commission approved a preannexation agreement for the site.

Joseph Rygiel, a director on the board of the Hunting Ridge Homeowners' Assn., said the homeowners will continue to object to density of the nearby project and placement of the proposed 35-acre commercial area.

"We will continue to press the issues which we feel are open issues," he said.

Rygiel said the association objected to the over-all density and placement of medium-density housing near the Hunting Ridge subdivision and wanted the commercial area moved farther from the homes.

THE AGREEMENT for the 1,874-unit development is to be forwarded to the village board. The maximum density per acre would be 15 units. Rygiel said residents would be happler if the commercial area were planned for the southeast corner of Quentin Road and Euclid Avenue rather than the northwest corner, thus relieving traffic congestion and noise.

Plan Comr. Donald Payton agreed the location of the commercial area should be moved, but explained he voted for the agreement because, "I would like to see it go to the Village of Palatine rather than to Rolling Meadows."

He said there still are some problems to be worked out, but said it was the first time concept planning had been used in Palatine.

The plan commissioner said the land would remain single-family zoning until each phase of the development came in for approval. He expressed reservations about placement of a commercial area along Roseville Road, saying it might lead to "strip" commercial zoning along the main artery.

Payton said he asked the village board in a letter to seek more specific information about where stormwater will go or if present systems are adequate.

THE AGREEMENT approval for the L. F. Draper and Associates development ended about 11 months of hearings and negotiations by the plan commission. The project originally was planned for 2,800 dwelling units, but the number was reduced with most of the density being cut near the Hunting Ridge area.

Dwelling units planned for the project include houses, condominium apartments and apartments.

Steve Lenet, village plan and zoning administrator, told the commission the development would be expected to generate about 5,623 residents. He said the development's impact on the police and fire departments would be negligible compared to the revenues in taxes.

He said the only impact was on water supply. In the agreement, the developer must bear the cost of a 1 1/2-million gallon reservoir and a $400,000 well.

Palatine girl attacked by rape suspect

An 18-year-old Palatine girl was attacked outside her apartment early Saturday by a man who police believe raped a Palatine Township woman in January.

The girl's assailant fit the description given by the Palatine Township woman, Palatine police detectives said Tuesday.

The Palatine girl was getting into her car in front of the Countryside Apartments, Baldwin Road and Countryside Drive, where she lives when the man asked for directions. He then struck her in the face, knocking her to the ground, police said.

The man fled in a car when the woman's screams drew the attention of neighbors. The woman suffered a black eye and two chipped teeth, police said.

The suspect is black, about 160 pounds, 5 feet 10 inches tall and in his 20s, police said.

Homes weighed for Meadow Edge

Plans to add a 37-acre section of single-family houses to the Meadow Edge development will be presented to the Rolling Meadows Plan Commission at 8 p.m. today at City Hall, 3600 Kirchhoff Rd.

Edward Zale, president of Zale Construction Co., said the project would include 150 houses, with a density of four units to the acre, on lots ranging in size from 4,800 to 10,200 square feet.

The Meadow Edge development also includes 225 townhomes on 25 acres. The site is north of Old Plum Grove Road, between Meacham and Quentin roads, and also is to include a recreational complex. Construction started last year on the first phase of 100 townhomes, and models for that phase were opened in January.

Zale said there probably will be three basic models in the single-family home phase, a ranch a two-story and a bi-level, with a price range from $60,000 to $75,000.

He is proposing two lot sizes, 60 by 80 feet and 85 by 120 feet. Construction would start by fall, with the opening of models by next spring, said Zale. Completion of the project would be in about the fall of 1977, he said, approximately the same time the townhomes are to be finished.

The property is zoned for planned development, which allows smaller lot sizes than in other residential classifications.

City zoning allows minimum lot sizes of 10,000 or 8,400 square feet. The planned development concept does not specify minimum lot sizes, but does require 40 per cent of the total lot area be permanent open space.

Volunteers needed to help begin city blood program

Rolling Meadows still needs volunteers for a committee to study and help begin a community blood-replacement program.

The idea of starting a city-wide blood program has been presented to the city several times in the past three years, but never got off the ground.

Early this spring, the city council heard a new presentation from the American Red Cross, and authorized appointment of a committee of volunteers to look into the possibility of a city blood program. Mayor Roland J. Meyer invited residents to seek appointment to the committee, but thus far only two persons have filed their names at city hall.

Meyer has turned the committee formation task over to Ald. Merrill A. Wuerch, 1st, who supported the Red Cross plan when it was introduced in March. Wuerch still favors joining a blood-replacement program, and said he hopes to get things moving within a month, so that the first blood donations can be taken before the end of summer.

"I hope by the end of the month I will have four, five or six names to submit to the mayor. Once we get the committee, we can put them in touch with the Red Cross," he said.

Wuerch said some city residents have blood programs at their places of employment, and several churches in the city have congregation blood programs. But he said, "There are still too many people in the city not covered by a blood program."

Wuerch invited residents to leave a resume marked to his attention at the city hall, 3600 Kirchhoff Rd., or to call him at work, 956-2661, or at home, 392-4209, if they are willing to serve on the committee.

Cub Scout garage sale this weekend

Cub Pack 280 of Rolling Meadows will sponsor its third annual garage sale Saturday and Sunday at 3501 Thrush Ln.

Sale hours are from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. Anyone wishing to donate items may drop them off at 3501 Thrush Ln.

Builder may drop court-order request

Mole Construction Co. is considering dropping its request for a court order barring Rolling Meadows from enforcing electrical codes on a sewer installation project along Rohlfing Road.

A hearing on the restraining order request, scheduled today, was continued until Friday while the company decides whether to proceed.

Mole sought a restraining order preventing the city from enforcing electrical codes while Mole is installing a Metropolitan Sanitary District main along Rohlfing Road. The city issued a stop-work order on the project, citing code violations, and Mole obtained a temporary court order allowing it to proceed with work. The temporary order expired April 24.

20th anniversary events catching on in other schools

Other Dist. 15 schools in Rolling Meadows have been busy with activities for the city's 20th anniversary.

Students at Salk School, 3705 Pleasant Dr., will ride in the May 25 anniversary parade and display an American flag which has flown over the Capitol in Washington, D.C. The flag was presented to the school by U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, in a citizenship assembly last week.

TV Club member at Sandburg School, 2600 Martin Ln., are producing an eight-minute videotape presentation on the city's history. Under the direction of Linda Blane, the students will enter their videotape in a districtwide competition May 14, and the tape will be available for future use.

Central Road School, 3800 Central Rd., and Cardinal Drive School, 2300 Cardinal Dr., have study programs similar to the one at Kimball Hill. Students are taking field trips around the city and inviting officials to speak to classes about the city's history.

Meeting at Clearbrook

The annual meeting of Clearbrook Center for the Handicapped will be at 7:30 p.m. May 21 at the day school, 3201 W. Campbell St., Rolling Meadows. A reception will be at 7 p.m.

Plum Grove Hills gets initial OK

by STIRLING MORITA

Plans for the 363-acre Plum Grove Hills development again drew criticism from residents Tuesday night after the Palatine Plan Commission approved a preannexation agreement for the site.

Joseph Rygiel, a director on the board of the Hunting Ridge Homeowners' Assn., said the homeowners will continue to object to density of the nearby project and placement of the proposed 33-acre commercial area.

"We will continue to press the issues which we feel are open issues," he said.

Rygiel said the association objected to the over-all density and placement of medium-density housing near the Hunting Ridge subdivision and wanted the commercial area moved farther from the homes.

THE AGREEMENT for the 1,874-unit development is to be forwarded to the village board. The maximum density per acre would be 15 units. Rygiel said residents would be happier if the commercial area were planned for the southeast corner of Quentin Road and Euclid Avenue rather than the northwest corner, thus relieving traffic congestion and noise.

Plan Comr. Donald Payton agreed the location of the commercial area should be moved, but explained he voted for the agreement because, "I would like to see it go to the Village of Palatine rather than to Rolling Meadows."

He said there still are some problems to be worked out, but said it was the first time concept planning had been used in Palatine.

The plan commissioner said the land would remain single-family zoning until each phase of the development came in for approval. He expressed reservations about placement of a commercial area along Roselle Road, saying it might lead to "strip" commercial zoning along the main artery.

Payton said he asked the village board in a letter to seek more specific information about where stormwater will go or if present systems are adequate.

THE AGREEMENT approval for the L. F. Draper and Associates development ended about 11 months of hearings and negotiations by the plan commission. The project originally was planned for 2,800 dwelling units, but the number was reduced with most of the density being cut near the Hunting Ridge area.

Dwelling units planned for the project include houses, condominium apartments and apartments.

He said the only impact was on water supply. In the agreement, the developer must bear the cost of a 1½-million gallon reservoir and a $400,000 well.

Parks flea market reset Saturday

The Palatine Park District has rescheduled for Saturday a flea market rained out May 3.

The free flea market will be held at the Birchwood Park complex, 435 W. Illinois Ave., from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Residents who want to set up arts and crafts, clothing, food, antique or other exhibits must register by Friday at the park district administration offices, 202 E. Palatine Rd. daily from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There will be a free blood pressure check service available for residents in addition to concessions.

A HEAVY SHOWER of water pours onto the street as Fred Rieke of the Palatine Public Works Dept. flushes out a fire hydrant in the Winston Park subdivision. The hydrant flushing will continue through the month. Signs will be posted to alert residents when hy-drants will be flushed in their area so they can minimize water use.

Advisory board, police to hear gripes

Residents, merchants fight vandals

Palatine merchants and residents along Northwest Highway near Community Park are joining forces to prevent vandalism by juveniles who gather there almost nightly.

Windows have been broken, lawns and bushes ripped up, fences damaged and brick walls marred throughout the area, said Curtis S. Tice, chairman of the area's North Central Neighborhood Assn.

The residents and the merchants are investigating the possibility of having the homeowners' association sign complaints against the vandals "in an attempt to give ourselves and the police department more of a hold on the problem and start to apprehend these kids," Tice said.

THE HOMEOWNERS' association plans to present the proposal to the Palatine Advisory Board and to the police department accompanied by a petition signed by several Northwest Highway merchants and 25 residents.

"Only the residents (living on Schubert Street one block west of Northwest Highway) directly affected by these kids have signed the petition. The proposal has the total support of everyone in the area," Tice said.

Palatine Village Atty. Bradley M. Glass is examining the legal aspects of the group's proposed solution and is expected to give his opinion to residents by the end of the week.

The proposal will be presented to the Palatine Advisory Board for support later in the month and will be presented to Police Chief Jerry Bratcher early in June when he is scheduled to meet with the homeowners' association to discuss the problem, Tice said.

Bratcher was not available for comment.

"WE HAVE TALKED to the Palatine police about the problem over and over again, and we know they are doing all they can about it. They can only do so much unless the residents or merchants actually sign a complaint against the individuals, which almost everyone is afraid to do," Tice said.

Art Harris, manager of Marc's Big Boy Restaurant, 300 N. Northwest Hwy., said that he "finally" had a juvenile arrested for the first time in March on charges of criminal trespass after being "bothered by these kids for more than five years," he said.

"The kid went to court and was suspended, but he was directed by the judge not to return to the restaurant for 12 months. We may do it again if it becomes necessary now that we have done it once," he said.

Harris said he has told as many as 60 teenagers to leave his parking lot up to three or four times during the summer evenings.

HARRIS HAS signed a petition along with the residents on Schubert Street whose homes back up to the stores along the west side of Northwest Highway.

"If we find out that it's legal for the homeowners association to sign the complaints, then we can tell the police department that they can arrest these kids when we call them, knowing that someone is willing to stand behind the action," Tice said.

Vote due Monday on Levade Ranch apartment complex

Revised plans for an apartment complex on the former Levade Ranch on Smith Street, north of Northwest Highway, will be voted on Monday by the Palatine Village Board.

The planning, building and zoning committee of the board voted 3 to 1 Tuesday to recommend approval of revised plans for the development.

The revised plans call for the construction of a 4½-story apartment building with 56 units and underground parking and four 3-bedroom apartment units in another building.

Original plans had called for the 4½-story building and office rental in the second building. Trustees indicated in March they would not vote in favor of the commercial use because it did not conform with the village's master plan.

Trustee Robert J. Guss Jr. voted against the new plans because he said the density of more than 13 units per acre is too high. The master plan calls for 12 units per acre on the property which would be 53 units.

"I agreed to give bonuses for good planning on the main building but I see no reason (for the developer) to grab four additional units. If that's the margin between profit and loss we are only kidding ourselves with this developer," Guss said. The developer of the project is Onofrio Guttila of Palatine.

Baseball not in plans for stadium at race track

by KURT BAER

Madison Square Garden Corp. is not seeking a Chicago Major League baseball team as a tenant in the proposed stadium at Arlington Park Race Track, the company president said Tuesday.

"I've not talked to any baseball team, or even conceived of it," said Alan Cohen, adding, however, that he has been asked whether a baseball club might use the stadium now planned principally for the Chicago Bears.

Baseball and football are "two different sports and designing a stadium for both would add tremendously to the cost," he said.

Some Arlington Heights village officials are saying privately that they are concerned about the ability to pay for the proposed stadium without a second major tenant such as a professional baseball team.

AND A CHICAGO bond attorney said Tuesday that a commitment from a baseball team to play in the proposed stadium almost certainly would bolster the sale of revenue bonds needed to build the facility.

"Each additional user increases the net income which is used to pay off the bonds," the attorney said. "It's the whole answer."

Recently, Village Pres. James T. Ryan said a commitment from a baseball team similar to the one announced by Bears' owner George Halas would add weight to the stadium idea in his mind. However, Ryan said he had no reason to believe either baseball club (Chicago White Sox or Chicago Cubs) was a prospect for the stadium.

Halas has said he would sign a long-term lease to use the new stadium. The lease probably would be for the life of the bond issue.

Cohen declined comment Tuesday on the current status of the feasibility report Madison Square Garden is preparing on the stadium except to say that he still expects to make a presentation to the village board by the end of June.

SHOVELING SLUDGE for summer gardens, Lynne Carmack digs into the Nu-Earth fertilizer donated by the Metropolitan Sanitary District to the Village of Palatine. Plans for apartment project dead

Plans for a luxury apartment complex near downtown Palatine appear dead while the village is taking steps to improve the condition of the property.

Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig said pressure will be exerted on the owners of the property on Elm Street between Palatine Road and Wilson Street to clean it. He said the village is ready to use enforcement provisions of its ordinances if there is not a voluntary cleanup of the five acres.

Two rented houses are on the property. The back porch of one of the houses has fallen off, junk cars have been left on the property and garbage dumped, Harwig said.

"As far as I am concerned it is a blight," Trustee Robert J. Guss Jr. said. "There is no maintenance of the property at all."

GUSS SAID pressure has been placed on the owners, Harold Sherman and Joseph Bergman, to clean up the property before but there has been no continual maintenance.

He said the village has received several complaints about the condition of the property from adjacent property owners.

Village officials decided to press for improvements of the property after it appeared the proposed 116 luxury apartment units approved in 1972 would not be constructed.

and zoning committee of the village board indicated they would vote against it.

Original plans for the development called for two 5-story apartment buildings with underground parking, a swimming pool, sun dock and snack lounge. The density was to be 23 units per acre.

An 18-year-old Palatine girl was attacked outside her apartment early Saturday by a man who police believe raped a Palatine Township woman in January.

The girl's assailant fit the description given by the Palatine Township woman, Palatine police detectives said Tuesday.

The Palatine girl was getting into her car in front of the Countryside Apartments, Baldwin Road and Countryside Drive, where she lives when the man asked for directions. He then struck her in the face, knocking her to the ground, police said.

The man fled in a car when the woman's screams drew the attention of neighbors. The woman suffered a black eye and two chipped teeth, police said.

The suspect is black, about 160 pounds, 5 feet 10 inches tall and in his 20s, police said.

A man fitting that description followed a Palatine Township woman from a grocery store to her English Valley subdivision home in January where he beat and raped her.

Sheriff's police said the same man is being sought in connection with similar rapes in Wheeling and Mundelein.

Calls for new era of openness

Teichert to limit closed-door sessions

by LYNN ASINOF

Mount Prospect Mayor Robert D. Teichert Tuesday night declared a new era of openness which will include financial disclosures by village trustees and an end to closed-door meetings.

In his annual state-of-the-village address, Teichert said the recent village election, which swept five independents into office, reflected a public mistrust of elected officials.

To combat this loss of confidence, Teichert told a crowd of about 150 he "will call no more executive sessions of the village board" unless personnel is being discussed and privacy is requested by individuals involved.

"It seems to me that the doubts that arise and the rumors that flow from such closed meetings do more damage in the long run than the short-term advantage," Teichert said. "I would rather have citizens angry with us for what we say publicly than distrustful of us for what they think we said at a closed meeting."

TEICHERT FURTHER promised to file his income tax returns with the village clerk so they could be available for public inspection. He urged other board members to follow suit "so that there can be no doubts in the minds of our citizens as to who or what we are."

"The people, I believe, have a right to know our financial status," he said.

All of the trustees said they would follow Teichert's lead and file their income tax returns with the village clerk.

Teichert also called for a disclosure-of-interest ordinance that would call for more detailed information than is now required by the state. "Our collective goal must be one of assuring our citizenry in black and white that each of us is above reproach," he said.

The disclosure ordinance was referred to the board's judiciary committee, which is headed by Trustee Michael H. Minton.

FINALLY, TEICHERT said he will support a periodic newsletter if monies are available, "provided the newsletter is free from editing or censoring by all elected officials."

Teichert said these policies of "openness and candor" are needed since the new village board will be faced with unpopular decisions in the future.

"It is not necessary that all citizens agree with our individual position, and they won't. But it is necessary that they have confidence that we made our decision honestly and openly," Teichert said. "If we are to enjoy the support of the people of Mount Prospect as we make the necessary unpopular decisions which lie ahead, we must aggressively confirm our personal integrity."

TEICHERT SAID the board's biggest responsibility in the coming months is fiscal integrity, which he said includes a search for additional sources of revenue and long-range financial planning.

"The fiscal integrity that I see as our over-all challenge cannot be met unless our personal integrity is firmly established," Teichert said.

As part of fiscal integrity, the mayor suggested that the village adopt a new system of billing for property taxes that would provide the village with three instead of two payments in the coming fiscal year. He said this would provide the village with sufficient funds to pay employees pay hikes on a one-shot basis.

Teichert said, however, that such a system is only good once and warned that the village would have to come up with additional revenues in 1976 to maintain fiscal integrity.

Teichert and the newly sworn-in board members called on each other to work together despite possible differences in political philosophy.

"We must respect each other and help each other," Teichert said. "Collectively we can maintain Mount Prospect as a prosperous vital community. Divided we will merely provide tomorrow's headlines and yesterday's news."

Agreement ends 6-year battle over development

by STEVE BROWN

Des Plaines and Mount Prospect officials have apparently reached an agreement to allow construction of an apartment development on a 9.8-acre site at Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street known as the Dawn Fresh Mushroom Farm.

Development of the land, owned by Kenroy Inc., has been delayed for several years because of an annexation dispute between the two municipalities.

They have been in court for nearly six years. Des Plaines at first annexed the property, but a Circuit Court judge ruled the annexation improper and ordered that a later annexation by Mount Prospect was proper.

The case is currently before the Illinois Appellate Court.

ALD. ALAN ABRAMS, 8th, chairman of the city code and judiciary committee, said the agreement between Des Plaines and Mount Prospect would allow the development to begin. Generally, the plans call for the construction of about 150 apartment units. The developer has reviewed his plans for the project with both communities.

Abrams said the agreement would call for the developer to follow the strictest code which applies to the project. He also noted all permit fees would be put into an escrow account to be given to the community that wins the law suit.

The dispute over the property is part of a 10-year legal battle over annexation of land along Elmhurst Road.

THE TWO municipalities agreed to an out-of-court settlement in another annexation suit involving property around the intersection of Elmhurst and Algonquin roads.

Both communities had annexed land in that area and went to court to settle claims to disputed areas. Mount Prospect was given land west of Elmhurst Road while the area east of the road was assigned to Des Plaines.

The settlement was reached in May 1974.

Abrams said a decision on the appeal regarding the mushroom farm property is expected in the next month.

Administration urges laying off 9 teachers

by MARILYN McDONALD

The River Trails Dist. 26 administration Tuesday night proposed laying off eight full-time teachers and one part-time teacher because of decreasing enrollment and accompanying decreasing revenue.

The administration plan called for eliminating three full-time teachers and one part-time teacher from the junior high school, and one teacher each from Bond, Euclid, Feehanville, Indian Grove and Park View elementary schools.

The proposal was made at a board of education meeting at River Trails Junior High School that drew nearly 200 parents, teachers and students.

MOST MEMBERS of the audience were on hand to press for the continuation of the district's junior high French program. The 10-year-old program enrolls 360 students who gain one year's high school credit when they enter the French program at Hersey High School.

Late Tuesday night the board had not taken action on either the French program or other suggested staff and program cuts.

by STEVE FORSYTH

Northwest suburban lawyers are attacking the recent recommendation by the Chicago Bar Assn. that two suburban associate judges be removed from their posts.

John E. Owens, president of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn., Tuesday said that the Chicago Bar's board of associate judges was not qualified to recommend dismissal of associate judges Albert H. LaPlante and Simon S. Porter of the 3rd Municipal District, headquartered in Niles.

Both judges received high ratings in a pool conducted by the Northwest suburban attorneys last February, and the results were submitted to the CBA as part of a review and screening procedure.

Owens said the Chicago Bar Association's own screening committee included the two judges in its recommendations for retention, but the board of managers overturned the decision.

"WE FEEL THAT the attorneys of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its board of governors are in a far better position to judge the qualifications of the associate judges sitting in the 3rd District," Owens said.

He charged that the board of managers "completely disregarded the poll of the Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. and its candidate committee and failed to take any independent poll of its own members."

The Chicago Bar recommended rejection of 14 of the 122 associate judges seeking retention in Cook County. Its recommendations were given to the Circuit Court judges, who vote on retention of the associate judges.

Ballots were sent out Friday by the Illinois Courts

Administrative Office, and must be returned within 10 days. An associate judge must receive 60 per cent approval to be retained.

The Northwest suburban association's controversial poll resulted in a recommendation to dismiss two other associate judges, John L. Limperis, 2nd District, and James Maher Jr., 3rd District, but they were approved by the CBA. The suburban balloting was disputed by several local attorneys.

PARK RIDGE Atty. Robert L. Sklodowski, chairman of the Northwest suburban association's judiciary committee, said the 15 attorneys who make up the Chicago Bar's board of managers seldom, if ever, practice in the Northwest suburban criminal courts. "I don't know who the hell they think they are," he said. "They never even bothered to tell us they were going to reject two men, or tell us why. We're the 'country bumpkins,' I guess."

Sklodowski said he talked with Presiding Judge Anton A. Smigiel, 3rd District, and Smigiel also is upset with the recommendations.

The Park Ridge attorney said he was particularly angry because the CBA asked the suburban lawyers to conduct the poll. "Then they disregard it," he said.

He praised Porter, who got the support of more than 90 per cent of the suburban attorneys in the local poll, and said Porter handles cases faster than most of his associates.

Porter said Tuesday that judicial ethics do not allow him to make any comment. LaPlante could not be reached for comment.

Des Plaines urged to sell bonds for expansion of Y

A proposal to sell tax-exempt bonds to help finance new development in Des Plaines has drawn another interested party — the Northwest Suburban YMCA.

The Y officially asked the Des Plaines City Council to consider selling about $900,000 in industrial revenue bonds to help finance construction of an addition to the YMCA center at 300 Northwest Hwy., Des Plaines.

The request was forwarded to the city council's finance committee for review. The council is currently reviewing an ordinance which would allow the city to sell the revenue bonds for commercial and industrial developments and for not-for-profit groups.

CHARLES McCLELLAN, YMCA executive director, Tuesday said the Y is hopeful of city approval for the bonds. He estimated the tax-exempt status, which would allow the bonds to be sold at a lower interest rate, could save the Y about $200,000 in interest charges in the next 15 years.

McClellan indicated the $900,000 request was based on scaled-down plans for the building expansion program.

The Y had announced plans about a year ago for a $1.25 million expansion program, which included the construction of a new fieldhouse, club rooms, kitchen area and increased parking. However, the project was stalled by increasing construction costs and a difficulty in obtaining financing.

McClellan said the revised plan calls for only the fieldhouse to be constructed. He said the increased parking space will be available because the fieldhouse will be built on pillars.

THE CITY HAS also been asked to sell about $3.1 million in revenue bonds to finance the construction of an addition for the Dry Storage Co. in Des Plaines.

The bond sales would not cause an increase in the taxes. The projects constructed with the funds derived from the sale of the bonds would serve as collateral for the bondholders. No referendum is needed to sell the bonds.

Several aldermen have indicated they might be opposed to selling bonds for the Y expansion program. Ald. John Seitz, 7th, noted the industrial revenue-bond program was designed to stimulate business and increase employment. Construction of a facility for a not-for-profit group does not necessarily fulfill those purposes, he indicated.

State officials have advised the city that under its home-rule power it can sell the bonds for commercial and not-for-profit projects.

BESIDES THE Y and Dry Storage Co. proposals, some city officials also have indicated they might want to study the possibility of using the bonds to finance a portion of the proposed downtown redevelopment package.

The city has been working with local businessmen for a number of years to develop a $14 million office and retail complex in the downtown area.

Only a portion of the project could be financed through the revenue bonds, however, because state law limits the maximum amount that can be sold for any one project to $5 million.

Small units speed study of business district plan

Mount Prospect's downtown redevelopment commission has broken into smaller groups to speed study of the revitalization of the central business district.

Commission chairman Robert Bennett said the commission is concentrating on two areas: west and east of Main Street.

"We're looking at a number of things, but for right now we're kind of taking the two areas," he said, noting that the commission plans to study traffic problems, zoning and the Prospect Avenue area at a later time.

The two groups are scheduled to report their findings at the commission's regular meeting at 8 p.m. Thursday at the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

"I know that both groups have been making a point of contacting the local merchants and talking to them about ideas, plans and feelings about downtown," Bennett said. He said one of the groups organized a meeting of the businessmen, while the other went from business to business.

Bennett said the contact with merchants is important because it gives the commission some idea of what the merchants are planning for their own businesses.

"Work is being done," Bennett said, noting that the project is lengthy and time-consuming. "It took me a while to realize that this thing was going to take this long. It doesn't bother me now."

9 teachers may be slashed

Kukla, River Trails Junior High principal, outlined a plan that would cut one full-time and one part-time French teacher, leaving one teacher to handle the entire district French program.

"We are not unaware of the sentiment for French," Fridlund said. "But at many other schools, foreign language in an elective or backed up to another class."

AT RIVER TRAILS Junior High students take French — if selected for the program — or reading, a remedial program. Next year only 80 top seventh-graders would be invited to take French.

Ninety lower average seventh-graders would take reading and those of middle ability would be assigned to the media center.

Joellen Sandburg, a teacher of advanced French, said "French is the only language at Hersey with a fifth year language class. We have close to 20 students in our French 5 class and all are River Trails students. These advanced classes are the results of the excellence of the River Trails program."

Some parents, however, were in sympathy with the board position in cutting staff. "What makes everyone think this district is so special? It's just a matter of dollars and cents," said Dorothy Gebrowski, a parent from Indian Grove School.

Another parent questioned the amount of attention put on cuts at the junior high level. "Why have the junior high cuts become the biggest question when the elementary schools are taking the brunt of the cut," said Linda Maram, a Park View parent.

Youth arrested for firing BB gun

Mount Prospect police arrested a Prospect Heights youth this week for firing a BB gun.

The youth, James R. Volick, 17, of 207 E. Olive Ave., was charged with discharging a firearm after police said he was seen shooting at a house at 1620 N. Burning Bush Ln., police said Tuesday. Two juvenile companions, a 16-year-old Mount Prospect boy and a 15-year-old Prospect Heights boy, were turned over to the police juvenile section without charges.

Comic world parade theme

Theme of the Mount Prospect Fourth of July parade this year is "American Fantasy 1975, World of Comics."

There will be a meeting for all parade participants on Monday, May 19, 8 p.m., at Lions Park Center, 411 S. Maple St. All organizations planning to enter a float or unit in the Independence Day event should be represented.

BIG MUSIC program on Friday. School Dist. 57 will present its annual Spring Music Festival at Prospect High School at 8 p.m. with the Lincoln Junior High Jazz band, a district-wide concert band and a festival chorus.

The concert band and the chorus will be led by Robert Tillotson from Harper College. Tillotson, by the way, is the director of the Illinois Bell Telephone Chorus in the Chicago area.

The music faculty in Dist. 57 consists of Beverly Yates, music chairman; Ted Jahnke, Robert Rothwell and Elma Wilke, general music; and Robert Henry and Dave Metzler, band.

A "CHAMPIONSHIP" volleyball game was played last Friday evening between the faculty and parents of Fairview School, 300 N. Fairview. Twenty parents turned out to play against 10 faculty members which included school principal Cy Kozel, Sam Donatucci, assistant principal at Lincoln Junior High and former physical education teacher at Fairview, was the official scorekeeper.

Spectators filled the stage and sides of the school's multipurpose room with most of the children reportedly cheering for the teachers.

Teachers won the first game 15-10, parents won the second 15-7, and the faculty won the final game 30-26.

BILL THEECE, 415 N. Elmhurst Ave., received his CPA certificate last week in ceremonies at the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Chicago. Bill was graduated from Prospect High School in 1969 and the University of Arkansas in 1973.

PAT MEESKE of 3 N. Louis, a freshman nursing student at Valparaiso University, recently became a member of Phi Omega sorority. Pat is a Prospect High School graduate.

Seek Pageant contestants

Girls and women between the ages of 17 and 28 are being sought for the Miss Mount Prospect Pageant, scheduled for June 21 at Prospect High School.

Entrants must be a high school graduate and single. Residents of Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Des Plaines and Elk Grove are eligible. Interested persons should call 392-8346 or 233-8346.

The pageant winner will represent Mount Prospect at the Miss Illinois Pageant and will receive cash prizes. A tea has been scheduled for May 18 so that entrants can learn about the pageant. The pageant is sponsored by the Mount Prospect Jaycees and Jaycee Wives.

Ivy Hill Village may go single-family

by JOE SWICKARD

A subdivision of more than 100 houses has been proposed on the site of the controversial Ivy Hill Village, Windsor and Palatine roads, Arlington Heights.

The revised proposal eliminates the apartment and townhouse aspects of the project that had raised the wrath of residents in the neighboring Ivy Hill and Arlington Terrace subdivisions.

Plan commissioners and residents living near the site, said they favored the single-family development, although some details of the plans still have to be worked out.

DEVELOPER Melvin Lerman presented preliminary plans calling for 105 to 112 houses on the 49-acre tract to the village plan commission's plan and subdivision subcommittee Tuesday.

Lerman, who has an option to buy the land pending approval of his development by the village, entered the picture after developer Meister-Neiberg withdrew following the village's rejection of the apartment and townhouse development.

The new plans include an artificial lake along 17 acres of flood plain. The lake, said Joseph Ash, Lerman's attorney, could have recreational as well as flood-control potential.

Ash said Lerman wants to donate the lake to either the Arlington Heights Park District or the village. He said he has not yet discussed the proposed donation with the park district.

WHILE OFFERING the lake for public use, Ash ruled out further land donations and singled out an offer made by Meister-Neiberg of five acres adjacent to Ivy Hill School.

"The deal cannot fly" if more land is asked for, Ash said, adding the development would "just not be feasible" if the five acres of buildable land is taken along with the 17 acres along the flood plain.

Past and present officials of the Ivy Hill Civic Assn. attended the meeting Tuesday and voiced no objections to Lerman's proposal.

RAY MAYO, president of the association, said Ash met with him and the development was discussed with the members of the association.

"Our membership feels single-family homes is what they're in favor of," Mayo said.

Some members of the association had suggested that the tract be purchased by either the park district or the village to be developed as a park, he said. Mayo said the plan was "probably impractical" because of financial priorities of both governmental bodies.

Mayo and past association president Richard Inglis voiced concerns about the artificial lake.

"There are lakes and there are lakes. The last thing anyone wants there is a stagnant pond," Mayo said. Inglis proposed softball diamonds or tennis courts could be built next to the lake to make it more of a recreational facility.

JOE KESLER, village planner, said "The big question is how the open land is developed. Just to give the land to somebody doesn't solve the problem."

Ash said the lake is not a necessity to the project and could be eliminated.

Plan commissioners Leo Mueller and Michael Silverman said they favor the single-family home development.

Lerman said he would have a final plan drawn up and come back to the subcommittee before taking the proposal to the full plan commission. After the plan commission acts, the village board will have the final vote in the matter.

The threat of May showers doesn't deter these young climbers.

Baseball not in plans for stadium at race track

by KURT BAER

Madison Square Garden Corp. is not seeking a Chicago Major League baseball team as a tenant in the proposed stadium at Arlington Park Race Track, the company president said Tuesday.

"I've not talked to any baseball team, or even conceived of it," said Alan Cohen, adding, however, that he has been asked whether a baseball club might use the stadium now planned principally for the Chicago Bears.

Baseball and football are "two different sports and designing a stadium for both would add tremendously to the cost," he said.

Some Arlington Heights village officials are saying privately that they are concerned about the ability to pay for the proposed stadium without a second major tenant such as a professional baseball team.

AND A CHICAGO bond attorney said Tuesday that a commitment from a baseball team to play in the proposed stadium almost certainly would bolster the sale of revenue bonds needed to build the facility.

"Each additional user increases the net income which is used to pay off the bonds," the attorney said. "It's the whole answer."

Recently, Village Pres. James T. Ryan said a commitment from a baseball team similar to the one announced by Bears' owner George Halas would add weight to the stadium idea in his mind. However, Ryan said he had no reason to believe either baseball club (Chicago White Sox or Chicago Cubs) was a prospect for the stadium.

Halas has said he would sign a long-term lease to use the new stadium. The lease probably would be for the life of the bond issue.

Cohen declined comment Tuesday on the current status of the feasibility report Madison Square Garden is preparing on the stadium except to say that he still expects to make a presentation to the village board by the end of June.

Heiland Ivy Hill chief

James Heiland recently was elected president of the Ivy Hill Civic Assn.

Other new officers are Billie Graham, vice president; and Judy Abar, treasurer. Jeannine Malwitz was named chairman of the association's membership drive.

Hazardous, say officials

State digs up thorn trees from Dundee Rd. median

by JOHN MAES

The state highway department Tuesday was forced to dig up nearly 45 thorn trees it planted in the Dundee Road median last year in violation of a Buffalo Grove ordinance.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said the village prohibits thorn trees for safety reasons. "Thorns have a tendency to fall off, and when you're cutting grass, they become missiles," he said.

The village is responsible for maintaining the median of the state highway, and Larson said thorns from the honey locust trees planted by the state could get caught in lawn mowers.

Illinois Dept. of Transportation officials were unavailable for comment Tuesday on the cost of removing the honey locusts and replacing them with a thornless species to be planted next week.

The situation came to light about six months ago, Larson said, when Richard Glauner, a village appearance-control commissioner, noticed the thorn trees. State officials decided, however, to wait until the ground was dry enough for the trees to be dug up and replaced with little trouble.

State-financed sodding will follow the replanting later this month. The sodding is estimated to cost $10,000.

Landscaped medians caused a controversy in Buffalo Grove last year, pitting village officials against local chamber of commerce members over having mountable or the planted, barrier-type dividers along Dundee Road.

The two sides eventually agreed on alternating sections of landscaped and asphalt medians.

Schools get $20,000 U.S. funds to provide jobs

High School Dist. 214 will receive more than $20,000 in federal funds to provide jobs for low-income adults and students.

The County Board Monday approved the grant, $16,000 of which will go to the district's adult employment program and the remaining $4,100 going to the Youth Opportunity Unlimited (YOU) program.

YOU, a successor to the Neighborhood Youth Corps program, provides part-time student jobs at a rate of $2.10 per hour.

William Warner, assistant to the superintendent of High School Dist. 214, said the $16,000 will go to provide 10 more part-time jobs.

The program provides 20 hours of work per week in the district at $2.10 per hour. To qualify for the program, applicants must be over 40, out of work for at least 30 days and in a low-income bracket, Warner said.

Warner said he is looking for applicants for the 10 new jobs.

The senior-citizen program began in the district with a similar federal grant earlier this year that also provided 10 jobs.

Many of those working the programs are senior citizens, Warner said.

High school text rental to go up $2

Textbook rental in High School Dist. 214 will be $2 higher next year.

The district board of education earlier this year authorized raising the present $12 fee to as much as $15 if needed. A subsequent district study of textbook needs has prompted the district administration to set the fee at $14 for the 1975-76 school year.

Rising costs of texts and materials has forced the district to subsidize textbook fees an estimated $50,000 this year. According to the Illinois School Code, school districts that charge rental fees must cover the entire cost of the books and supplies through the fee and may not subsidize the purchase of books and supplies substantially.

Dotts quits police, fire commission

Harold W. Dotts has resigned from the Arlington Heights Fire and Police Commission after 18 years of service.

Dotts, of 1015 S. Highland Ave., was appointed to the commission in May 1957. His latest term expired at the end of April.

FINAL EXAMS ARE just two weeks away at Herper College in Palatine, but that doesn't stop students from taking advantage of the sunshine when they pursue their studies. Spring on the campus inevitably brings out the students.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan has joined the ranks of Arlington Heights officials planning to keep regular office hours at the municipal building.

In addition to the set hours, Ryan said he plans to have daily consultations with Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

Trustees Madeline Schroeder and O. V. Anderson also have said they will try to establish regular hours during which they will be available at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd. to hear citizens.

Ryan, who was sworn in as village president Monday, said he hopes to set aside one afternoon a week to be at the village hall, plus Saturday mornings.

"I will be meeting with Rudy (Hanson) every day. It will probably be first thing in the mornings before I get to the office," said Ryan, a Loop attorney.

FOR MEETING with citizens and consultations with the village administration, Ryan said afterwards would probably be set aside. "People seem to be able to take the time to get together then," he said.

As part of his plan to get closer with the operations of the village, Ryan said his law office may open a branch in Arlington Heights.

He said "I don't think it's possible" to be the chief executive of the village from a Chicago office. "You've got to be out here. You have to be," he said.

Ryan also said he will start a series of meetings with village department heads next week. He said the meetings were "sound business practice."
